State fair exhibitors get special applause

An instant replay of the 1974 Ohio State Fair Sale of Champions highlighted the recognition program for Fayette County's 65 junior fair exhibitors Wednesday night in the landmark auditorium.

Vic Lucas, Ohio State Fair general manager, gave the exhibitors the first run showing of the video tapes. Featured in the tape was the sale of Rusty Coe's champion barrow to Bob Evans Farm for $26 per pound; Jill Schlichter's grand champion market lamb to Renzetti's IGA for $30 per pound; and Mary Kay Wilson's reserve grand champion market lamb to the All-Ohio Youth Choir for $12 per pound.

Lucas also showed a 1930 state fair promotional film, comparing it to the 1974 version. The exhibitors enjoyed seeing the long skirts, fat hogs, short steers, and wide-brimmed hats of past state fairs.

Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce president Bruce Galloway presented each of the state junior fair exhibitors with recognition certificates. Galloway with assistance of Chamber vice president Glen Hemsworth and director Jim Ward, indicated the pride the residents of Fayette County have for the achievements compiled by local exhibitors.

Assisting with the event were Bill Statler, Ohio State Fair junior division coordinator, Jim Dunn, executive vice president of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, and Jack Sommers, county 4-H Extension agent.

FDIC says all deposits covered

Two bank failures 'unique'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bankers and government regulators say two record-setting bank failures illustrate the soundness of the system for assuring savers they won't be left empty-handed if their banks collapse.

The successive failures of the U.S. National Bank of San Diego and Franklin National Bank of New York have presented the deposit insurance system with its heaviest financial challenge yet, but the bankers and regulators say those are isolated instances of poor banking practice.

In both cases, all depositors were fully protected, even though government insurance guarantees full protection only to accounts of $20,000 or less.

The keystone of the insurance system is a $5.8-billion fund controlled by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the agency behind the FDIC embossed on the doors of 98.5 per cent of the nation's commercial banks. A similar agency, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., covers a like share of the nation's savings and loan associations.

The keystone is buttressed by the government's readiness to borrow $3 billion more to support savings accounts, by the efforts of bank regulators to pinpoint trouble before it mushrooms into disaster and by the readiness of the Federal Reserve System to unleash its massive money resources.

Until this year, the FDIC, which grew out of the wreckage of the 4,000 financial institutions that failed in 1933, had to dip into its insurance fund for only $100 million to make good deposits in the 502 banks that had failed. No saver covered by FDIC insurance lost a penny. FDIC's record of full repayment to 99 per cent of depositors at insolvent banks even includes deposits exceeding the legal maximum.

Chamber to support three school issues

The Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce board of directors endorsed two educational issues which will be appearing on the November 5 general election ballot at the regular monthly meeting Thursday.

The Chamber directors endorsed a .65-mill operating levy proposed by the Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation after support for the issue was solicited by two representatives at Thursday's meeting and agreed to support two issues being proposed by the Fayette County Board of Education.

NO STAND was taken by the Chamber on a 1.25 per cent income tax issue proposed by members of Washington C.H. City Council.

Mrs. Frank Weade, representing the Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation, and Carl Whitaker, administrator of the Fayette Progressive School, attended the board meeting in an attempt to garner support for the .65-mill tax levy which will run for a 10-year period.

The Chamber board agreed to endorse the issue stating "it is important to the county's educational system and it is so easy to be overlooked because most persons are blessed with normal children."

Mrs. Weade stated the .65-mill tax levy will raise the supplement a present .35-mill levy which is scheduled to expire in 1977.

The two representatives said the Fayette Progressive School has relocated from its former headquarters in the Washington Junior High School building to the former Sunnyside Elementary School building on S. Fayette Street.

They said because of the relocation, rent has increased and the school is presently paying utility costs. Enrollment has increased as the school presently has 41 pupils and a 14-member staff.

The school also hopes to launch an adult services program since Fayette County is one of four Ohio counties presently not offering adult classes.

The school is presently operating on a $61,000 annual budget. The .35-mill levy produces 64 per cent of the budget or approximately $37,000 per year and the school also receives tuition from the Washington C.H. and Miami Trace School districts and a $450 per pupil reimbursement from the state.

The Chamber directors also agreed to endorse and pledged active support for a three-mill additional operating levy and a 2.49-mill bond issue for the construction of a new junior high school being proposed by the Fayette County Board of Education.

The three-mill operating levy is expected to generate approximately $210,000 annually. The bond issue would yield nearly $2,250,000 with the debt to be retired in 22 years.

APPROXIMATELY two-thirds of the new income generated by the additional operating levy would be used for salary increases and related expenses for teachers in the system. The increase is expected to be effective Jan. 1, if the levy is approved at the polls in November.

The proposed new junior high school building is expected to cost about $2 million. The additional $250,000 will be spent on the repair and maintenance of existing facilities.

Chamber of Commerce president Bruce Galloway reported to the board on a recognition ceremony held Wednesday night for Fayette County 4-H Club members who participated in the 1974 Ohio State Fair.

Council considers rezoning matter during brief meeting

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

Washington C.H. City Council Wednesday night conducted the first reading of an ordinance requesting the rezoning of a tract of land near the intersection of Clinton and Fairview avenues to permit the construction of a proposed three-building office complex project.

The city legislators also took care of a number of other matters including endorsing a tax levy for the operation of the Fayette County Progressive School, and authorizing the city manager to prepare specifications and advertise for bids for new police cruisers. Council members Billie Wilson and Mrs. Bertha McCullough were absent from the meeting which lasted just over 45 minutes.

Washington C.H. real estate developer Robert E. Lewis has submitted preliminary plans to City Council requesting rezoning of an 0.42-acre tract of land, stituated on the south side of Clinton Avenue, from R-2 to B-1 restricted.

Since only five city legislators were present at Wednesday night's meeting, the ordinance was placed on its first reading. The second reading of the ordinance will be held at Council's regular meeting on October 23.

Construction of the three modern office buildings would be handled by Lewis. The proposed site for the colonial style buildings, which will contain two offices apiece, measures 308 feet by 175 feet.

Lewis has not announced any of the tenants who would eventually occupy the office buildings, but said his real estate office, presently situated at 1017 Clinton Avenue, would be relocated into one of the new office buildings.

Other businesses presently located on the proposed construction site include the Fayette Advertiser, 1015 Clinton Ave., and the United Farm Agency, 1013 Clinton Ave.

The Unit Farm Agency is situated on the lot 142.5 feet east of Fairview Avenue in the Elmwood Addition that Lewis has requested to be rezoned.

Members of the City Planning Commission approved Lewis's request their July 3 meeting. Council authorized the city manager to prepare legislation on the matter at its last meeting.

A restrictive clause in the ordinance requires that new buildings constructed on the site be limited to one story structures and that curb cuts and

Tax issue interview

How Council feels

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of seven interviews with Washington C.H. City Council members and their feelings concerning the proposed 1.25 per cent income tax issue.)

BY MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

Washington C.H. City Council member Joseph O'Brien is an avid supporter of the proposed city income tax because he believes the lowering of property tax Council has installed into the package will provide financial relief for residents on fixed incomes.

"Elderly residents in Washington C.H. will be able to live more comfortably because of the reduction of taxes," said O'Brien, a retired track supervisor for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co.

"I know some of the problems these people (those on fixed incomes) have and I personally feel the income tax package will mean a lot to older people here," he said.

Pardon slows Watergate trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — It appears now that massive publicity is not the only matter stretching out the jury selection process for the Watergate cover-up trial. The Nixon pardon also seems to be a sticking point.

The sifting process was in its eighth day today, and U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica has sent word that he doesn't expect it to be the last. But an aide said at the close of Wednesday's session that Sirica was "still hopeful about Friday — it looks good."

A prosecutor's memorandum indicated some prospective jurors are bothered that five subordinates of Richard M. Nixon are being prosecuted while the former president goes free. The five, including former White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, are charged with trying to thwart the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

The memorandum, filed with the judge, suggested changes in the last step of seating a jury to avoid giving "the defense an unwarranted advantage in the selection of the panel."

In the current stage, judge and lawyers are questioning jury prospects one-by-one to discern any biases that would stand in the way of a verdict based on trial evidence alone.

The memorandum by Special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski spoke of a "pattern of responses to questions about the Nixon pardon" in the private questioning and said if usual procedures are followed there would be "a possibility of unfairness to the government."

Once the judge and lawyers have settled on a minimum of 45 prospective jurors — plus an undetermined number extra — the "peremptory challenge" stage will begin.

A clerk will seat 12 jury prospects in the order on which they appear on a list made up at random before the trial started Oct. 1. The defense then will be allowed to remove up to 15 people and the prosecution 6 — all without stating a cause. As each juror-candidate is struck, another takes his place, still in the order on the list.

Jaworski said in the memorandum he was worried that the defense might pass on its early challenges and then at the end have enough remaining to exercise 12 or more strikes.

"If at that time defendants know the 9 or 12 individuals who are next in line, they will have complete control in selecting a final panel of 12," the memorandum said.

He suggested a complex mathematical arrangement to avoid "the possibility that any party will have a "final say in the selection of the final panel."

It would require the defense to exercise two or three challenges in each of the first few rounds to the government's one.

A second procedure advocated by the government would be to reshuffle the names of prospective jurors — and not let the order be known in advance — so that the defense could not be able to pick the "known individuals."

Geneva man winner

CONNEAUT, Ohio (AP)— Frank P. McNellie of Geneva won $300,000 today in the Buckeye 300 to the shouts and tears of his family in the audience.

William Chisley of Cincinnati won $60,000 and Clara T. Miller of Ottawa won $30,000.

The other five Buckeye 300 contestants each won $15,000, the minimum prize in that elimination that climaxes the weekly drawings in the Ohio Lottery. They are Neil Coonrod of rural Monroeville, Ind.; Harry G. Hansen, Fairview park, a Cleveland suburb; Edward E. Kurtz, Elyria; Martha E. Rosegarten, Covington, and Pasquale F. Cassano, Cleveland.

Asked whether he had a good night's sleep before today's drawing, McNellie jokingly replied that no, he didn't—his wife snored too much. She and their two children were jumping up and down in audience at City Hall, her eyes welling with tears, as McNellie became the day's big winner.

About 21,500 persons will win prizes this week, as 21,482 did last week, on the numbers turned out by the giant tumbler.

This week's winning single number was 435, and the winning double number was 612 429, a lottery spokesman announced.

But contrary to what some lottery observers felt is a popular belief, there were only two persons, not handfuls of them, who unknowingly still held tickets today from previous weeks that will assure them of at least $15,000 each in some future Buckeye 300, a lottery spokesman said.

Winning digits

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The winning three-digit number this week in the Ohio Lottery was 435, and the winning double number was 612 429, the Ohio Lottery Commission announced Thursday.

Chillicothe escapee recaptured

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Wills Jones, a Chillicothe Correctional Institute escapee accused of shooting a policeman, was captured Wednesday night, authorities said.

Two Columbus police officers said they arrested Jones without incident after he tried to evade them through an alley. The narcotics officers said he offered no resistance.

Columbus homicide detective Thomas Strausbaugh said Jones carried a .38-caliber police service revolver and a makeshift knife.

Strausbaugh said the revolver was one take after Sgt. Robert H. McCandless was shot. Jones is accused of shooting the officer after McCandless called to him.

He is accused of firing two more shots at the officer before picking up the revolver McCandless had dropped and running off, police said. McCandless was treated for a flesh wound.

Jones told detectives he escaped from the correctional institute more than three weeks ago because he was bored with being a trusty in a dairy barn, Strasbaugh said.

The escapee had been serving time on charges from a 1968 robbery.

Banker's family held hostage

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — An Ypsilanti bank manager's wife and two children were freed unharmed today after the manager was forced to rob his own bank to ransom them, the FBI reported.

Mrs. Richard Green and her children, Erick 7, and Annette, 9, were released at a hotel about 15 miles west of Ypsilanti about 10:20 a.m. after being held hostage all night by four men.

Mrs. Green called her husband at the bank after being released and was picked up by police.

Mills partying incident clouded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills spent at least part of the evening drinking, dining and dancing with friends hours before he was involved in a bizarre incident in which one of his women companions was rescued from drowning by police.

The manager of a Washington night club where the Arkansas Democrat has been a frequent patron said Mills, three women and another man were in the establishment for about three hours on Sunday night.

During that time they had dinner and drinks which cost about $80 in all and then left, according to George Bertran, 47, manager of the Junkanoo restaurant on fashionable Connecticut Avenue. None of the group appeared intoxicated when they left about 9:30 p.m., he said.

The whereabouts of the influential 65-year-old congressman, chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means committee, remained a mystery between that hour and the 2 a.m. incident at the Tidal Basin near the Jefferson Memorial.

Mills himself remained in seclusion late Wednesday as the U.S. Park Police disputed a claim Mills made through aides that he was not present at the incident and knew nothing about it.

Mills is currently involved in a re-election campaign and facing his stiffest challenge in years from a woman Republican candidate.

As recounted by police, the Tidal Basin incident occurred when two officers stopped a 1973 Lincoln Continental that was traveling at an unreasonable speed with lights out at 2 a.m. Monday. Five people spilled out. The car was registered to Mills, police said.

They said one of the men identified himself to the officers as Mills and the police report, according to Franklin A. Arthur, assistant chief of the Park Police, described this man as "intoxicated." His face was scratched and bleeding, they said.

While police questioned the group, a woman identified as Anabella Battistella, crying and shouting in mixed Spanish and English, ran to a bridge and leaped into the water. She was rescued by an officer who dove in after her.

In a news conference called after Mills' claim that he was not involved, Arthur said, "We can assume it was Rep. Mills." He added, "I think the officers would recognize" him.

Mills' administrative assistant, Oscar "Gene" Goss, who had earlier relayed Mills' denials of involvement to newsmen, said after the police press conference, "I cannot refute what the police say."

Mrs. Battistella was admitted to a hospital but later released and reporters who called her apartment on Wednesday were told by another woman that she was sleeping under sedation.

The doorbell at the apartment also went unanswered, although people could be heard moving about inside. The woman lives in a luxury, high-rise apartment complex where Mills and his wife also have an apartment. It is in Crystal City, Va., across the Potomac River from the capital.

The Washington Post quoted hospital sources as saying Mrs. Battistella, 38, had two black eyes and had identified herself to officials there as a stripper.

More police called in Boston dispute

BOSTON (AP) — State and Metropolitan policemen took up their posts in South Boston today to help local authorities quell racial violence that has increased since schools opened last month under a federal school busing order.

The contingent of 400 officers, outfitted with riot gear, were ordered into the area by Gov. Francis W. Sargent after a federal judge rejected Mayor Kevin H. White's request for 125 federal marshals to help keep the peace.

They were placed under the command of Boston Police Commissioner Robert J. diGrazia and Police Supt. Joseph Jordan.

"They will protect the buses, the children and the schools," DiGrazia said.

U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., in turning down the request for federal aid, told White to seek aid from local law enforcement agencies.

"The problems here are no different from those which have been solved in 200 other cities, and they are going to be solved here. It is just a question of how long, and how much heartache, it will take," said Garrity, who had issued the busing order in an effort to integrate Boston's public schools.

In Washington, President Ford told a news conference Wednesday that although he personally disagreed with Garrity's busing order, the order should be carried out.

"I have consistently opposed forced busing to achieve racial balance as a solution to quality education. And therefore I respectfully disagree with the judge's order," Ford said.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., later attacked Ford, saying, "... The timing of (Wednesday's) remarks can only give aid and comfort to those who would flout the court's decision at this difficult time for our city."

Boston has been wracked by arrests and injuries in racial incidents since Sept. 12, when Garrity's busing order took effect.

At first, the violence was mostly limited to South Boston, a predominantly Irish section where many children were to be bused to black neighborhoods.

This week, violence spread to the mostly black Roxbury section. Nine arrests were reported Wednesday as police dispersed crowds of rock-and bottle-throwing black youths. Police said nine persons were injured, but only one, a white man, was seriously hurt. He was hospitalized in fair condition with head injuries.

Financial analysts filled with gloom

DETROIT (AP) — A mood of pessimism and uncertainty has dominated a semi-annual meeting of stock analysts.

Reflecting the gloom on Wall Street, one analyst said his colleagues were searching for the catalyst "that will turn this herd of bears heading for the cliff."

Chief among the topics of discussion at the meeting of the 14,000-member Financial Analysts Federation that ended on Wednesday was the future of their trade.

"The people I've met here are puzzled," said Ted Lilley, president of the 14,000-member federation. "They're gritting their teeth and talking about buying bars of gold to put under their beds."

The analysts are market advisers, and an unusually large number of top executives from major companies attended the conference, partly to boost confidence in their industries and firms.

But by and large, they ran into strong resistance.

"At last night's cocktail party, it became clear that anyone here with over $100 million to invest is sitting on the sidelines, waiting for something to happen," said Frank Cappiello Jr., president of Monumental Capital Management Inc.

"The question is, what will be the catalyst?" he said. "Somewhere along the line, something will turn this herd of bears heading for the cliff."

The analysts agreed generally that by rights there should be as much — or perhaps more — work for the analysts in bad times as good. In fact, many smaller investors simply pull out of the market in bad times.

"Incomes in our area are down," said Lilley, of New York.

And attendence at the conference was down proportionately. Only about 325 analysts paid the $265 registration for the four-day fall conference, down from 800 a year ago.

"If we are not near the bottom, this will be the worst depression the industrialized western world has ever seen, and the capitalistic system is done for," said Cappiello.

Despite gloom and uncertainty on Wall Street, leaders of the conference said this could be a good time for smaller investors to get back into the market.

Robert D. Hedberg of New York, chairman of the federation, said that many stocks and bonds are sharply undervalued at their current market price, making an upsurge seem inevitable.

"It sounds hokey, but you buy stocks when there are problems, when there's blood in the streets," said Cappiello.

Agnew out for year

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — One year ago today Spiro T. Agnew resigned as vice president of the United States and pleaded no contest to a charge of income tax evasion.

Today, he has an office behind an unmarked door just off the village green in Crofton, Md., where his long-time secretary, Mary Ellen Warner, courteously but firmly fends off unwanted calls and visits.

"I feel that I'm a private citizen and I'm entitled to be left alone," Agnew told a reporter last summer outside his office.

The Maryland bar disbarred Agnew as a lawyer. He is glimpsed occasionally as he flys about Europe and the Middle East on missions involving international business.

Agnew still appears to be living in style. He sold his palatial home at Kenwood outside Washington and bought a large new house near Annapolis.

The 40-page summary of evidence against Agnew unveiled a system of governmental corruption that federal prosecutors said had pervaded Maryland for years.

COUNCIL HAS agreed to reduce property taxes for Washington C.H. residents by a total of 4.30 mills in exchange for the 1.25 per cent income tax. Voters in Washington C.H. will be deciding the fate of the income tax package when they go to the polls on November 5.

"I think it would be of interest to all retired people in Washington C.H. to support this income tax," O'Brien stated.

He pointed out that over $160,000 of the $551,357 estimated to be raised by the income tax will replace what the city is losing in property taxes collected.

"Some people think we're getting a big gob of money, but they don't realize what is going to be used to replace those property taxes and the amount which will be used to defray costs of collecting the taxes the cost of administering and enforcing the provisions," he said.

O'Brien, 120 Gardner Court, pointed out a number of non-taxable provisions under the income tax package which will be a benefit to elderly Washington C.H. residents.

He said old age pensions, other pensions, poor relief, unemployment insurance benefits, Social Security benefits, interest and dividends from intangible property and proceeds from insurance and annuities will not be taxed.

Rocky plans explanation of gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller has agreed to provide Congress with a written explanation of his financial gifts to aides and public figures.

Despite the offer Wednesday, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Rockefeller has paid $3.9 million in gift taxes since 1964 and must be recalled to explain the gifts before the Senate Rules Committee, which is considering Rockefeller's nomination to be vice president.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the rules panel, said any decision on whether to reopen the confirmation hearings has been put off until Congress returns from its election recess.

"I don't think its a question of conflict of interest but rather one of influence of wealth in a political situation," Cannon said of the gifts made by the former New York governor.

Helms said that "I think that any time an elected official spends close to $1 million to make a gift to a political figure, then the public has the right to know 'why' before that person is confirmed for a high public office."

Helms' reference was to a disclosure that Rockefeller had given $550,000 to William J. Ronan, a former close aide who now is chairman of the New York-New Jersey Port Authority. Rockefeller press secretary Hugh Morrow, himself the acknowledged recipient of a $100,000 Rockefeller gift, said the Ronan gift cost Rockefeller a total of $880,000 when state and federal gift taxes are included.

Other known Rockefeller gifts include $50,000 in 1969 to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger after he left Rockefeller's employment to join the Nixon administration.

Stock list skyrockets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market surged ahead today in heavy early trading after posting its sixth biggest gain on record Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials ran up a 20-point gain to 651.05 at 11 a.m. as trading ran ahead of the tape for the first hour.

Wednesday, the blue chip indicator rallied more than 28 points, the sixth largest gain on record at the New York Stock Exchange and the biggest advance since May 24, 1973, when it climbed 29.42 points.

Analysts said the market got a psychological boost from Wednesday's gains which they said caught many seasoned Wall Streeters by surprise.

The optimism was heightened Thursday by the government's report that the wholesale price index, one indicator of inflation, rose at a slow 1.2 per cent annual gain in September, the smallest rise in 11 months.

Sunny, mild weather is forecast for Ohio for the next two days as a weak cold front moving across the state was expected to dissipate today.

Temperatures were expected to climb into the 60s over most of the state today with, low 70s over the southern half.

A high pressure center moving across the eastern portion of the state is expected to bring a warming trend with southerly winds. Lows tonight are to be in the 50s, with highs Friday in the 70s statewide.

Skies were clear across Ohio Wednesday night with some areas of fog forming during the early morning hours. Temperatures were mostly in the 40s during the night although readings dropped into the upper 30s in Toledo.

A chance of showers Saturday, ending Sunday. Fair Monday. Turning cooler with highs in the upper 60s and the 70s Saturday, dropping to the 50s by Monday. Lows in the 50s Saturday, dropping to the 30s by Monday.

Slaughter planned

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (AP) — Only a personal conference with President Ford will stop a proposed cattle slaughter in protest of the high cost of raising beef, a group of East Texas ranchers say.

Meanwhile, an Agriculture Department spokesman told some Texas ranchers in Washington on Wednesday that there might be a little profit for stockmen by next spring, but not before.

Steve Burgess, who raises Santa Gertrudis beef cattle just east of here, said Wednesday night about 500 head of dairy and beef calves have been pledged for slaughter and he expects that number to reach 1,000 by next Wednesday, the date for the slaughter.

Last draftees are released

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 2,500 men who were the last draftees before the Army switched to an all-volunteer force will be home by Thanksgiving.

The Army said Wednesday it was releasing many of the men before the end of their two-year hitch because of success in meeting enlistment goals for a volunteer force in recent months. Some draftees could have remained in uniform until as late as next June 30 without the early separation.

Any draftee who volunteers to remain on duty beyond Thanksgiving will be permitted to do so, the Army said.

Political hiring said widespread

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee chairman said today investigations indicate that improper political influence in federal hiring was widespread in former President Richard M. Nixon's administration.

Rep. David N. Henderson, D-N.C., chairman of the House Civil Service subcommittee, said evidence on some alleged hiring abuses has been turned over to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski. He refused to elaborate.

'Traveling job' close to home

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

CAVE-IN-ROCK, Ill. (AP) — Rudy Bragdon's job takes him 9,828 miles a year, but he never is more than hailing distance from this tiny Ohio River town.

Bragdon, 43, pilots the Cave in Rock Ferry, one of the last of the privately owned, fulltime auto ferries plying America's inland waters and the only one operating on the Ohio west of Cincinnati.

Except for two years in the Army, he's been at it steadily since 1949, never more than half a mile from where he left or where he's bound.

Three times an hour, 12 hours a day, seven days a week, Bragdon points his 45-foot tug's prow at the Kentucky shore, yanks the propeller lever and chugs across. His 250-horsepower diesel churns out six knots and the round trip takes about 15 minutes.

"That's about all I've ever done," he says. And it's about all he's ever wanted to do. Year after year he ferries cars across with license plates from every state in the union and he's never been curious enough to follow them.

He's been to Chicago a couple of times, and Indianapolis.

"But," he says, "I just stay around here mostly."

Driving a ferry isn't the most exciting occupation in the world but Bragdon is content—"You get used to it. You don't mind it. It's just being here. That's the big thing of the job. There's not much to do except sit here."

He learned the trade from his father, Carl, who signed on in 1935 and still spells his son at the helm. Carl trained upriver on another boat and has become a philosopher over the years.

"It gets monotonous as heck," he says. "You see the same thing every time. But it's surprising... you see people... It's kind of amazing the mode of people that's traveling.

"As uncertain as the world is today, even though ferries is going by the board, I don't know but what I'd do it again."

Other people find it fascinating, too, and ride just out of curiosity. Vacationers pass up the bridges above the below Cavein-Rock and follow Illinois Highway 1 right down to its end at the ferry ramp just to ride.

There seems to be something about ferries that takes the edge off the urge to wander.

P.A. "Candy" Hill owned the Cave-in-Rock Ferry for 22 years, rode it at least once a day and never thought of going farther.

"I never did take a vacation," Hill said. "Never was gone more than three days at a time. I've gone millions of miles and haven't been anywhere. Never was much of a one to run around."

Poor health forced him to sell out this spring. He's spending his retirement at home, here, where he was born.

Seek to make public Rhodes testimony on KSU shooting

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Cleveland attorney Steven A. Sindell has filed a motion in federal court here challenging former Gov. James A. Rhodes' efforts to keep secret the testimony he gave in the civil damage suits arising from the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

Sindell, who represents parents of students who were killed or wounded at Kent State, filed a motion in U.S. District Court Wednesday opposing Rhodes' request that his deposition be kept secret until after the Nov. 5 election.

Rhodes, a Republican, is seeking his third term as governor, running against incumbent Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Rhodes gave his deposition in Cleveland last week. Judge Don J. Young of Toledo temporarily sealed the deposition at the request of Rhodes' attorneys.

Attorney Burt J. Fulton said disclosure of the deposition could "distort the public's perception of candidates for office and...prejudice and color the mandate of the electorate."

Sindell argued in his motion that Rhodes failed to show good cause why his deposition should be sealed. He said the public is entitled to know what goes on in the courts.

Sindell also challenged Rhodes' contention that the testimony should be sealed until criminal cases have been completed against eight former Ohio national guardsmen who were indicted for violating the civil rights of the slain and wounded students.

Sindell said this would hold up proceedings in the civil damage suit. He said if lawyers for the guardsmen fear that the depositions will be used against them, they can ask the federal court in Cleveland to take protective measures.

Sindell represents parents of four students killed and nine who were wounded when guardsmen opened fire on antiwar demonstrators May 4, 1970. Rhodes is one of the defendants in the suits, which ask damages totaling $20 million.

Lavelle wins Gilligan nod

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Gov. John J. Gilligan says as far as he's concerned State Democratic Chairman William A. Lavelle is "doing a fine job" and he wants to keep Lavelle as state chairman.

John H. Glenn Jr., the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, has said he wants Lavelle replaced.

Gilligan said in an interview Wednesday he is "more than satisfied with his (Lavelle's) conduct."

The governor said other party leaders share his opinion.

The Plain Dealer said it had learned that Gilligan and his key aides made the decision to keep Lavelle at a recent meeting in Columbus.

The Plain Dealer report said Gilligan wants to strengthen his hold on the party leadership and keep Lavelle even if it means getting into a fight with Glenn.

Opinion And Comment

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Light years apart

WASHINGTON — President Ford's economic summit and the annual meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund might have occurred on different planets instead of in the same city. The appeal that each uttered was irrelevant one to the other.

President Ford summing up the summit called for holding down government spending to keep the federal budget at or below $300 million. He asked Americans to devote 10 days of the month to conserving energy, listing ways to do this and exchanging the lists with neighbors.

With this voluntarism the American standard of living, the highest in the world, will not be seriously impaired.

President Robert S. McNamara called on the industrialized members of the World Bank to provide immediately billions of aid for the developing nations. Unless this comes about, the end will be death and disaster for those living at the bottom of the heap.

Their already appallingly low standard has been gravely worsened in the past year by the quadrupling of oil prices and a resulting scarcity of food and fertilzer.

For each President, the verdict may be too little and too late. Split down the middle between Democrats and Republicans, labor and management, the summit chose to ignore what has happened to the economy during the past 12 months.

Steel prices have increased by 40 per cent, almost the biggest increase ever. This was ture even though in July less steel was produced, despite a greater capacity, than in July a year ago. Industrial chemicals jumped 50 per cent, nonferrous metals 46 per cent, oil 82 per cent. These basic increases are quickly reflected in consumer prices.

With an attempt to roll back these price levels, sternly ruled out along with any form of wage and price controls, much of the rhetoric indulged in at the summit was just rhetoric. As a latecomer Ford, gets good marks for an exercise in education. But as for practical results in the war on inflation, they are not yet in sight.

McNamara cannot be faulted for failing to try. He has repeatedly inveighed against the complacency of the wealthy, industrialized members of his bank. This has hit hard at the United States with 6 per cent of the world's population uses more than 30 per cent of all resources.

He waged an uncreasing struggled, which was finally successful, to get the Congress to provide funds for the American share of a consortium to replenish the International Development Agency IDA, the Bank's low-interest subsidiary.

But for all the intensity and concentration of his efforts, the plight of the sub-Saharan nations has steadily grown worse. The structure of a relief system has not been built into what is largely an underdeveloped and primitive area even when relief supplies are available, it has often been difficult if not impossible to get food and medicines to the starving.

The real gap, however, is in the attitude of Congress and the public toward aid. It has come almost to a dead stop. Repeatedly aid programs are cut and they have become even more unpopular as they are involved, on the arms side, in big power politics.

McNamara is a man of conscience. In his opening address to the World Bank meeting he called the situation of one billion human beings in the poorest of the member countries desperate. Then he went on with an appeal that may or may not be heard on capitol hill:

"Aid is not a luxury - something affordable when times are easy, superfluous when times become temporarily troublesome. It is precisely the opposite. Aid is a continuing social and moral responsibility and its need now is greater than ever.

"It is true that the affluent nations in the face of shortages and inflation, and in order to continue to expend aid, many have to accept for the time being some selective reduction in their already immensely high standard of living. If they have to they can absorb such inconveniences."

Presidents Ford and McNamara were each calling for belt tightening. But their aims are light years apart. McNamara was in effect calling on the Congress to add a billion or two billion dollars a year to the aid budget. Ford was asking for budget balancing to hold down inflation.

A distant goal now seems to be within reach. Press on, and don't let others discourage you.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

A new surge of energy should carry you far along the road to success and recognition. But keep an eye on the main objective. Don't go off on tangents.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Do not let a personal disappointment mar your overall perspective. Continue to aim for high goals. Your adeptness, know-how and intuition should be potent now.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

By investigating background information you receive, you may find a good way to improve your financial set-up. But DO investigate.

LIBRA

Under good Uranus influences, your imagination is heightened. Give your creative ideas the "full treatment." They should work out well.

PISCES

Some difficulty in communication likely. Be especially careful in what you tell another "confidentially." It could boomerang.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a great variety of talents and, properly educated, of course, can succeed in many fields. However, you differ from most Librans in several ways: You are not as practical as most. You rebel at routine and established principles, and you are far more emotional than the average Libra-born. A profession would suit your talents far more than a business career, and you could make a truly eminent name for yourself as a playwright, author, architect, lecturer or teacher. The mysteries of science — especially in the electronic field — would also appeal to you. Try not to scatter energies. Complete one project before beginning another. Having too many irons in the fire at one time will only make you nervous and irritable.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Saturday night at Creekfront Stadium there was a football game; but in addition there were some other things that happened.

There were a number of people involved in planning, arranging, conducting, and broadcasting this event. Together, the group exhibited a community spirit that isn't often seen these days — enthusiasm and creativity necessary for an evening of good home town humor; an attitude of friendliness and good sportsmanship that welcomed a new honorary citizen; and perhaps even more important, a commitment to support a worthwhile community project.

Certainly a "round of applause" and a "pat on the back" is in order for all those who gave so freely to make this activity the success that it was.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

We want to take this opportunity to thank, not only the marchers and captains who made the Breath of Life Cystic Fibrosis campaign a real success, but especially we want to thank you, the citizens of the Washington C.H. community for opening your hearts generously to this worthwhile venture. We assure you the contributions will be used wisely to stamp out this disease that is terminal to so many of our children.

If there are any who were not at home Sunday, October 6, when the marchers called, who would like to contribute, an envelope was left at your door for that purpose or if you will call either 335-6977 or 335-4207 we will be glad to call back.

"WE HAVE NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT. WE CAN ALWAYS COUNT ON DETROIT AND THE AMERICAN PUBLIC."

Kid vs. professor in California race

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The 1974 contest for governor of California has been portrayed in prize fight terms: "The Kid vs. The Professor."

The Kid is Edmund G. Brown Jr., 36, Democrat, secretary of state, bachelor son of former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, lean, intense, quick with the political jab.

The Professor is Houston I. Flournoy, 45, Republican, Ivy League Ph.D., family man. He spent 10 years in a college classroom teaching government and 14 years in Sacramento practicing it. More experience, but less zing to his political punch.

Theirs is a tough act to follow, that of polished pro Ronald Reagan, retiring after eight years as chief executive.

The frustration is particularly acute for Flournoy as he battles the residue of Watergate, the pervading issue of inflation, apathy at the GOP grass roots and fund-raising problems common to both parties—but worse for Republicans.

And Democrats are hungry after eight years of California politics dominated by the Republican Reagan, hungry enough to suppress the open bickering that often plagues the party.

Even Republicans acknowledge that all the traditional political signs make Brown the front-runner and the likely winner on Nov. 5 barring a surprise issue or other unexpected development.

The last independent California Poll put Brown ahead 50-36 per cent. It was taken the week former President Richard Nixon resigned.

California also has a U.S. Senate race this year with Democrat Alan Cranston seeking a second term. His foe is 46-year-old H.L. Richardson, one of the most conservative members of the California State Senate and a one-time John Birch Society employe.

Cranston, 59, once one of California's most ardent liberals, has skillfully broadened his political base to include even some of Reagan's wealthy supporters. Political observers say he should win.

But the governor's race is always the big one in California, with the winner collecting national political recognition and prestige.

The campaign is different this year, even aside from Watergate and the economic problems. It is the first time since 1958 that neither man is an incumbent, the first since 1962 (Brown Sr. vs. Nixon) with debates, and the first in which campaign advertising is limited by mutual agreement: $900,000 each.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

He needs his father for a friend

DEAR ABBY: I needed some Scotch tape so I looked in my son's desk for some, and noticed the beginning of a letter my son had written to his girl friend. It read, "I am only interested in being stoned, spending money and sex."

I read no further.

My first impulse was to confront him with this, but then he would say I had no right to go snooping through his desk.

I don't think I should go on ignoring this. I would appreciate some advice. He is 18½.

BEWILDERED FATHER

DEAR FATHER: You could be about 17 years too late. It won't help you now to be reminded that you failed to build the kind of father-son relationship that inspires trust, confidence and total honesty. It's possible that what you read did not reflect your son's thoughts accurately, however

Don't tell him what you saw, but try to get a dialogue going so you can get inside his head. Encourage honesty, and no matter what he says, be cool, and don't put him down or make him feel guilty. If you can develop candid two-way communication you'll be able to influence and eventually help your son. He doesn't need punishment Father, he needs a mature understanding friend.

DEAR ABBY: About a week before our daughter and her steady graduated from high school, they told us that she was pregnant and they wanted to get married..

There was long silence, then my husband said: "We've all made mistakes in our lives, but some of us never got caught. Now you two kids will have to excuse us for five minutes while we plan our daughter's wedding."

Then Dad led me into the bedroom, handed me $25 and said: "Let's see if you're as smart about money now as you were 25 years ago."

Needless to say, time was short, so I went downtown the next morning and bought six yards of yellow cotton, two simple formal patterns, two yards of pink lace, two yards of ivory lace, and some pink and ivory ribbon, all for less than $10. (I had $15 left over for the flowers and reception. Boy, I had money to burn!)

My younger daughter (age 15) and I made the dresses. I baked the wedding cake and made punch. Only the very immediate families were invited to the wedding.

Out minister performed the ceremony in front of our fireplace, which was decorated with greenery from our garden and two white candles. The girls were beautiful in their simple dresses with their long black hair tied back with ribbons to match their dresses. The bride carried a single ivory carnation, and her sister, a pink carnation.

We made sure the fridge was well stocked, and Dad, Sister and I spent the weekend in a neighboring town with Dad's brother.

Dad says I'm still as smart about money as I was 25 years ago.

NO NAMES PLEASE

DEAR NO: You're not only smart about money, you are wise about other things, too. And so is your husband.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BLISSFUL IN EVANSVILLE, INDIANA": You are mistaken. No one said "ignorance is bliss."

The quote is, "Where ignorance is bliss, tis folly to be wise."

Venezuela studies oil management

By NIGEL CUMBERBATCH
Associated Press Writer

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela already is considering the possibility of seeking outside cooperation to meet any problems arising after it takes over the foreign-run petroleum industry next year.

President Carlos Andres Perez and his six-month-old centerleft government currently are preparing for state takeover of the industry, which has been mostly under American oil company management for more than 55 years.

But nothing has been said thus far as to what specific role the foreign companies would play after the nearly three-million-barrels-a-day petroleum industry is nationalized.

"It is too early to give a definite answer regarding the role, if any, that the foreign companies will assume after nationalization," said Valent Hernandez Acosta, Minister of Mines and Hydrocarbons, in an interview with The Associated Press.

"However, careful consideration is being given to this question," said the minister. "We are studying the possible problem areas which may occur after nationalization and, wherever deemed necessary, we will look for outside cooperation and would be willing to negotiate with the companies for providing us with the required services."

Hernandez Acosta heads a special 36-man broad-based commission appointed by Andres Perez shortly after his March 12 inauguration to study and draft recommendations for the takeover next year.

In a separate move, the Ministry of Mines and Hydrocarbons placed 16 nongovernmental experts as observers in the foreign oil companies. The observers will sit in on executive board meetings and their objective is to facilitate nationalization studies.

Government spokesmen say that some of these "observers" are likely candidates to head the state concerns which will take over from the foreign oil companies.

Under Andres Perez post-nationalization suggestion a type of national holding company would be formed and would be the central policy-setting entity controling a group of four operating affiliates.

Some 19 foreign-owned oil companies, including Exxon's Creole Petroleum Corp.; Shell de Venezuela, subsidiary of Royal Dutch Shell; Gulf Oil, Mobil, Sun Oil and Texaco, currently operate the industry which generates more than 90 per cent of the country's foreign income.

Pan Am employes seeking justice

By RALPH IZARD
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The fight for federal help to save economically troubled Pan American World Airways is not restricted to executive suites. It also involves people behind reservation desks, in maintenance hangars and on the runways.

Like the executives, the employes are reacting to the Ford administration's refusal to grant an emergency subsidy that Pan Am has said is crucial to its survival.

The employes have organized in such Pan Am bases as Miami, Berlin, New York, Karachi, San Francisco and San Juan in an effort to keep the company from going under.

They have outlined their complaints in full-page newspaper advertisements — paid for with $10,000 raised among themselves.

Committees have been sent to Washington to talk to congressmen; a group of pilots' wives is distributing copies of an article which outlines alleged unfair treatment; "Support Your U.S. Airline" bumper stickers were printed by employes in a company printing facility; retired stewardesses are donating proceeds from a cookbook they're selling in Miami.

An employes group in Karachi has even offered to return all the overtime pay received last month. Some international crewmen have offered 10 per cent of their salaries as loans.

"It's going beyond the job," said Sandra Del Conte, who has worked at the Miami reservations desk since 1965. "It's a cause. This is the American way. Everybody is pulling together."

They say they're not campaigning for a federal subsidy, but for an end to what they consider unfair treatment.

"It's probably best that we didn't get the subsidy," said Miami cargo department employe Edison Coulter. "Most of the people here don't want subsidy. But we have to get the inequities changed."

Pan Am has about 32,500 workers worldwide. About 3,400 are in Miami.

The inequities, workers explained, are such things as the United States paying foreign carriers more to carry U.S. mail than Pan Am is paid; Pan Am being forced to pay higher landing fees at overseas airports than foreign airlines are charged in this country, and the fact that Pan Am has to pay higher interest rates on loans than the U.S. Export-Import bank charges the foreigners.

"The more the regular Pan Am employe knows about the way this airline has been treated, the madder he gets," said Joseph Hunt, a flight engineer who has been with the company for 32 years. "Why in hell does our State Department sit back and watch one of its own children being chewed up by the people across the street.'

Easy victory for Wilson predicted

LONDON (AP) — An estimated 30 million Britons are voting today to choose who will impose rigid austerity on them and how, and whether Britain's future is with the Common Market or with Washington.

Polls predicted an easy victory for Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson over Edward Heath's Conservatives, but the polls have been dead wrong in Britain's last two elections.

The domestic choice is between Labor's assertion that the way out of Britain's economic crisis is through socialism and the Tories' stress on orthodox conservatism.

Neither choice may prove sufficiently appealing to give either party a majority in Parliament, and there have been indications of an upsurge in the strength of the Liberal party and nationalist parties in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

If neither the Laborites nor the Tories win a majority, Britain may have to settle for a minority government, as it did last February.

To form a majority government, a party has to win at least 318 of the 635 seats in the House of Commons. At dissolution, Labor held 298, the Tories 296, the Liberals 15, the Ulster Unionists 10, Scottish nationalists 7, two seats were vacant and the rest were divided among splinter groups.

Much of the campaign has mired in battles over statistics and in exchanges of invective. But the parties agreed on one point: Britain is living far beyond its means.

Just the facts, M'am . . . where it's sold, when, what size, what qualities, HOW MUCH! Newspaper advertising tells you what you need to know. It doesn't insult your intelligence with exaggeration or cute but meaningless dramatizations. Spending a family's income is serious business and newspaper advertising takes it seriously. Most important, newspaper advertising is PRICE advertising, and those prices are COMPETITIVE. They wouldn't be advertised if they weren't.

BLUEBIRDS

The meeting was opened by the Pledge of Allegiance and Trail Seekers Desire. Kris Satterfield gave a report, and members answered roll call by telling their favorite horses and dues were collected.

Girls were asked to collect on Oct. 13 for the Community Chest from 1 until 4 p.m. and wear their Bluebird hat or pin. Each was asked to bring a 'white elephant' item to the next meeting, to be held in the home of Brenda Annon. Teri Phillips will bring treats for this meeting.

We made plastic pictures for craft. Cheryl Grim had refreshments.

BARGAIN?

Today, all diamonds have determinable value. If a stone has any worthy quality to it, a jeweler can obtain the standard price for it and doesn't need to sell it to you "wholesale." Many so-called "bargain" diamonds have first been marked up in order to be "slashed down." It costs no more to buy your diamond from a reputable firm with qualified personnel to properly evaluate the stone you select. TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC-TV is bumping its low-rated "Sierra" series tonight for an excellent documentary about Xenia, Ohio, the small town devastated by a killer tornado last April and still rebuilding today.

The program isn't one of those quickies in which a network team checks right in after the event, returns six months later for progress footage, then pastes it all together and calls it a documentary.

It instead covers the Xenia story in stages, from the actual tragedy, to the town's effort to assess its losses and dig itself out, and finally to the long summer of still-continuing reconstruction.

Entitled "Tornado! 4:40 p.m., Xenia, Ohio," the opening segment includes not only close-up footage of the twister, filmed with a home movie camera by a Xenia resident, but also the actual sound of the tornado, recorded by another local resident.

It's chilling, spectacular material, to be sure, but the real meat of NBC's show lies in the quiet, low-key way it goes about reporting the reactions of the townsfolk to what had happened and what they hope will happen.

It makes particularly good use of photographs of the city's "old north end," taken the summer before the tornado by Xenia's former mayor, to illustrate what the storm had done to streets of stately old wood homes once surrounded by rows of elderly maple trees.

The verbal contrasts are equally good. A 14-year-old boy, recalling the moments after the twister passed on, said he heard no birds singing, and saw no neighborhood pets, "just people and trash."

His father, whose home and camera shop were destroyed, says he and his family aren't leaving, that "this tornado, dammit, is not going to have the last word."

The show primarily is about spirit and the spirit it conveys, is a good, hopeful one that should be seen by those of us who are convinced the nation has long since departed for hell in a handbasket.

Producer George Murray obviously put in a lot of time, care and thought on this show, as did writer Patrick Trese, who also skillfully handled most of the interviews in the one-hour program.

Blue Cross chief urges public help

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The president of Blue Cross of Northeast Ohio BCNO today challenged the public to join the fight against rising health care costs.

"We can tinker with the fiscal and mechanical details of the health care system forever, but until we can achieve an understanding and mastery of health care needs and demands, we will never gain effective control over costs," said Vernon R. Burt in remarks prepared for a public hearing sponsored by the Ohio Insurance Department.

He urged both the public and government to support BCND's efforts to seek solutions to the major problems that affect the health of Americans, including housing, malnutrition, pollution, inaccessibility to health services, alcoholism and drug addiction.

Burt was the opening speaker at the hearing, which was the last of a series conducted around the state on health care costs and needs. The hearings were called by Kenneth DeShetler, Ohio insurance commissioner.

Burt said BCNO would like to join the Department of Insurance in the development of legislation that:

—Would give the plan authority to underwrite all forms of institutional health care furnished by any organization which has demonstrated the giving of quality care at a reasonable cost;

—Would give the plan discretionary authority to contract with an individual hospital or other institutional provider;

—Would eliminate any restrictions requiring an earned surplus to remain as a surplus only for a particular line of business;

—Would strengthen the present authority of Blue Cross Plan to control costs through its provider contract; to further contract for quality assurance and utilization review; the authority to experiment with and develop alternative forms of reimbursement and health care delivery.

Burt said BCNO would favor such legislation as long as it was "not so specific as to be restrictive or prohibit flexibility."

Farm leaders see no drop in price

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Two Midwest Farm Bureau executives indicated farmers grudgingly will go along with President Ford's income tax surcharge but warned housewives not to expect food prices to drop during the battle against inflation.

"The surtax was a practical statement," said C. William Swank, executive vice president, Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. "When you send young men to fight a war, some people might think that's unfair, but it's practical."

Swank and George Doup, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau, held a joint news conference Wednesday to discuss farm prices.

Swank asserted that higher food prices were a "frustration but not a cause of inflation."

He attacked organized labor for insisting unions are not causing inflation.

"Asking for more money and not producing more product is inflationary by definition," said Swank.

"In agriculture, we have increased production per acre, per man hour and by any other measure."

Swank said food prices will go down only when all other prices drop because the prices are determined by the cost of production.

Doup said full production sought by President Ford will only come if farmers can expect good prices. Otherwise farmers will leave the land and "go to town to work.

"If we have the prospect of satisfactory prices, farmers will produce," said Doup. "The farmer loves to produce. He doesn't to cut back. He gets better profit by producing, but he has to have a good price to give him encouragement."

Swank insisted that food costs remain a smaller portion of the family consumer budget than five or 10 years ago.

"We've lost our benchmark and the housewife doesn't know what things ought to cost," said Swank.

Both said the cancellation of the contract to sell wheat to the Soviet Union will hurt farm exports.

"This will cause other countries to wonder when they place food orders if they will be filled," Doup said.

Both defended U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

Doup said Butz is not responsible for this year's poor weather. "We've had a triple whammy this year—a real wet spring, a dry summer and early frost."

Swank said Butz spoke with "candor" during the economic summit that farmers are entitled to the higher prices.

Night meets mark Kissinger trip

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is spending the day sightseeing before he and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat sit down tonight to talk over peace negotiations for the Middle East.

Sadat is precluded from daytime meetings because this is the lunar month of Ramadan, during which Moslems must observe a strict fast until sundown.

Kissinger's tour itinerary includes a visit to a fortress built by Saladin, the 12th century Ayyubite sultan of Egypt whose conquests included the Latin kingdom of Jerusalem.

But after sundown Kissinger and Sadat turn their attention to more contemporary Mideast strife in a session expected to last at least until 2 a.m.

On his sixth Mideast tour since the 1973 October war, Kissinger arrived in Cairo on Wednesday night and immediately met with Sadat and Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy.

"I had a very good talk with an old friend and a full review of the situation," Kissinger said.

But the statesmen revealed nothing about any progress toward resuming Arab-Israeli negotiations.

A senior U.S. official said earlier that Washington opposes early resumption of the Geneva peace talks, co-sponsored by the United States and the Soviet Union. He said the United States prefers negotiations outside the conference room.

Egyptian sources said Sadat wants a Geneva session before the end of the year. He was reported eager to avoid irritating the Russians at a time when Soviet-Egytian relations are improving.

Hours before Kissinger's arrival, the Egyptians pointedly issued a statement repeating that Fahmy is flying to Moscow on Monday to prepare for a visit to Cairo by Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and apparently to ask the Soviets to resume arms shipments.

Sources here said Sadat also needs another session of the Geneva talks to stave off criticism by militant Arab states that the peace process has foundered since Egypt, Syria and Israel separated their forces last winter and spring.

After tonight's talks, Kissinger flies to Damascus, Jordan and Israel. Then, after a call to Saudi Arabia, he may return for brief stops in Cairo and Damascus.

See Turkish turn to west Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Turkey probably would turn to Western European nations for arms if hit by a ban on U.S. military aid, U.S. officials say.

The Senate voted 62 to 19 Wednesday to prohibit further military aid to Turkey, but hours later, under threat of presidential veto, agreed to a resolution that would allow President Ford to suspend the ban until Dec. 15.

The resolution, offered by Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, was sent to the House, which already has approved the arms cutoff.

The Turkey arms prohibition is contained in a continuing money resolution that provides funds for foreign and other federal programs, for which regular annual appropriations have not been approved yet.

Ford had threatened to veto the money bill because of the amendment to halt military aid to Turkey, but Mansfield said the President had agreed to sign the bill if both branches passed the resolution to suspend the cutoff temporarily.

Under the resolution, Turkey could continue to receive U.S. arms until Dec. 15 if the President determines that continued military aid will help negotiations for a peaceful settlement in Cyprus.

Should the ban take effect, however, U.S. officials say several Western European countries likely would be prepared to step in and provide weapons to Turkey.

West Germany already gives and sells military hardware to Turkey, they say.

Italy has sold helicopters to the Turks and U.S. officials say the Italians are interested in selling them fighters.

"The French are always in the wings," said an American official, referring to France's extensive arms sales campaigns in many parts of the world.

Ohio Perspective

Battle obscurity for office

By CLINT SWIFT
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—At least four candidates for national and state office from northeastern Ohio are challenging one of the most formidable opponents a politician can face — relative obscurity.

Of the four — two from each end of the political spectrum — three seek the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum. One has joined the race for lieutenant governor.

Philip Lazar and Herman Kirsch are Socialist Workers Party candidates for senator and lieutenant governor, respectively. Richard Kay, state chairman of the American Independent Party, and Kathleen Harroff, state chairman of the Libertarian Party, also seek to succeed Metzenbaum.

Lazar, 25, making his first run for public office, is a veteran of antiwar and trade union movements. He was Ohio coordinator of the Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, which packed off 17 busloads of Clevelanders to the April, 1971, peace march in Washington, D.C.

He also was an officer of the Peace Committee of Local 46 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

Lazar considers his background good training for a senator.

"I'd scream bloody murder at any new Watergate-type revelations," he said. "I'm appalled to learn that congressmen knew since April what President Ford admitted last week—that the CIA has continually intervened in places like Chile."

One good way to fight inflation would be to cut back on government spending for its 2,000 military bases around the world, or use the money to build schools, hospitals and low-income housing, he suggested.

Kirsch, bespectacled 53-year-old tool grinder from Shaker Heights, cleaves to his party's line in opposing the two major political parties on grounds they merely support a capitalistic system which needs changing.

He said he would spread the SWP doctrine of a 30-hour work week for 40 hours pay to reduce unemployment and for an independent labor party to represent workers.

The U.S. is one of only two or three major nations in the Western World without such a party, Kirsch said.

"Government estimates 100,000 workers are killed in job-related accidents every year, and over a million are injured," he said. "Under any humanitarian system you'd expect to find a cash program to stop such carnage.

"But little appears being done and I don't think you'll find the Republicans or Democrats biting the big business or big labor hands that feed them."

Kay, a Cleveland attorney and conservative activist, noted for his defense of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., said he is running for the Senate as an independent to give voters a candidate they know is not involved in Watergate-type political operations.

"Ralph Perk's endorsement of the Nixon pardon and John Glenn's willingness to toe the Democratic party line in return for support shows my opponents are more concerned with party loyalty than with loyalty to principle," said Kay.

Kay advocates repeal of the federal law authorizing Americans to give $1 from income tax returns to one of the major political parties. He would replace it with a bill allocating money to educate people in their responsibility to support their favorite candidates with a small contribution.

"Ultimately the American people is responsible for Watergate," Kay said. "They have abdicated their responsibility to support candidates to big-money interests.

"With a good public relations campaign we could raise the number of persons contributing to political campaigns in this country from 500,000 to 10 million. And, it would dilute the influence of big labor and big business."

Miss Harroff, a manufacturer's representative from Bedford, has opposed government economic controls, federal aid to schools and prosecution of "victimless" crimes such as obscenity, prostitution and drug use.

Ohio Bell asks rate increase immediately

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Bell Telephone Co. says it wants to implement a 33 per cent rate hike immediately, without waiting for formal approval by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

Charles Day, an Ohio Bell spokesman, said the company will ask the PUCO to approve the immediate hike before full consideration of the new rates. He said refunds would be made if the increases ultimately are disapproved.

The telephone company announced the rate increase Wednesday. A company spokesman said the average $8 per month charge for a residential telephone will increase by about one-third, to $10.65, under the proposal.

The 33 per cent rate increase for both residential and business customers would affect some two million customers in one-third of the state served by the company.

The exact rate hike proposal will be submitted with tariff requests to the PUCO next month.

Ohio Bell is trying to find methods to cope with inflation with fair cost distribution, said William R. Gustaferro, assistant Ohio Bell vice president in charge of rates.

"We're seeking alternatives to place the increases where we incur our costs and on those who make greater use of our services than others," he said.

Alternatives suggested included:

—Charge for directory assistance after three calls a month.

—Increase the cost for telephone installation and disconnection.

—Measured business service exclusively throughout the state.

—Opportunity for residential customers to use measured service, outside of Cleveland where it now exists.

—Raising the present rate on public pay telephones from 10 cents a call to 15 or 20 cents a basic call.

Under the plan for measured service for residential customers payments would be standard for a maximum number of telephone calls. Above that number customers would be charged.

Bank failures

But the FDIC still is paying to salvage the remains of the U.S. National Bank of San Diego, which was responsible for $934 million in deposits when it went under and was sold to Crocker National Bank of San Francisco. The latest estimate pegged the cost to the FDIC at $48.3 million.

And now the insuring agency faces the prospect of picking up after the Franklin National Bank, which held deposits of $1.7 billion when it was sold to European-American Bank and Trust Co. Tuesday. The FDIC hasn't estimated its costs for Franklin.

Federal officials consider both cases to be caused by problems unique to the two banks rather than any other underlying defect in the banking system.

In the San Diego instance, officials point to dealings between the various corporations controlled by C. Arnholt Smith, the bank's controlling shareholder. The Franklin situation was tied to the bank's speculation in foreign currency transactions, they say.

The fund amounts to only 1.21 per cent of all insured deposits, but assurances of repayment go deeper. When a bank fails, the FDIC steps in to take over a bank's property and assets to make sure depositors get their money first.

"WE'RE ON THE ENERGY TEAM!"

"Our whole company is saving energy. The Government has asked corporations to reduce energy consumption 15%, and is providing guidance and incentive awards. We're saving on heating and air conditioning with better insulation and more efficient systems. And that giant sign on the roof that used to burn all-night—we turn it off at 10:30 now."

"I'm helping increase the capacity of an oil refinery so we can help meet the increased demands for gasoline and other usable forms of energy."

There's a big gap between domestic refining capacity and domestic energy needs, a gap that must be closed. To do it, we have to expand existing refineries or build new ones, so that our refining capacity can handle the growing demand for energy.

It will take everyone's understanding and cooperation to get this expansion and new construction going.

Jim Smith to head SCOL student council

Jim Smith, a senior at Washington Senior High School, has been elected president of the South Central Ohio League student council.

Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith, 623 S. Main St., was elected on the first ballot. He was opposed by Kirk Riff, of Miami Trace, and Geoff Phillips, of Wilmington.

He will preside over the SCOL student council meetings and plan the annual olympics and talent show.

"I feel that this is a great honor, and I hope I can do my very best for the league council," Smith said.

Schools in the SCOL are Washington C.H., Miami Trace, Wilmington, Hillsboro, Greenfield, Circleville and Unioto.

Fair weather favors nation

By The Associated Press

Clear skies were the rule across the nation today, although scattered showers remained over the Rockies.

Clouds also blanked the sun in parts of the Great Lakes region, New England and Washington.

New England claimed the coldest weather, with most of the nation having temperatures overnight from the 40s to the 60s.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 25 at Houlton, Maine, to 78 at Key West, Fla.

Vicki Lindsay and Brian Galloway

Seniors of the Week

Vicki Lindsay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lindsay, 549 Warren Ave., is the first featured senior.

Vicki enjoys reading, biking, listening to classical and modern music, collecting coins and "just being with people." She is an active member of AFS, Senior Y-Teens, the National Honor Society, marching band and concert band. She is also on the In-the-Know team and writes for the Blue Lines.

Following graduation, she plans to attend either Miami University or Bowling Green University where she will major in history.

Her advice to the underclassmen was, "Enjoy your years at WSHS and utilize all of the available opportunities to better prepare for the world after graduation."

BRIAN GALLOWAY, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Galloway, 510 Damon Drive, is a very active senior at WSHS.

He is enrolled in the college preparatory program for a major in engineering at Ohio State University. Academically, he proves himself through his election to Who's Who in American High School students and also serving for the second year on the In-the-Know team.

In 1972, he was a member of the general science team representing Washington C.H. in the Ohio Scholastic Test. The team achieved first place in the state with Galloway receiving third place in Ohio Division I and eighth overall. In 1973, he received 17th place in the district geometry and sixth place in the district American History in 1974. He was also an active participant in last year's school play.

When asked about his feelings of WSHS Brian said, "I have found my years at WSHS to be very rewarding. I have seen both disheartment and jubilation, but as long as I live, my memories of WSHS will be fond ones."

County loses construction regulation

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP) — Clermont County, a fast-developing area east of Cincinnati, has 15 days to appeal a state order which stripped its building department of power to regulate major construction.

The Ohio Board of Building Standards (OBBS) in Columbus took the action Wednesday saying the county department had failed to improve its inspection program during a probationary year.

Harold Bisantz, the lone Republican on the three-man board of county commissioners said he "was not the least bit surprised.

The state action, however, allows the building department to inspect construction of dwellings for three families or less.

All other projects, beginning Dec. 1, must be submitted to the Ohio Division of Factories and Building Inspectors in Columbus. Building permits will be issued in Columbus.

Violations of the state building code which posed threats of serious injury or deaths to occupants were discovered by an inspection team a year ago, according to OBBS Executive Director Hershel Davidson.

Davidson said the state took action after the Clermont department failed to improve.

"They have been making money off the people and haven't been giving them any service," said Davidson. "The people are being shortchanged."

The revocation also applies to municipalities served by the Clermont inspection office: Amelia, Batavia, Bethel, New Richmond, Newtonsville, Neville, Moscow, Owensville and Williamsburg.

An invasion

By SUE MOORE

Yes folks, that's right!

The plastic people are without a doubt invading the high school. And with them, they brought a monster called conformity. These plastic people are rampaging the halls every single day. A plastic person, by definition, is one who refuses to show his true idenity. He tends to put on an act, just so he can be like everyone else. This is where that monster, comformity, comes in. Of course, that's only a natural reaction.

No one wants to be labeled a "wierdo" by his friends, so he puts on a flase face just to keep them happy. But, in doing so, he loses his true idenity, and thus becomes a plastic person. I'd like to challenge all of the plastic people at Washington Senior High to rip off their false faces and help stop the monster that's stalking the halls.

Are you 18?

Ohio Selective Service Director Paul A. Corey reminds all 18-year-old men that the law requires them to register for the "draft" during the period 30 days before or 30 days after their 18th birthday.

Although there are no longer any inductions into the armed forces, registration is part of the law. Do not forget to register — the responsibility lies with you! It takes only a few minutes. You may register at WSHS by seeing Mr. Don Gibbs personally in the counselor's office between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Atomic plant expands force

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Employment at the Portsmouth area atomic energy plant will increase by more than 20 per cent by 1979 under the plant's current expansion program, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Vincent J. DeVito, superintendent of nuclear material control for Goodyear Atomic Corp., said the present fuel and energy situation is increasing the demand for enriched uranium and nuclear plants.

The Portsmouth plant is steadily improving its facilities, he said.

The plant now has more than 1,800 employes, and about 2,200 will be working there by 1979, DeVito said.

GAA designed for any girl

By JULIA FOSTER

"We are starting out small and part of the reason is because people have the misconception that GAA is only for the girl athlete." This is the thought of GAA advisor Mrs. Nikki Eyre. She stresses that GAA is an organization for all girls interested in any type of sport. It is to incorporate even the least skilled person who just wants to have fun with sports, not just the super girl athlete.

This organization is open to any girl in grades 9-12. The primary function of the club is to encourage girls who are interested in sports and to plan and help organize girls intermurials. There are conferences and meetings (Play Day at Miami University and Leadership Convention) where the girls can go and learn about activities available in girls sports. Camp outs and bike-hikes are a couple of the special activities being planned for the GAA club. GAA is an organization that hopefully will help present girls athletics prove that there is a place for girls in sports and that it will be more accepted."

Lower speed limit largely ignored

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

Despite ticket blitzes and radar traps, the 55 mile-per-hour national speed limit is being largely ignored by American drivers, according to state highway patrols.

People are driving slower than in years past, but speeds have crept upward as gasoline shortages disappeared, an Associated Press survey shows.

Cars on Interstate 90 in South Dakota now average 61.9 m.p.h., up from 54.5 m.p.h. in June. The average speed on Oregon roads was just over 61 m.p.h. in September. Texas officials reported that 85 per cent of all motorists are driving at between 62 and 65 m.p.h.

Drivers on interstate highways in Illinois now average 68 m.p.h.

"We don't have the manpower to enforce it, but we are doing the best we can," a state police spokesman said of the 55 m.p.h. limit.

Nationwide, few people are traveling at the 70 and 80 m.p.h. speeds formerly common on major highways. Despite widespread driving at 5 to 10 m.p.h. above the new speed limit, experts say significant gasoline savings are still being realized by the greater efficiency of automobile engines at the generally lower speeds on American roads.

Police in some states will give drivers a few miles more than the 55 m.p.h. limit, but the number of speeding tickets has soared as drivers pressed down on the accelerator again.

State police in Indiana, Missouri, Wisconsin and Texas have handed out twice as many speeding citations as in 1973. The Colorado State Patrol issued 13,251 speeding tickets in August, up from 6,277 a year ago. Oregon State Police ticketed 100,485 speeders in the first eight months of this year, up from 46,271 in the same period last year.

The 55 m.p.h. speed limit was adopted by many states as a gasoline saving measure after the Arab oil boycott last October. It was made nationwide by the federal government in March when gasless Sundays and service station lines were a national fixture.

Rhodes proposes federal help for fuel bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Former Gov. James A. Rhodes called Wednesday for the federal government to begin paying part of the utility bills of retired persons on fixed income.

In a statement released by his campaign headquarters, the Republican gubernatorial nominee said rates for gas and electricity and other utilities should be frozen, with the government picking up the tab for future increases.

Rhodes indicated the program in Ohio would cost about $200 million a year in two or three years, at a rate of $200 to $250 per year for about one million retired Ohioans.

Rhodes compared the proposal with Medicare and Medicaid programs.

Music director in own class

Charlene Archibeque is a woman in a class of her own.

To look at her slim, graceful features, her demeanor relaxed and informal, one would scarcely believe she is world reknown for her precision and expertise in music technique.

However, her enthusiasm, intelligence and sensitivity have combined to form the prestigious music director respected by her San Jose State University students and international music educators alike.

THE DAUGHTER of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Paullin of 15 Colonial Court, she is not only choir director and music professor at the California college, but is also director of the San Jose Symphony and auxiliary chorus director of the San Francisco Opera Chorus.

Charlene returned to Washington C.H. for a short, Labor Day weekend with her parents after returning from a trip to Nova Scotia. The visit was the first in four years but as Mrs. Paullin said, "It's hard to see her when she is so busy."

A 1953 graduate of Mount Sterling High School, Charlene began teaching at San Jose in 1970, having received her master's degree from San Diego State University and her doctorate from the University of Colorado.

In 1973, her California Bay Area College Chorale traveled to the Fifth International Choir Festival at The Hague, Netherlands, and returned with first place honors. That same year, Dr. Archibeque was named Outstanding Educator of America.

Dr. Archibeque has also conducted choirs in Sweden, Denmark, West and East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria and Switzerland to extend a long list of performances around the globe. She traveled 75,000 miles in 10 months during the past year.

Several other international invitations had to be declined due to a huge work schedule already employed by Dr. Archibeque.

In December, Dr. Archibeque and the San Jose State University Chorale will join the San Jose Symphony in the rarely performed Ralph Vaughan Williams' "A Sea Symphony."

Dr. Archibeque said recently she believed her mid-western background provided her with a sound musical base. She started in music at the age of six receiving lessons in piano, violin and percussion.

Dr. Archibeque believes very strongly in the importance of music education at the elementary level.

"EVERY CHILD born deserves to be taught music, and they should get it in the early grades along with reading, writing and arithmetic. Nor should it be difficult. I can teach anyone to read music in three hours time," she said. She founded the San Diego Youth Chorale.

Dr. Archibeque is now president of the California Music Educators Association and the Northwest Music Educators Association, while also acting as choir director of a Presbyterian Church near San Francisco.

Teaching music is more than just a career — or inspiration — to Dr. Archibeque. "This, in essence, is my religion: to share what I have — my knowledge, my vitality and my enthusiasm."

AIRPORT NEWS

By SANDY WOODMANSEE

These past few days have certainly been busy. . .

Dock Holder and John have been doing freight charter work and have flown several charter flights to Teetersboro, N.J., Willow Run, Lansing, and Detroit City airports in Michigan and Elkhart, Indiana.

Thomas Industries twin Beech has been in several times. . .a helicopter from Aerial Patrol, Inc. out of Canton, Ohio stopped in along with a Douglas DC-3 from Toronto, Canada which picked up freight from Greenfield Plastics. Trinity Industries of Carrollton, Texas in their Mitsubishi MU-2 brought passengers in for a business meeting in Washington C.H.

John received his instrument instructor's rating this past week and Mike Prickett is the first pilot to collect his "REWARD" - all licensed pilots are eligible - see your local "Airport Sheriff" for more information. . .

In between the blowing winds, many students have been taking advantage of the clear air. . . Kirby Hidy took his first dual cross-country, other solo cross-countries were completed by Dick Beechler and George Teets. Other local pilots flying have been Eddie Pendergraft, Jim Morrison, Larry Soldan, Dr. Charles Pfersick, Bill Dennis, Bob Woodmansee, Al Allridge, Mike Prickett, Ken Vincent, Joe Kingery, Jack Sanders, Bill DaRif, Larry East, Bob Wilson, Art Beverly, Mike Thompson, Louie Poole, Bob Snodgrass, Brian Garber, Millard French and Dr. Jack Yager.

Ford wants solid summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford would like to recharge the drive toward improved U.S.-Soviet relations by meeting this year with Russian Communist party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, but only if there is prior progress in major negotiating areas.

Ford said in his news conference Wednesday, "If there is reason for us to meet before that (the U.S.-Soviet summit meeting scheduled for 1975), I will certainly consider it."

Ford said he had promised when he took office to continue the detente policy of former President Richard M. Nixon and took up the subject with various Soviet officials, including foreign minister Andrei Gromyko about two weeks ago.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will discuss a possible 1974 Brezhnev-Ford meeting when he spends four days in Moscow later this month, the President said.

After the news conference, other U.S. officials said Ford is not interested in a mere get-acquainted meeting, strongly preferring serious discussions.

They said that in line with this thinking, Ford has made substantive progress a prerequisite in such areas as nuclear arms talks and balanced troop reductions in Central Europe.

What Ford wants as a precondition progress in the second round of strategic arms limitation talks, or SALT II, is an indication that a previous split in the U.S. administration on a negotiating position may be over.

The pace of detente has slowed considerably since Kissinger failed to achieve the expected progress on SALT II when he last visited Moscow last summer.

When Kissinger leaves for Russia, "We will have some guidelines for him to discuss in a preliminary way with the Soviet Union," Ford said.

There had been disagreement between Kissinger and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger over the scope of any pact limiting offensive nuclear arms as well as over the numbers involved.

Discharging firearm case dismissed here by judge

A case charging a city man with discharging a firearm within the city limits was dismissed in Municipal Court Wednesday.

The case against Lester P. LeMaster, 24, Rt. 4, was dismissed by acting Judge John P. Case after he found the defense motion to dismiss well made. LeMaster, who was defended by Otis R. Hess Jr., pleaded innocent to the charge. Gary Smith served as attorney for the prosecution.

John C. Sullivan, 59, of 914 E. Market St., was fined $50 Wednesday by Judge Case on a charge of disorderly conduct by intoxication. Sullivan, who was under $100 bond, had pleaded guilty to the charge.

Only three traffic cases were filed in Municipal Court Wednesday with all forfeiting bonds.

Robert W. Fox, 19, Mt. Sterling, forfeited $25 for failure to drive upon the right half of the roadway, and Lester P. LeMaster, 24, Rt. 4, forfeited a total of $175 bond on charges of speeding and operating a vehicle while his license was under suspension.

Consulate hostages freed as terrorists leave country

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — American diplomat Barbara Hutchison was in good spirits and joking after seven leftist terrorists released her and six other hostages in return for safe conduct out of the country.

"Suddenly I became a tremendous bargain. I went from a million to nothing," the 47-year-old American quipped to newsmen Wednesday night after the 13-day episode ended.

The gunmen originally demanded $1 million ransom and the release of 37 leftist prisoners. They got nothing except a safe getaway.

The terrorists, who had held the hostages since Sept. 27 in a second-floor room of the Venezuelan consulate, were flown aboard a special Dominican jet to Panama, where they proclaimed victory and said they were exhausted.

As they left the Boeing 727 at Tocumen International Airport near Panama City, the gunmen, led by leftist Radhames Mendez Vargas, were met by Lt. Col. Manuel Antonio Noriega, chief intelligence officer of the Panamanian National Guard.

Miss Hutchison, director of the U.S. Information Service in the Dominican Republic, said she and the other hostages were treated well during the siege and even developed "something of a friendship" with their captors.

But she said there were many tense moments, the most difficult being "the waiting and then the various crises as they occur. There was a package of dynamite, and we were living with that."

She said that gunmen and hostages alike often were short of water. The government intermittently allowed food and drink to be taken to those inside the consulate.

Miss Hutchison told newsmen that despite her ordeal she intends to continue her tour in the Dominican Republic that began in 1972 after a long USIS career in other parts of Latin America.

"Mendez bet me $5 that I would have to leave the Dominican Republic because (he said) all diplomatic kidnap victims have to leave the country once they are freed," she said.

Bad crops hurt stock producers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reduced 1974 grain harvests continue to bear heavily on livestock producers and there is a good chance the situation may worsen after today's crop report by the Agriculture Department.

Officials prepared to issue updated production estimates for corn, soybeans, wheat, and many other crops at 3 p.m. EDT today. Private forecasters already have indicated further declines as the result of frost damage to corn and soybeans last month.

The figures will be based on USDA surveys made Oct. 1. A month earlier, when similar surveys were made, the fall harvest situation looked like this:

Corn — 4.99 billion bushels, down 11 per cent from 1973 output.

Soybeans — 1.32 billion bushels, down 16 per cent from last year.

Wheat — 1.79 billion bushels, up 5 per cent from 1973.

Cotton — 13.2 million bales, up 2 per cent from last year.

Meantime, on the eve of today's crop report, the department said "feed supplies and prices are the critical concerns" facing livestock producers in the coming year.

"Prospects for reduced feed grain and soybean output have resulted in rising prices and cutbacks in livestock feeding," the department's Outlook and Situation Board said.

"Hog producers are planning to farrow the fewest number of sows this fall since 1965," the board reported. "Numbers of cattle on feed are the fewest in over six years, and poultry production is being cut a tenth."

The board, in a preliminary report on the livestock and meat situation, noted that it takes time for producers to adjust to grain price developments and that hog slaughter will continue to be up this fall from a year ago.

"But look for smaller supplies and higher prices next year," the report said.

Cattle slaughter is up from a year ago and last summer, with all of the increase coming from cows and steers and heifers which have had little grain fed to them.

"Grain-fed cattle slaughter is trailing last fall but probably will total a little larger than in the (past) summer," the report said. "Average cattle slaughter weights are now lighter than in the summer or a year ago."

Officials said market prices of grain-fed cattle probably will average $42 to $44 per 100 pounds at Omaha during the fourth quarter and may rise to the $43 to $45 range in the first quarter or 1975. In the fourth quarter of last year, they averaged slightly over $40.

Hogs were estimated at $33 to $35 per hundredweight on the average at Midwest markets in the fourth quarter, down from nearly $41 in October-December last year. The outlook for the first quarter of 1975 is in the $38 to $40 range.

Hunter-safety course scheduled for Sunday

A special hunter-safety course will be held at the Fayette County Fish and Game Association lodge on Stafford Road from 1:30 until 4:30 p.m. Sunday. The annual event provides an opportunity for professional instruction in safe gun handling and "firearms etiquette" in the home and in the field.

Fayette County game protector Jerry Cremeans will conduct the course and he will be assisted by experienced members of the local sportsmen's organization. Cremeans will actually demonstrate the safe handling techniques, show movies on the subject from the National Rifle Association, and give an informal quiz at the conclusion of the program to measure the students' understanding. Attractive shoulder patches will be awarded to participants. Adults as well as younger hunters are urged to participate in the course.

Some actual practice shooting under carefully controlled conditions will be conducted and students may bring their own rifles or shotguns and ammunition.

Market poor for old newspapers

By JACK LEFLER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bottom has dropped out of the market for old newspapers.

"The market is very soft," said Harold Cowan, owner of AAA Industrial Paper Supply of Los Angeles, a firm that buys old newspapers for recycling into newsprint and industrial products.

The price has slumped from $32 a ton six months ago to $10 for domestic use and $5 for export.

Early this year there was a scramble for old newspapers, with Japanese and Korean interests grabbing a big percentage of the market and driving the price up. Now there is a surplus.

Japanese sources, commenting on the slowdown in paper imports, noted that their country's economy, which has been growing at a rate of 10 per cent a year for the last two decades, has slowed down and this has affected imports of all types.

In 1972, Japan and Korea shipped about 2,200 tons of old newspapers a month from Southern California ports.

As the demand rose, a monthly shipment of 12,000 tons was projected for 1974, but it should fall far short.

Cowan said he has a surplus of newspapers on hand, hasn't bought any in eight weeks and probably won't for another two weeks. This has put a crimp in collection drives by schools and churches, but their efforts are still going on to a limited extent.

Probably the biggest user of old newspaper for recycling into newsprint is Garden State Paper Co. with plants in Pomona, Calif., Garfield, N.J., and Alsip, Ill.

Sixty-five newspapers in California and about 200 throughout the country are using recycled newsprint.

"Although prices for waste newspapers have dropped in recent weeks, the general paper industry, particularly on the West Coast, is stronger today than at any time since World War II," said Richard B. Scudder, chairman of Garden State.

"Today's waste newspaper prices are higher than any paid since January 1973, when an unexpected export demand resulted in unprecedented high prices.

"The so-called current drop in prices occurred as the export market closed off its purchases and the domestic market adjusted to the situation."

Lifer gets chance for prison parole

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

FOLSOM, Calif. (AP) — "I sure would like to go home. I haven't seen the moon or the stars in 44 years."

Ernest Dias has lived in a prison cell since 1930, when at the age of 24 he was convicted of killing a young couple in an attempted holdup.

Now, thanks to a recent court decision, he faces the prospect of parole next month.

"It's just one of those things. You've got to take the bitter with the sweet," Dias said in an interview with a fellow inmate at Folsom State Prison, where Dias has spent the last 33 years. The interview appeared in the September issue of the Folsom Observer.

Dias, who grew up in the Oakland area, originally received the death sentence, but it was commuted to life imprisonment with no chance of parole. He spent the first 11 years in San Quentin Prison before being transferred to Folsom.

After capital punishment was abolished, the courts held the no-parole sentence unconstitutional. Last month an Alameda County Superior Court judge reviewed Dias' case and ordered he be given a hearing before the Adult Authority, now set for November.

"I have hope now after all these years," Dias said. "I've had enough of this place. I've seen the light. I want to keep working, possibly on a farm, when I'm paroled. The outside world will be strange, but I'll get used to it. I'll have to adjust."

Dias' prison counselor, William French, isn't so sure.

"It's as if he's been in a time capsule. He hasn't really thought about parole plans in the past, because of the sentence," French said. "Unless he has somewhere to go, it's cruel and unusual punishment to take someone after 44 years and say, 'Here's the street, goodby.'"

Prison records show Dias has a brother in San Jose and a sister-in-law somewhere in California, but he has received only three or four visits during the past 15 years.

Metzenbaum wants oil chief out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard Metzenbaum said Wednesday he hopes President Ford will withdraw the nomination of a former Exxon oil executive to a federal energy post.

The Ohio Democrat said the nominee, Melvin A. Conant, received a $90,000 gift from the company when he quit to work for the government.

Metzenbaum said Conant, who has been acting director of international economic affairs of the Federal Energy Administration, is "oil company oriented, but I want to emphasize I do not question the man's integrity."

Metzenbaum said he told Conant that he, Metzenbaum, feels the oil company "has him" because of the bonus the company gave him.

All Nixon appointments requiring Senate confirmation are going to be withdrawn by the White House and resubmitted following the congressional recess, Metzenbaum explained.

"I would hope that the new President would recognize the American public would have difficulty in understanding this kind of person being put in a position of this kind of responsibility," he said.

Metzenbaum said he would vote against confirmation if Conant's name in resubmitted for the post.

Joan Kennedy faces DWI charges

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Joan Kennedy, the wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has been charged with driving under the influence of alcohol after her convertible crashed into the back of an auto stopped for a street light.

Fairfax County police said the charge on conviction carries maximum penalties of a year in jail and a $1,000 fine, and suspension of driver's license for six months. Police said, however, that such penalties are reserved for very grave cases that usually involve injuries or fleeing the scene of the accident, circumstances that don't exist in Mrs. Kennedy's case.

Police said Mrs. Kennedy was administered a breathalyzer test, but they would not disclose the results. The charge of driving under the influence is the only charge in the state of Virginia if alcohol or drugs are found above a certain level.

Mrs. Kennedy was alone in her car driving southbound on Route 123 at about 1:45 p.m. EDT Wednesday when her auto struck another southbound vehicle at an intersection. The other vehicle, driven by Edward F. McGrath, 49, of nearby Vienna, Va., was pushed into the car ahead driven by Mrs. Carol A. Pinder, 25, also of Vienna.

All three cars sustained damages that police said totaled around $1,400.

McGrath said Mrs. Kennedy was very apologetic after the chain-reaction collision and that she said she was "pleased there were no children in the cars at the time."

McGrath, a civilian employe in the Pentagon's telecommunications center, said he detected no sign that Mrs. Kennedy had been drinking.

"If she had been drinking, it didn't appear to be in any great degree," McGrath said.

Mrs. Kennedy recently has spent time in rest homes in Connecticut and California.

Rural mishaps are checked

Two accidents were investigated Wednesday by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

A car driven by Michael A. Dillon, 19, Hillsboro, incurred slight damage when it ran over an article which fell off a truck driven by John E. King, 58, Lynchburg, that the Dillon car was following on Ohio 41. Sheriff's deputies stated the mishap occurred at the New Martinsburg Road intersection at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. No one was injured.

Moderate damage was incurred by vehicles driven by Ralph Banks, 45, U.S. 62 and James E. Nilan, 47, of 608 E. Paint St., at 4:55 p.m. Wednesday, sheriff's deputies reported.

Nilan had been following a car in his van on U.S. 62-S, one-tenth mile south of the Rowe-Ging Road intersection, when he attempted to pass it. The Banks auto was engaging in a left turn into a private driveway ahead of the unidentified vehicle and the van and Bank's auto collided. There were no injuries.

The Olympic games became a national Greek festival in 776 B.C.

Industry, restaurant get building permits

Building permits for a new plant to be located in the Washington C.H. Industrial Park and a family steak house have been issued in the City Office Building.

City inspector Glenn Tatman said the building permits for the new industry and the restaurant top a total of 13 permits issued recently. Estimated value on the 13 building permits is $398,804.

RAVEN INDUSTRIES, Inc., headquartered in Sioux Falls, S.D., has been issued a building permit to construct a 17,000 square foot steel structure on Kenskill Avenue in the city's Industrial Park.

Modern Sales and Construction Co., of Wilmington, will erect the $100,000 steel building, which was manufactured at the Armco Steel Corp. Metal Products Division plant in Washington C.H.

The Washington C.H. plant, which will employ nearly 20 workers when full production commences, will produce fiberglass and polyethylene tanks for agricultural, industrial and water-conditioning use.

Tatman said Woodrow Deskins, a Washington C.H. area developer, has been issued a building permit to erect a Blue Drummer family steak house at the corner of Columbus Avenue and Blackstone Street.

The brick and frame structure, estimated at $250,000, will be owned by CB Enterprises, a Washington C.H. partnership comprised of Chester Brown and Ted, Jack and Gary Cartwright. The land and building will be leased to Van-Orr Foods, Inc., of Zanesville.

The 51,300 cubic foot family steak house will be situated on a lot, just east of the present Food World, Inc., grocery store on property formerly occupied by a Sun Oil Co. service station.

OTHER BUILDING permits issued recently include:

Allen Willoughby, 805 Lincoln Drive, room addition at residence, $4,400;

Charles Bowers, 221 W. Elm St., new garage at residence, $2,100;

Raymond Caulley, 1005 Willard St., new garage at residence, $125;

5 school districts ready to close

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Five Ohio school districts have taken the first formal step toward closing their doors, citing increasing costs and voter rejection of tax levies.

The school districts say they don't have enough money to operate for the rest of the school year.

The state auditor's office said Wednesday the five districts have applied for a "financial cash analysis." The special audit is required before the districts can ask Martin W. Essex, state superintendent of public instruction, to formally approve the shutdowns.

One of the districts, Chippewa Local in Wayne County, received audit certification last month to close on Nov. 15. However, Essex said he was informing the district he would not act on their application until after the Nov. 5 election.

Essex said all five districts had school levy issues on the ballot, and that the Chippewa schools would stay open if a 5.9 mill levy passed. The Chippewa district has 1,800 pupils.

The other districts are Bellefontaine City School District Logan County; Twinsburg City School District, Summit County; Warren City School District, Trumbull County, and Wellington Exempted Village School District, Wayne County. Almost 22,000 pupils are enrolled in the districts.

The findings of audits in those districts will not be announced until after the election, Deputy State Auditor Thomas Ferguson said, because of a long-standing policy against the release of any audit in the 30 days before an election.

A sixth district, Danbury Local in Ottawa County, applied, but was declared ineligible because it did not meet the requirement that two tax levies be defeated in the district within the calendar year, a spokesman said.

Four WSHS students express feelings about drug program

By MARK THELLMANN

"When you leave here, you're gonna break down and cry, because you're not going to want to go," four Washington Senior High School students were told the first day of the Teenage Institute Program on Alcohol and Other Drugs, held at Ohio Wesleyan University this summer.

Brian Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cook, 1229 High St., chuckled at the comment. The three girls who attended the program with him Barbara Oswald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Oswald, 805 Briar Ave.; Cindy Van Meter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frelan Van Meter, 525 Alvbin Ave., and Cynthia Vaughn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S.E. Vaughn, 1336 Nelson Place, shrugged their shoulders and wondered what could possibly make them cry when they got ready to go home four days later.

When it came time to leave, the tears came and they knew.

The "why" is difficult to explain, because it's sometimes impossible to put emotions into words on paper. The four Washington Senior High School students experienced more than just a seminar on alcohol and drugs; they experienced people on all levels of understanding. They cared about their fellowman and realized his needs more than ever before. They realized "we" are all the same person.

IT'S TRUE they viewed films and heard lectures about drugs and alcohol, along with confessions and discussions by ex-drug addicts and alcoholics (there is no such thing as an "ex-alcoholic," because once one is, one is. One quits and the disease is put in dormancy, but one can never have another drink again, because one is never cured.)

The four were made aware of the problems in life shared by those all around them and "those around them" were students of the same age group from all socio-economic walks of life. Some of the problems Brian, Barbara, Cynthia and Cinda discussed with others made their own personal problems so diminutive, they disappeared; leaving them free to stretch out a helping hand.

For four days 320 students from all over Ohio formed new friendships. Maybe that's why everyone cried - the friendships were too short. For many, it was the first time they looked into themselves and others on such a deep level of understanding and honestly with their emotions. It was too beautiful and too short a stay.

Brian, Barbara, Cinda and Cynthia admitted they were trying to retain the feeling of "togetherness' they felt during the seminar and carry it with them throughout their lives - feeling it with everyone they meet; realizing everyone needs help, everyone needs love and everyone needs everyone else.

The four will be scheduled to speak at various meetings throughout the school year about the seminar. They have spoken to Kiwanis Club and will be the featured speakers at Mother's Circle on Oct. 21 and at the Fayette Memorial Hospital School of Practical Nursing on Nov. 19.

Barbara Oswald was one of 10 chosen from the 320 students attending the conference, who will have the opportunity of planning next year's conference.

The trip for the four students was funded by the Washington C.H. Lions Club, the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club, Alcoholics Anonymous and the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Cancer unit here honored

The Fayette County unit of the American Cancer Society was honored for outstanding programming achievements at the 29th annual meeting of the American Cancer Society's Ohio division.

The Ohio division award of merit was presented to the Fayette County unit for its colon and rectal cancer detection project conducted last April. It was accepted on behalf of the unit by Dr. Byers W. Shaw, a Washington C.H. surgeon, who organized the project.

THE DAY-LONG meeting was highlighted by citing the more than 180,000 volunteers who participated in this year's record-setting statewide crusade of $4 million plus. Fayette County's contribution to the record was $17,578 compared to $12,049 the previous year. Fayette County's per capita contribution was 69 cents, eighth highest in the state.

Volunteers heard Dr. Myron Moskowitz, director of the breast cancer detection center at the University of Cincinnati, report on the activities of the jointly-funded American Cancer Society-National Cancer Institute project.

Those attending the annual meeting from Fayette County were Mrs. Charline Cunningham, unit president; Mrs. Charlene Barber, executive director; Dr. Shaw and Mrs. Mabel Rolfe, delegates; Mrs. Donna Jean Johnson, treasurer; Robert E. Minshall and Mrs. Wanda Taylor, public information committee, and Mrs. Sally Antoine and Mrs. Eleanor Henry, members of the board of directors.

Threat brings jail term in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— James Hardy, 33, convicted of sending a threatening letter to Police Chief Carl Goodin and sentenced to three to 10 years in jail, was free on $1,000 appeal bond today.

Hardy, leader of a local group called "Solving Black Problems Now," insisted he did not send the letter. He claimed it was a forgery.

Hardy, upon release, said his conviction was a conspiracy by city officials to remove him as an embarrassment to them.

The letter, which referred to a regional chapter of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army, threatened Goodin, politicians and federal program workers, according to William Whalen, assistant prosecutor.

Hardy testified that he did not write the letter. Two postal handwriting experts said he did.

Goodin said he was forced to alter police plans because of the letter.

The letter, introduced as evidence, said politicians "can prepare to make their bed in hell;" policemen can expect "retaliatory violence three times greater than any violence demonstrated in Vietnam and World Wars I and II," drug pushers "will automatically be seriously beaten, killed or both;" and federal employees can "make funeral arrangements now."

Washington to visit Wilmington

Explosive offense awaits Lions

BY LARRY WATTS
RECORD-HERALD SPORTS EDITOR

Washington's defense will really have to be on its toes when the Lions visit Wilmington this week. In its offensive attack, the Hurricane probably possess the most versatile backfield in the South Central Ohio League.

Halfbacks Jackie Watson and Bob Scott pose the biggest threats for the Lions' defense. The two speedsters lead the league in rushing average. Watson, who is also the league's top scorer with 70 points, has carried the ball 73 times for 504 yards and averaged 6.9 yards per carry. Scott, who holds a 6.65 rushing average, has picked up 226 yards in 34 carries.

"Wilmington is the most frightening offensive team in the SCOL because of their double breakaway threat in Watson and Scott," remarked Washington coach Maurice Pfeifer. "The Hurricane are not a ball control team. The key to their success is the breakaway threat and the ability to keep a defense guessing with a powerful runner and a good passer."

Fullback Russ Crosthwaite, who is 6-foot 1 and weighs 205 pounds, and quarterback Duane Earley have been playing in the shadows of Watson and Scott all year. Although Watson and Scott carry the ball 20-30 times per game, Crosthwaite keeps the defenses from spreading out with his plunges up the middle. Earley, who has scored 30 points this season, has also proven himself to be a good runner and an adequate passer, as he has hit on 10 of 24 passes for 151 yards.

"I would much rather be playing against a team with a powerful running attack than against a team like Wilmington with their breakaway threats," Pfeifer noted "We have to make too many defensive adjustments in preparing for them. Every time Watson or Scott carry the ball, you have to hold your breath because they score two or three touchdowns per game between them."

While Wilmington offers an explosive offense the Lions' defense has been equally stingy. The Hurricane are averaging slightly over 25 points per game, while Washington has held its opponents to seven points per game. Wilmington's offense will carry a 19-pound per player advantage over the Lions' defense into the contest.

Last week, Washington's defensive unit recorded its first shutout of the year in defeating Greenfield 18-0. Greenfield was only permitted to run 42 offensive plays, while the Lions had 59 plays in the game.

"Last week, we were able to establish a better balanced offensive attack than any other time this year," Pfeifer said. "However, any team with Greenfield still on their schedule should not take them as lightly as Circleville did two weeks ago when Greenfield won 6-0."

This week, Washington's offense will be yielding an average of 10 pounds per player to the Hurricane's defense. The two units appear to be equal as the Lions offense has produced an average of 15 points per game and Wilmington's defense has yielded an average of 15 points per contest.

"This is a typical Wilmington defense. The two units appear to be equal as the Lions offense has produced an average of 15 points per contest.

"This is a typical Wilmington defense," pointed out Pfeifer. "Their line has average speed and the secondary is very quick. The defense is very tough to block against since the line likes to slant a lot and the linebackers like to run a lot of stunts and games.

Pfeifer said he is very impressed by defensive guard Fred Watson, linebacker Norm Van Pelt and safety Jackie Watson. Both Fred Watson and Van Pelt are very quick and Jackie Watson proved himself last year by being selected to the All-SCOL squad as a safety.

Washington quarterback Jeff Brown is expected to be 100 per cent ready this Friday. Brown suffered a back injury in the Unioto game. He missed the entire second half against the Shermans and he also sat out part of the final half in the Greenfield game. He has completed 51.2 per cent of his passes, as he has connected on 21 of 41 aerials for 381 yards.

Washington's offensive lineman of the week is center Jim Runnels. With a blocking efficiency of 83 per cent, most of the inside running game was run with the help of his blocking.

Offensive back of the week is fullback Larry Dumford. In being graded at 96 per cent, Dumford opened the off tackle play with his blocking and he also carried the ball 12 times for 61 yards.

Defensively, Gilbert Sparkman was chosen as the back of the week for the second time this season. Sparkman was credited with 42 defensive points. He was involved in 10 tackles, recovered a fumble and intercepted a pass.

Greg Huysman was named the defensive lineman of the week. Huysman accumulated 20 points, recovered a fumble and was instrumental in stopping the Tigers' fullback play.

Washington is now 4-1 overall and rest atop the SCOL with a 2-0 mark. A loss to the Lions could very well eliminate the Hurricane as Wilmington is 3-2 for the year and 1-1 in the league.

New leaders in ratings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Upper Arlington and Warren Harding, two perennial state schoolboy football powers, are new Class AAA regional leaders this week in the Ohio High School Athletic Association computerized ratings.

Upper Arlington replaced Columbus Whitehall as the Region 2 pacesetter. Warren Harding beat Warren Western Reserve last week, replacing the losers as the top team in Region 1.

New Philadelphia in Region 3 and Cincinnati Elder in Region 4 retained their Class AAA leads.

The OHSAA uses the ratings to determine its state playoff teams after the regular season is completed. Each region leader qualifies for the Ohio semifinals in November.

The ratings are based on the strength of a team's schedule and those of its opponents. Margins of victory do not figure in the ratings.

Norwalk and Ironton were new regional frontrunners in Class AA while Bellaire St. John was the lone newcomer atop the Class A regions.

Retaining their Class AA leads were Wellington and Cincinnati Wyoming. Defending champion Middletown Fenwick, Windham and Montpelier again paced their Class A regions.

Washington Court House and Miami Trace each jumped in their respective regions. With their 18-0 win over Greenfield, the Lions moved from 23rd to 13th in Region 8. The Panthers, fresh off a 50-6 blasting of Hillsboro, moved from 23rd to 17th in Region 4.

Ratings for other South Central Ohio League teams find Wilmington dropping from 27th to a tie for 37th in Class AAA Region 4, Greenfield falling from ninth to 12th in Region 8, Circleville rising from 29th to 19th in Region 8, Hillsboro dropping from 35th to 37th in Region 8 and Unioto dropping from 16th to 17th in Class A's Region 12.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Forward Steve Mix fired in 14 of 23 field goals and six of eight free throws to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to a 112-107 National Basketball Association victory over Houston in Dayton Wednesday night

The 6-foot-7 four-year veteran was high scorer with 34 points. Rudy Tomjanovich led the Rockets with 24 points.

St. Louis picked to defeat Dallas

Is it in the Cards for St. Louis to be a contender in the National Football League this season?

The Cardinals, one of the surprises so far in 1974, seek their fifth straight victory Sunday when the collide with the Dallas Cowboys. St. Louis is also after victory No. 3 over a rival from the National Conference East.

The Cowboys, on the other hand, have lost three straight, something that hasn't happened to a Tom Landry-coached team in a long time.

The oddsmakers don't believe St. Louis can make it 5-0.

This Pro Pigskin Picker doesn't agree, but first let's report that last weekend produced 11 correct calls and two incorrect. That leaves the season's effort at 34-17-1 for .667.

Now, lets get down to business:

Dallas (1-3) at St. Louis (4-0): The Cardinals have the stingiest scoring defense in the entire league but Dallas may give Coach Don Coryell's club its biggest test so far. It's hard to imagine the Cowboys losing four straight but ... CARDINALS 21, COWBOYS 20.

New England (4-0) at New York Jets (1-3): The Patriots have put more points on the scoreboard to date than any other NFL team ... PATRIOTS 24, JETS 17.

Houston (1-3) at Minnesota (4-0): The Vikings should join the Cards and Pats in the pack as the only 5-0 clubs after this one... VIKINGS 21, OILERS 7.

New York Giants (1-3) at Philadelphia: The Eagles, favored by five, have given up the second fewest points in the league and it might be first after Sunday's game ... EAGLES 31, GIANTS 10.

Cincinati (3-1) at Cleveland (1-3): Cincinnati is a nine-point favorite and only the Baltimore Colts have yielded more points (122) than the Browns (109) ... BENGALS 35, BROWNS 14.

Chicago (2-2) at Atlanta (13): The Falcons favored by four? It must be a misprint. But then maybe the oddsmaker was thinking about last season's Bears ... BEARS 24, FALCONS 17.

Pittsburgh (2-1-1) at Kansas City (2-2): The oddsmakers think the Steelers will win by eight points ... STEELERS 23, CHIEFS 14.

Buffalo (3-1) at Baltimore (0-4): The spread says Buffalo by 15. It could be ... BILLS 35, COLTS 10.

Los Angeles (3-1) vs Green Bay (2-2) at Milwaukee: The betting slips say Los Angeles minus 12. The scoreboard should say ... RAMS 24, PACKERS 13.

San Diego (1-3) at Oakland (3-1): On any given day, etc., but IT won't be today for San Diego, 14-point underdogs ... RAIDERS 37, CHARGERS 17.

New Orleans (1-3) at Denver (1-2-1): As 14-point favorites the Brocos will find out what it's like to win two in a row this week ... BRONCOS 30, SAINTS 17.

San Francisco (2-2) at Detroit (0-4): The Lions, 9½-point betting choices, have just been waiting for a Monday night game so Alex Karras can see them score their initial 1974 victory ... LIONS 24, 49ERS 17.

Southmen, Americans notch WFL victories

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The Memphis Southmen and the Birmingham Americans continue to roll while the World Football League continues to rock.

Memphis and Birmingham, the struggling league's two best teams, ignored the latest round of WFL woes and posted victories Wednesday night, the Southmen edging the Charlotte Hornets 27-23 and the Americans thumping the Portland Storm 30-8.

The Hawaiians beat the Philadelphia Bell 25-22 and the Florida Blazers downed the Chicago Fire 45-17 in other games.

Meanwhile, WFL officials continued the struggle to keep the league afloat despite Commissioner Gary Davidson's declaration that, "I think the factor for success today is better than it was two months ago."

The Detroit Wheels and the Jacksonville Sharks both went under due to financial inadequacies earlier in the week and WFL vice president Don Andersen said Wednesday night that the players will be divided up among the remaining teams at a draft Friday, unless some new owners turn up before then. Player limits on each team would be expanded by at least five and perhaps eight players per team.

Memphis 27, Charlotte 23

Danny White threw touchdown passes of 13 and 19 yards to Ed Marshall in the fourth quarter as the Southmen, 13-2, posted their 10th straight victory and spoiled the Hornets' Charlotte debut. Willie Spencer and J.J. Jennings ran for 100 yards apiece for Memphis.

A sellout crowd of 25,133 turned out for the game.

Birmingham 30, Portland 8

George Mira tossed a pair of scoring passes for the Americans, a seven-yarder to Dennis Homan and a 13-yarder to Jim Bishop, and Charley Harraway and Joe Profit scored on short runs. Birmingham is 12-3 on the year.

Attendance in Birmingham was 25,621 — the lowest in eight home games for the Americans, who had been averaging 47,605 per game.

Hawaiians 25, Bell 22

Al Davis scored three touchdowns for the Hawiians, the third coming on an eight-yard pass from Norris Weese with 2:45 to play. Willie Williams intercepted three Philadelphia passes, returning them for a total 56 yards.

The game was played before an estimated crowd of only 4,500 in only the Baltimore Colts have yielded

Florida 45, Chicago 17

Tommy Reamon set up two scores with his running and then threw a 60-yard scoring pass to Matt Maslowski for the Blazers, 11-4. Maslowski also scored on a 40-yard pass from Bob Davis as Florida rolled up 30 points in the final period.

The game was played before 25,621 fans in Chicago.

Oakland 'walks' into series

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Oakland A's go after their third straight World Series championship with ailing Reggie Jackson and the team's other erstwhile sluggers in a slump.

But the resourceful A's manage somehow to score, and they still have magnificent pitching to use against the Los Angeles Dodgers. Both were apparent Wednesday in the 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles which gave Oakland the American League pennant, three games to one.

The A's scored their first run on four consecutive walks in the fifth inning and another in the seventh on their lone hit, a double by Jackson following another of the 11 walks off Mike Cuellar and Ross Grimsley.

Winning pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter and reliever Rollie Fingers held the Orioles to five hits, with Baltimore finally ending a 30-inning scoring drought on Boog Powell's ninth inning hit.

The A's pitching is what impressed Earl Weaver, the Baltimore manager. He predicted it would enable Oakland to join the 1936-39 and the 1949-53 New York Yankees as the only teams ever to win three World Series in a row.

"Pitching dominated the playoffs," Weaver said. "But that's the way we got into it, the way they got into it, and the way they're going to win the World Series."

After banging three home runs to beat Hunter 6-3 in the series opener, the Orioles scored only one more run. Through the fifth inning of the final game, they had gone 15 innings without advancing a runner beyond first base.

The A's weren't much better at the plate as they battled a Baltimore pitching staff which Oakland owner Charles O. Finley had feared would be tough to beat.

Jackson, playing the final three games as a designated hitter while hobbled with a pulled hamstring muscle in his right leg, had two hits in the four games.

Oakland's other three top run-producers, all of whom knocked in 73 runs or more during the regular season, didn't fare much better.

Sal Bando did have two homers among his three hits, and his first homer won the third game 1-0. Joe Rudi was limited to two hits and Gene Tenace went 0-for-11.

Ironically, it was the hitless Tenace who drew the fifth-inning walk off Cuellar which forced home the first run Wednesday.

Just before the game, Manager Alvin Dark had observed: "The thing about our ball club, is that some way, some how, we're going to find a way to score."

The A's, who return home today, held a victory dinner in Baltimore Wednesday night after a relatively mild clubhouse celebration.

"You don't have the hoopla you had before," Jackson said of the post-game scene. "Maybe it's because we were expected to win. If we don't, we're bums."

But he added: "If we win the World Series again, then we'll howl an hour or so."

Dodgers crunch Pittsburgh

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's an All-California World Series for the first time, and Steve Garvey said the Los Angeles Dodgers wanted it that way.

"We said collectively that we want to play the best team," said Garvey, hitting star of the Dodgers' 12-1 victory over Pittsburgh Wednesday that gave Los Angeles its first National League pennant in eight years.

"Oakland is the World Series champion and the American League champion again, so we have to beat them if we want to prove we are the best team in baseball."

The Dodgers — behind Garvey's two home runs and two singles, and Don Sutton's masterful pitching — whipped the Pirates Wednesday, winning the series three games to one. The two-time defending World Series champion A's eliminated Baltimore by the same margin in games for the American League crown.

The A's are expected to pitch Ken Holtzman, who blanked Baltimore last Sunday, and Los Angeles will open the series with Andy Messersmith, who beat Pittsburgh Sunday, in Saturday afternoon's game at Dodger Stadium.

Dodger Manager Walt Alston refused to draw a comparison between the Dodgers and A's because he hadn't studied scouting reports. "I don't know much about Oakland," he said.

Alston, whose first pennant came in 1955 when the Brooklyn Dodgers won their first World Series, didn't even want to compare his youthful 1974 team with those of even a decade ago, when Sandy Koufax pitched the Dodgers to a World Series triumph over Minnesota, the last time Los Angeles won it all.

"I'm so proud of this team with so many youngsters going so far as they have. This fella right here (Don Sutton) pitched outstanding ball for us."

Sutton, however, said the Dodgers, with young players in their second or third seasons — Garvey, Ron Cey, Dave Lopes and others — "are starting a dynasty." The 29-year-old pitcher, a rookie in 1966 when LA won its last pennant, said flatly that 1974's is the better team.

The Pirates, who won the NL East title for the fourth time in the last five year, had no qualms about picking the Dodgers to win the World Series.

"I pick the Dodgers," said Manager Danny Murtaugh. "I don't predict the number of games the series will go. I'll root just as hard as any Dodger fan for them in the series. It was a battle for the pennant up to now, and this is now a league vendetta."

"They outhit us, outpitched us and just outplayed us, all the way around," said Pirate center fielder Al Oliver. "They deserve to go to the World Series."

Browns' owner discouraged

CLEVELAND (AP) — Art Modell is obviously discouraged with the performance of his Cleveland Browns this year, but he realizes he has a lot of company.

"I felt very unhappy," Modell said, of his feelings while watching the Browns lose a 10-point lead and then go on to destruction at the hands of the Oakland Raiders 40-24 on Sunday.

"But I wasn't alone. There were 65,000 fans in that stadium who were also unhappy."

If Modell has any specific plans about turning the Browns around this season, he is not saying very much about them for public consumption.

After the loss two weeks ago to the St. Louis Cardinals Modell called a meeting of his coaches, prompting speculation that some axing might be in store.

Modell, who is one of the more active owners in the National Football League, hasn't had a meeting with his coaching staff in several years.

"We haven't had them because there wasn't a need for them," Modell said.

"I had a meeting last Monday and it is by no means a weekly addition," he said, "I just thought that it was time Bob Nussbaumer (vice-president-player personnel) and I sat down and talked with the coaching staff to see where we were going."

Lions' junior high drops 8-6 contest

Both Wilmington's and Washington's junior high teams scored on their first offensive series of the game. However, the Hurricane capitalized on their conversion attempt and the Lions failed as Wilmington squeezed out a 8-6 win.

The Hurricane's touchdown came on a 60-yard drive, while the Lions drove 65 yards for their touchdown. Washington's score came on a 14-yard pass from Jim McDonald to halfback Larry Brickles.

"We played decent defense, but we did not execute well on offense," reflected coach Rodger Mickle. "Wilmington is a very big ball club and they are very well coached.

The loss marked the second in two days for a Washington Junior high team. The seventh graders closed their season at 2-1 with a 24-8 defeat at the hands of Chillicothe Smith seventh graders, Tuesday evening.

President takes to dance floor

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP) — President Ford took to the dance floor night at a crowded Republican fund-raising dinner.

His partners Wednesday night were Mary Scranton, wife of former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, and Marilyn Lewis, wife of GOP gubernatorial candidate Drew Lewis.

The President danced the polka with Mrs. Scranton, then shifted to the jitterbug for his dance with Mrs. Lewis as the band played "Sentimental Journey."

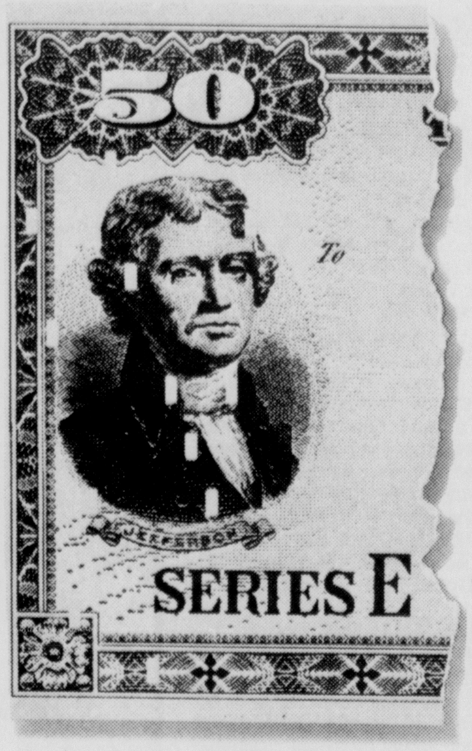
Steal me. Burn me. Throw me away. I'm still yours.



Once you bring me home, I'm yours forever.

Even if I'm burned. Or lost. Or stolen.

If you look for me and can't find me, just report it. And you'll get me back, as good as new.

And remember: I'll never break your heart. Or leave you stranded in the tight spots.

I'll always be there when you need me.

And that ought to make you feel pretty secure.

Candidates shun Ford surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — A number of Republican candidates in next month's elections have disassociated themselves from the anti-inflation surtax that President Ford contends would cost taxpayers only a few cents a day.

Criticism from GOP Senate and gubernatorial candidates came as the senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Herman T. Schneebeli, R-Pa., said he believes the fate of Ford's 5 per cent surtax proposal "rests on the American public and what they tell us when we go home."

Ford, who has conceded that many thought the tax proposal "politically unwise" just four weeks before the Nov. 5 elections, tried a new approach in defending it Wednesday at his outdoor news conference in the White House Rose Garden.

A family of four with $20,000 gross income would pay $42, or 12 cents a day, while a family with $16,000 income would pay only $3 — or less than one penny per day, Ford said.

And he said that only 28 per cent of the nation's taxpayers would pay any additional tax. He said enactment of the surtax and the rest of his anti-inflation package could produce "a meaningful reduction in the rate of inflation" by early 1975.

Ford went to Philadelphia to boost Republican candidates Wednesday night. He told a fund-raising dinner the surtax is fair and equitable.

The American people "want to step up and do what's right. Politicians ought to do the same thing," Ford said.

But just before the President arrived, the Republican gubernatorial candidate in Pennsylvania, Drew Lewis, told reporters he opposed the surtax and suggested closing tax loopholes instead.

And Republican Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania, also up for re-election, denounced the surtax.

In Kansas, GOP Sen. Robert Dole declared that many people in the state who made $15,000 were suffering economically and "the last thing they need is an additional surtax to pay."

Ford also said at his news conference:

—He believes a one-year surtax will be sufficient, instead of a two-year tax suggested by Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the acting head of the House Ways and Means Committee.

—There has been "nothing to change" his inclination to run for the presidency in 1976.

—He will meet Oct. 21 with Mexican President Luis Echeverria in Nogales, Mexico, his first trip outside the continental United States since becoming President.

—He doesn't think there was anything improper in gifts by Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller to several individuals, including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger before Kissinger joined the government.

—He would meet with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev prior to a scheduled summit meeting next year if there is need for an earlier conference.

—He declined any new comment on his pardon for former President Richard M. Nixon prior to Ford's appearance before a House Judiciary subcommittee on Oct. 17.

Wholesale price increases slowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose only onetenth of a per cent last month as falling farm prices offset increases in the cost of industrial goods, the government reported today.

The modest September price rise followed near-record increases in July and August. The September increase was the smallest price advance since wholesale prices declined a tenth of a per cent last October.

Consumers still face sharp retail price hikes in the coming months, because of big wholesale price boosts during the summer.

Also, the drop in farm prices last month is likely to be only temporary, with adverse weather expected to drive prices higher once again.

Earlier this week, the White House predicted that food prices would continue to increase at an annual rate of 10 per cent or more over the next 18 months.

The September increase, adjusted to discount seasonal influences, works out to an annual rate of 1.2 per cent, a sharp contrast to the 46.8 per cent annual rate in August.

In absolute terms, without seasonal adjustment, wholesale prices actually declined a tenths of a per cent from August to September.

Wholesale prices remained 19.7 per cent higher than a year ago with the government's Wholesale Price Index at 167.2.

Translated into dollars, that means it cost $167.20 to buy the same volume of wholesale goods that $100 purchased in 1967.

The Labor Department reported that farm products, processed foods and feeds fell a seasonally adjusted 1.9 per cent in September, following increases of 6.4 and 7.6 per cent in July and August, respectively.

COUNCIL MEMBERS unanimously endorsed the .65-mill tax levy which will be appearing on the November 5 general election ballot for the operation of the Fayette County Progressive School.

Mrs. Frank Weade, a member of the Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation, solicited Council's support of the tax issue which will run for a 10-year period.

The Fayette County Progressive School relocated this fall to the former Sunnyside Elementary School building, S. Fayette Street.

Mrs. Weade told Council members that since the board's last tax levy was approved two years ago enrollment has increased from 23 to 41 students. The school has a 14-member staff, is now paying rent and hopes to add more transportation and an adult program.

The school is presently operating on a $61,000 annual budget, which is derived from a .35-mill tax levy; $450 per pupil per year from the state and tuition the school receives from the Washington C.H. and Miami Trace school districts.

CITY MANAGER Dan Wolford was authorized to prepare specifications and advertise for bids for three new 1975 model cruisers to be used in the Washington C.H. Police Department.

The police department is presently operating with five vehicles, including three patrol cars and autos for Police Chief Rodman Scott and the department's investigator.

It was pointed out that the basic specifications have not changed from last year. The new vehicles will be purchased in March.

SPEAKING ON behalf of Millwood area residents, Councilman Donald E. Wood said residents in that area have been complaining about a considerable amount of sediment in their water. Wood said he contacted the Ohio Water Service Co. and was informed the company had flushed pipes in the vicinity of Dyna Corp. Wednesday and the problem should be corrected today.

CHESTER HAMULAK, 1028 Center St., asked Council's permission to block Court Street from Fayette Street to Main Street in front of the Courthouse during the dedication ceremonies Nov. 11 for the new war memorial. Hamulak said a large crowd is anticipated.

BOB McEWEN, of Hillsboro, Republican candidate for the Ohio House of Representatives from the 77th district, spoke briefly to Council members at the beginning of the meeting. Among other things, McEwen promised Council he would protect Local Government Fund money that Ohio's municipalities receive and rapped the recommendations of the Local Government Services Commission.

Three Jeff boys charged with store burglary

Three Jeffersonville youths and a Madison County youth, formerly of Jeffersonville, have been arrested and charged with breaking and entering in connection with the burglary of Sagar's Dairy Store in Jeffersonville, June 30.

The store was said to have been entered sometime after 10 p.m. Saturday by the boys, who made a hole in the screen and unlatched the front door. Forty dollars worth of cigarettes and $56 in cash were taken.

Charges against the youths were filed by Sheriff's Deputy Charles Wise, following his investigation of the incident.

Burglary at cemetery checked by deputies

A larceny and an incident of vandalism are currently under investigation by the Washington C.H. Police Department, while the Fayette County Sheriff's Department are attempting to solve a burglary. Sheriff's deputies also reported a farm accident in which a Mount Sterling man was injured.

A 12-horsepower tractor was stolen from a storage building at Bloomingburg Cemetery by thieves who cut through the hasp lock on the building sometime between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The tractor valued at $1,395, was described by sheriff's deputies as red and white with its model number, "K301S", on the sides.

A purse owned by Barbara Hilt, 827 Conley Court, was removed from her car while it was parked at Kenneth's Salon of Beauty, Gibbs Avenue, sometime around 3:30 a.m. Thursday, Washington C.H. police reported.

The purse contained $5, a Fayette County Bank checkbook and personal papers.

A 40-by-12 inch window was broken on the north side of Cherry Hill School, Oakland Ave., sometime Wednesday afternoon. The window valued at $20, was thought by police to have been broken by a thrown hickory nut.

William Dick, 54, Mount Sterling, was injured by a corn picker on his farm on Lester Mill-Whiteside Road in Pickaway County, at 8:15 a.m. Wednesday, sheriff's deputies reported.

Dick caught his thumb in the corn picker while it was running and the tip was severed. He was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital by his brother, Art, treated and released.

FDIC says all deposits covered

Two bank failures 'unique'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bankers and government regulators say two record-setting bank failures illustrate the soundness of the system for assuring savers they won't be left empty-handed if their banks collapse.

The successive failures of the U.S. National Bank of San Diego and Franklin National Bank of New York have presented the deposit insurance system with its heaviest financial challenge yet, but the bankers and regulators say those are isolated instances of poor banking practice.

In both cases, all depositors were fully protected, even though government insurance guarantees full protection only to accounts of $20,000 or less.

The keystone of the insurance system is a $5.8-billion fund controlled by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the agency behind the FDIC embossed on the doors of 98.5 per cent of the nation's commercial banks. A similar agency, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., covers a like share of the nation's savings and loan associations.

The keystone is buttressed by the government's readiness to borrow $3 billion more to support savings accounts, by the efforts of bank regulators to pinpoint trouble before it mushrooms into disaster and by the readiness of the Federal Reserve System to unleash its massive money resources.

Until this year, the FDIC, which grew out of the wreckage of the 4,000 financial institutions that failed in 1933, had to dip into its insurance fund for only $100 million to make good deposits in the 502 banks that had failed. No saver covered by FDIC insurance lost a penny. FDIC's record of full repayment to 99 per cent of depositors at insolvent banks even includes deposits exceeding the legal maximum.

Chamber to support three school issues

The Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce board of directors endorsed two educational issues which will be appearing on the November 5 general election ballot at the regular monthly meeting Thursday.

The Chamber directors endorsed a .65-mill operating levy proposed by the Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation after support for the issue was solicited by two representatives at Thursday's meeting and agreed to support two issues being proposed by the Fayette County Board of Education.

NO STAND was taken by the Chamber on a 1.25 per cent income tax issue proposed by members of Washington C.H. City Council.

Mrs. Frank Weade, representing the Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation, and Carl Whitaker, administrator of the Fayette Progressive School, attended the board meeting in an attempt to garner support for the .65-mill tax levy which will run for a 10-year period.

The Chamber board agreed to endorse the issue stating "it is important to the county's educational system and it is so easy to be overlooked because most persons are blessed with normal children."

Mrs. Weade stated the .65-mill tax levy will raise the supplement a present .35-mill levy which is scheduled to expire in 1977.

The two representatives said the Fayette Progressive School has relocated from its former headquarters in the Washington Junior High School building to the former Sunnyside Elementary School building on S. Fayette Street.

They said because of the relocation, rent has increased and the school is presently paying utility costs. Enrollment has increased as the school presently has 41 pupils and a 14-member staff.

The school also hopes to launch an adult services program since Fayette County is one of four Ohio counties presently not offering adult classes.

The school is presently operating on a $61,000 annual budget. The .35-mill levy produces 64 per cent of the budget or approximately $37,000 per year and the school also receives tuition from the Washington C.H. and Miami Trace School districts and a $450 per pupil reimbursement from the state.

The Chamber directors also agreed to endorse and pledged active support for a three-mill additional operating levy and a 2.49-mill bond issue for the construction of a new junior high school being proposed by the Fayette County Board of Education.

The three-mill operating levy is expected to generate approximately $210,000 annually. The bond issue would yield nearly $2,250,000 with the debt to be retired in 22 years.

APPROXIMATELY two-thirds of the new income generated by the additional operating levy would be used for salary increases and related expenses for teachers in the system. The increase is expected to be effective Jan. 1, if the levy is approved at the polls in November.

The proposed new junior high school building is expected to cost about $2 million. The additional $250,000 will be spent on the repair and maintenance of existing facilities.

Chamber of Commerce president Bruce Galloway reported to the board on a recognition ceremony held Wednesday night for Fayette County 4-H Club members who participated in the 1974 Ohio State Fair.

Council considers rezoning matter during brief meeting

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

Washington C.H. City Council Wednesday night conducted the first reading of an ordinance requesting the rezoning of a tract of land near the intersection of Clinton and Fairview avenues to permit the construction of a proposed three-building office complex project.

The city legislators also took care of a number of other matters including endorsing a tax levy for the operation of the Fayette County Progressive School, and authorizing the city manager to prepare specifications and advertise for bids for new police cruisers. Council members Billie Wilson and Mrs. Bertha McCullough were absent from the meeting which lasted just over 45 minutes.

Washington C.H. real estate developer Robert E. Lewis has submitted preliminary plans to City Council requesting rezoning of an 0.42-acre tract of land, stituated on the south side of Clinton Avenue, from R-2 to B-1 restricted.

Since only five city legislators were present at Wednesday night's meeting, the ordinance was placed on its first reading. The second reading of the ordinance will be held at Council's regular meeting on October 23.

Construction of the three modern office buildings would be handled by Lewis. The proposed site for the colonial style buildings, which will contain two offices apiece, measures 308 feet by 175 feet.

Lewis has not announced any of the tenants who would eventually occupy the office buildings, but said his real estate office, presently situated at 1017 Clinton Avenue, would be relocated into one of the new office buildings.

Other businesses presently located on the proposed construction site include the Fayette Advertiser, 1015 Clinton Ave., and the United Farm Agency, 1013 Clinton Ave.

The Unit Farm Agency is situated on the lot 142.5 feet east of Fairview Avenue in the Elmwood Addition that Lewis has requested to be rezoned.

Members of the City Planning Commission approved Lewis's request their July 3 meeting. Council authorized the city manager to prepare legislation on the matter at its last meeting.

A restrictive clause in the ordinance requires that new buildings constructed on the site be limited to one story structures and that curb cuts and

Tax issue interview

How Council feels

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of seven interviews with Washington C.H. City Council members and their feelings concerning the proposed 1.25 per cent income tax issue.)

BY MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

Washington C.H. City Council member Joseph O'Brien is an avid supporter of the proposed city income tax because he believes the lowering of property tax Council has installed into the package will provide financial relief for residents on fixed incomes.

"Elderly residents in Washington C.H. will be able to live more comfortably because of the reduction of taxes," said O'Brien, a retired track supervisor for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co.

"I know some of the problems these people (those on fixed incomes) have and I personally feel the income tax package will mean a lot to older people here," he said.

State fair exhibitors get special applause

An instant replay of the 1974 Ohio State Fair Sale of Champions highlighted the recognition program for Fayette County's 65 junior fair exhibitors Wednesday night in the landmark auditorium.

Vic Lucas, Ohio State Fair general manager, gave the exhibitors the first run showing of the video tapes. Featured in the tape was the sale of Rusty Coe's champion barrow to Bob Evans Farm for $26 per pound; Jill Schlichter's grand champion market lamb to Renzetti's IGA for $30 per pound; and Mary Kay Wilson's reserve grand champion market lamb to the All-Ohio Youth Choir for $12 per pound.

Lucas also showed a 1930 state fair promotional film, comparing it to the 1974 version. The exhibitors enjoyed seeing the long skirts, fat hogs, short steers, and wide-brimmed hats of past state fairs.

Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce president Bruce Galloway presented each of the state junior fair exhibitors with recognition certificates. Galloway with assistance of Chamber vice president Glen Hemsworth and director Jim Ward, indicated the pride the residents of Fayette County have for the achievements compiled by local exhibitors.

Assisting with the event were Bill Statler, Ohio State Fair junior division coordinator, Jim Dunn, executive vice president of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, and Jack Sommers, county 4-H Extension agent.

Pardon slows Watergate trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — It appears now that massive publicity is not the only matter stretching out the jury selection process for the Watergate cover-up trial. The Nixon pardon also seems to be a sticking point.

The sifting process was in its eighth day today, and U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica has sent word that he doesn't expect it to be the last. But an aide said at the close of Wednesday's session that Sirica was "still hopeful about Friday — it looks good."

A prosecutor's memorandum indicated some prospective jurors are bothered that five subordinates of Richard M. Nixon are being prosecuted while the former president goes free. The five, including former White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, are charged with trying to thwart the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

The memorandum, filed with the judge, suggested changes in the last step of seating a jury to avoid giving "the defense an unwarranted advantage in the selection of the panel."

In the current stage, judge and lawyers are questioning jury prospects one-by-one to discern any biases that would stand in the way of a verdict based on trial evidence alone.

The memorandum by Special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski spoke of a "pattern of responses to questions about the Nixon pardon" in the private questioning and said if usual procedures are followed there would be "a possibility of unfairness to the government."

Once the judge and lawyers have settled on a minimum of 45 prospective jurors — plus an undetermined number extra — the "peremptory challenge" stage will begin.

A clerk will seat 12 jury prospects in the order on which they appear on a list made up at random before the trial started Oct. 1. The defense then will be allowed to remove up to 15 people and the prosecution 6 — all without stating a cause. As each juror-candidate is struck, another takes his place, still in the order on the list.

Jaworski said in the memorandum he was worried that the defense might pass on its early challenges and then at the end have enough remaining to exercise 12 or more strikes.

"If at that time defendants know the 9 or 12 individuals who are next in line, they will have complete control in selecting a final panel of 12," the memorandum said.

He suggested a complex mathematical arrangement to avoid "the possibility that any party will have a "final say in the selection of the final panel."

It would require the defense to exercise two or three challenges in each of the first few rounds to the government's one.

A second procedure advocated by the government would be to reshuffle the names of prospective jurors — and not let the order be known in advance — so that the defense could not be able to pick the "known individuals."

Geneva man winner

CONNEAUT, Ohio (AP)— Frank P. McNellie of Geneva won $300,000 today in the Buckeye 300 to the shouts and tears of his family in the audience.

William Chisley of Cincinnati won $60,000 and Clara T. Miller of Ottawa won $30,000.

The other five Buckeye 300 contestants each won $15,000, the minimum prize in that elimination that climaxes the weekly drawings in the Ohio Lottery. They are Neil Coonrod of rural Monroeville, Ind.; Harry G. Hansen, Fairview park, a Cleveland suburb; Edward E. Kurtz, Elyria; Martha E. Rosegarten, Covington, and Pasquale F. Cassano, Cleveland.

Asked whether he had a good night's sleep before today's drawing, McNellie jokingly replied that no, he didn't—his wife snored too much. She and their two children were jumping up and down in audience at City Hall, her eyes welling with tears, as McNellie became the day's big winner.

About 21,500 persons will win prizes this week, as 21,482 did last week, on the numbers turned out by the giant tumbler.

This week's winning single number was 435, and the winning double number was 612 429, a lottery spokesman announced.

But contrary to what some lottery observers felt is a popular belief, there were only two persons, not handfuls of them, who unknowingly still held tickets today from previous weeks that will assure them of at least $15,000 each in some future Buckeye 300, a lottery spokesman said.

Winning digits

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The winning three-digit number this week in the Ohio Lottery was 435, and the winning double number was 612 429, the Ohio Lottery Commission announced Thursday.

Chillicothe escapee recaptured

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Wills Jones, a Chillicothe Correctional Institute escapee accused of shooting a policeman, was captured Wednesday night, authorities said.

Two Columbus police officers said they arrested Jones without incident after he tried to evade them through an alley. The narcotics officers said he offered no resistance.

Columbus homicide detective Thomas Strausbaugh said Jones carried a .38-caliber police service revolver and a makeshift knife.

Strausbaugh said the revolver was one take after Sgt. Robert H. McCandless was shot. Jones is accused of shooting the officer after McCandless called to him.

He is accused of firing two more shots at the officer before picking up the revolver McCandless had dropped and running off, police said. McCandless was treated for a flesh wound.

Jones told detectives he escaped from the correctional institute more than three weeks ago because he was bored with being a trusty in a dairy barn, Strasbaugh said.

The escapee had been serving time on charges from a 1968 robbery.

Banker's family held hostage

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — An Ypsilanti bank manager's wife and two children were freed unharmed today after the manager was forced to rob his own bank to ransom them, the FBI reported.

Mrs. Richard Green and her children, Erick 7, and Annette, 9, were released at a hotel about 15 miles west of Ypsilanti about 10:20 a.m. after being held hostage all night by four men.

Mrs. Green called her husband at the bank after being released and was picked up by police.

Mills partying incident clouded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills spent at least part of the evening drinking, dining and dancing with friends hours before he was involved in a bizarre incident in which one of his women companions was rescued from drowning by police.

The manager of a Washington night club where the Arkansas Democrat has been a frequent patron said Mills, three women and another man were in the establishment for about three hours on Sunday night.

During that time they had dinner and drinks which cost about $80 in all and then left, according to George Bertran, 47, manager of the Junkanoo restaurant on fashionable Connecticut Avenue. None of the group appeared intoxicated when they left about 9:30 p.m., he said.

The whereabouts of the influential 65-year-old congressman, chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means committee, remained a mystery between that hour and the 2 a.m. incident at the Tidal Basin near the Jefferson Memorial.

Mills himself remained in seclusion late Wednesday as the U.S. Park Police disputed a claim Mills made through aides that he was not present at the incident and knew nothing about it.

Mills is currently involved in a re-election campaign and facing his stiffest challenge in years from a woman Republican candidate.

As recounted by police, the Tidal Basin incident occurred when two officers stopped a 1973 Lincoln Continental that was traveling at an unreasonable speed with lights out at 2 a.m. Monday. Five people spilled out. The car was registered to Mills, police said.

They said one of the men identified himself to the officers as Mills and the police report, according to Franklin A. Arthur, assistant chief of the Park Police, described this man as "intoxicated." His face was scratched and bleeding, they said.

While police questioned the group, a woman identified as Anabella Battistella, crying and shouting in mixed Spanish and English, ran to a bridge and leaped into the water. She was rescued by an officer who dove in after her.

In a news conference called after Mills' claim that he was not involved, Arthur said, "We can assume it was Rep. Mills." He added, "I think the officers would recognize" him.

Mills' administrative assistant, Oscar "Gene" Goss, who had earlier relayed Mills' denials of involvement to newsmen, said after the police press conference, "I cannot refute what the police say."

Mrs. Battistella was admitted to a hospital but later released and reporters who called her apartment on Wednesday were told by another woman that she was sleeping under sedation.

The doorbell at the apartment also went unanswered, although people could be heard moving about inside. The woman lives in a luxury, high-rise apartment complex where Mills and his wife also have an apartment. It is in Crystal City, Va., across the Potomac River from the capital.

The Washington Post quoted hospital sources as saying Mrs. Battistella, 38, had two black eyes and had identified herself to officials there as a stripper.

More police called in Boston dispute

BOSTON (AP) — State and Metropolitan policemen took up their posts in South Boston today to help local authorities quell racial violence that has increased since schools opened last month under a federal school busing order.

The contingent of 400 officers, outfitted with riot gear, were ordered into the area by Gov. Francis W. Sargent after a federal judge rejected Mayor Kevin H. White's request for 125 federal marshals to help keep the peace.

They were placed under the command of Boston Police Commissioner Robert J. diGrazia and Police Supt. Joseph Jordan.

"They will protect the buses, the children and the schools," DiGrazia said.

U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., in turning down the request for federal aid, told White to seek aid from local law enforcement agencies.

"The problems here are no different from those which have been solved in 200 other cities, and they are going to be solved here. It is just a question of how long, and how much heartache, it will take," said Garrity, who had issued the busing order in an effort to integrate Boston's public schools.

In Washington, President Ford told a news conference Wednesday that although he personally disagreed with Garrity's busing order, the order should be carried out.

"I have consistently opposed forced busing to achieve racial balance as a solution to quality education. And therefore I respectfully disagree with the judge's order," Ford said.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., later attacked Ford, saying, "... The timing of (Wednesday's) remarks can only give aid and comfort to those who would flout the court's decision at this difficult time for our city."

Boston has been wracked by arrests and injuries in racial incidents since Sept. 12, when Garrity's busing order took effect.

At first, the violence was mostly limited to South Boston, a predominantly Irish section where many children were to be bused to black neighborhoods.

This week, violence spread to the mostly black Roxbury section. Nine arrests were reported Wednesday as police dispersed crowds of rock-and bottle-throwing black youths. Police said nine persons were injured, but only one, a white man, was seriously hurt. He was hospitalized in fair condition with head injuries.

Financial analysts filled with gloom

DETROIT (AP) — A mood of pessimism and uncertainty has dominated a semi-annual meeting of stock analysts.

Reflecting the gloom on Wall Street, one analyst said his colleagues were searching for the catalyst "that will turn this herd of bears heading for the cliff."

Chief among the topics of discussion at the meeting of the 14,000-member Financial Analysts Federation that ended on Wednesday was the future of their trade.

"The people I've met here are puzzled," said Ted Lilley, president of the 14,000-member federation. "They're gritting their teeth and talking about buying bars of gold to put under their beds."

The analysts are market advisers, and an unusually large number of top executives from major companies attended the conference, partly to boost confidence in their industries and firms.

But by and large, they ran into strong resistance.

"At last night's cocktail party, it became clear that anyone here with over $100 million to invest is sitting on the sidelines, waiting for something to happen," said Frank Cappiello Jr., president of Monumental Capital Management Inc.

"The question is, what will be the catalyst?" he said. "Somewhere along the line, something will turn this herd of bears heading for the cliff."

The analysts agreed generally that by rights there should be as much — or perhaps more — work for the analysts in bad times as good. In fact, many smaller investors simply pull out of the market in bad times.

"Incomes in our area are down," said Lilley, of New York.

And attendence at the conference was down proportionately. Only about 325 analysts paid the $265 registration for the four-day fall conference, down from 800 a year ago.

"If we are not near the bottom, this will be the worst depression the industrialized western world has ever seen, and the capitalistic system is done for," said Cappiello.

Despite gloom and uncertainty on Wall Street, leaders of the conference said this could be a good time for smaller investors to get back into the market.

Robert D. Hedberg of New York, chairman of the federation, said that many stocks and bonds are sharply undervalued at their current market price, making an upsurge seem inevitable.

"It sounds hokey, but you buy stocks when there are problems, when there's blood in the streets," said Cappiello.

Agnew out for year

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — One year ago today Spiro T. Agnew resigned as vice president of the United States and pleaded no contest to a charge of income tax evasion.

Today, he has an office behind an unmarked door just off the village green in Crofton, Md., where his long-time secretary, Mary Ellen Warner, courteously but firmly fends off unwanted calls and visits.

"I feel that I'm a private citizen and I'm entitled to be left alone," Agnew told a reporter last summer outside his office.

The Maryland bar disbarred Agnew as a lawyer. He is glimpsed occasionally as he flys about Europe and the Middle East on missions involving international business.

Agnew still appears to be living in style. He sold his palatial home at Kenwood outside Washington and bought a large new house near Annapolis.

The 40-page summary of evidence against Agnew unveiled a system of governmental corruption that federal prosecutors said had pervaded Maryland for years.

COUNCIL HAS agreed to reduce property taxes for Washington C.H. residents by a total of 4.30 mills in exchange for the 1.25 per cent income tax. Voters in Washington C.H. will be deciding the fate of the income tax package when they go to the polls on November 5.

"I think it would be of interest to all retired people in Washington C.H. to support this income tax," O'Brien stated.

He pointed out that over $160,000 of the $551,357 estimated to be raised by the income tax will replace what the city is losing in property taxes collected.

"Some people think we're getting a big gob of money, but they don't realize what is going to be used to replace those property taxes and the amount which will be used to defray costs of collecting the taxes the cost of administering and enforcing the provisions," he said.

O'Brien, 120 Gardner Court, pointed out a number of non-taxable provisions under the income tax package which will be a benefit to elderly Washington C.H. residents.

He said old age pensions, other pensions, poor relief, unemployment insurance benefits, Social Security benefits, interest and dividends from intangible property and proceeds from insurance and annuities will not be taxed.

Rocky plans explanation of gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller has agreed to provide Congress with a written explanation of his financial gifts to aides and public figures.

Despite the offer Wednesday, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Rockefeller has paid $3.9 million in gift taxes since 1964 and must be recalled to explain the gifts before the Senate Rules Committee, which is considering Rockefeller's nomination to be vice president.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the rules panel, said any decision on whether to reopen the confirmation hearings has been put off until Congress returns from its election recess.

"I don't think its a question of conflict of interest but rather one of influence of wealth in a political situation," Cannon said of the gifts made by the former New York governor.

Helms said that "I think that any time an elected official spends close to $1 million to make a gift to a political figure, then the public has the right to know 'why' before that person is confirmed for a high public office."

Helms' reference was to a disclosure that Rockefeller had given $550,000 to William J. Ronan, a former close aide who now is chairman of the New York-New Jersey Port Authority. Rockefeller press secretary Hugh Morrow, himself the acknowledged recipient of a $100,000 Rockefeller gift, said the Ronan gift cost Rockefeller a total of $880,000 when state and federal gift taxes are included.

Other known Rockefeller gifts include $50,000 in 1969 to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger after he left Rockefeller's employment to join the Nixon administration.

Stock list skyrockets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market surged ahead today in heavy early trading after posting its sixth biggest gain on record Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials ran up a 20-point gain to 651.05 at 11 a.m. as trading ran ahead of the tape for the first hour.

Wednesday, the blue chip indicator rallied more than 28 points, the sixth largest gain on record at the New York Stock Exchange and the biggest advance since May 24, 1973, when it climbed 29.42 points.

Analysts said the market got a psychological boost from Wednesday's gains which they said caught many seasoned Wall Streeters by surprise.

The optimism was heightened Thursday by the government's report that the wholesale price index, one indicator of inflation, rose at a slow 1.2 per cent annual gain in September, the smallest rise in 11 months.

Slaughter planned

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (AP) — Only a personal conference with President Ford will stop a proposed cattle slaughter in protest of the high cost of raising beef, a group of East Texas ranchers say.

Meanwhile, an Agriculture Department spokesman told some Texas ranchers in Washington on Wednesday that there might be a little profit for stockmen by next spring, but not before.

Steve Burgess, who raises Santa Gertrudis beef cattle just east of here, said Wednesday night about 500 head of dairy and beef calves have been pledged for slaughter and he expects that number to reach 1,000 by next Wednesday, the date for the slaughter.

Last draftees are released

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 2,500 men who were the last draftees before the Army switched to an all-volunteer force will be home by Thanksgiving.

The Army said Wednesday it was releasing many of the men before the end of their two-year hitch because of success in meeting enlistment goals for a volunteer force in recent months. Some draftees could have remained in uniform until as late as next June 30 without the early separation.

Any draftee who volunteers to remain on duty beyond Thanksgiving will be permitted to do so, the Army said.

Political hiring said widespread

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee chairman said today investigations indicate that improper political influence in federal hiring was widespread in former President Richard M. Nixon's administration.

Rep. David N. Henderson, D-N.C., chairman of the House Civil Service subcommittee, said evidence on some alleged hiring abuses has been turned over to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski. He refused to elaborate.

'Traveling job' close to home

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

CAVE-IN-ROCK, Ill. (AP) — Rudy Bragdon's job takes him 9,828 miles a year, but he never is more than hailing distance from this tiny Ohio River town.

Bragdon, 43, pilots the Cave in-Rock Ferry, one of the last of the privately owned, fulltime auto ferries plying America's inland waters and the only one operating on the Ohio west of Cincinnati.

Except for two years in the Army, he's been at it steadily since 1949, never more than half a mile from where he left or where he's bound.

Three times an hour, 12 hours a day, seven days a week, Bragdon points his 45-foot tug's prow at the Kentucky shore, yanks the propeller lever and chugs across. His 250-horsepower diesel churns out six knots and the round trip takes about 15 minutes.

"That's about all I've ever done," he says. And it's about all he's ever wanted to do. Year after year he ferries cars across with license plates from every state in the union and he's never been curious enough to follow them.

He's been to Chicago a couple of times, and Indianapolis.

"But," he says, "I just stay around here mostly."

Driving a ferry isn't the most exciting occupation in the world but Bragdon is content—"You get used to it. You don't mind it. It's just being here. That's the big thing of the job. There's not much to do except sit here."

He learned the trade from his father, Carl, who signed on in 1935 and still spells his son at the helm. Carl trained upriver on another boat and has become a philosopher over the years.

"It gets monotonous as heck," he says. "You see the same thing every time. But it's surprising... you see people... It's kind of amazing the mode of people that's traveling.

"As uncertain as the world is today, even though ferries is going by the board, I don't know but what I'd do it again."

Other people find it fascinating, too, and ride just out of curiosity. Vacationers pass up the bridges above the below Cavein-Rock and follow Illinois Highway 1 right down to its end at the ferry ramp just to ride.

There seems to be something about ferries that takes the edge off the urge to wander.

P.A. "Candy" Hill owned the Cave-in-Rock Ferry for 22 years, rode it at least once a day and never thought of going farther.

"I never did take a vacation," Hill said. "Never was gone more than three days at a time. I've gone millions of miles and haven't been anywhere. Never was much of a one to run around."

Poor health forced him to sell out this spring. He's spending his retirement at home, here, where he was born.

Seek to make public Rhodes testimony on KSU shooting

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Cleveland attorney Steven A. Sindell has filed a motion in federal court here challenging former Gov. James A. Rhodes' efforts to keep secret the testimony he gave in the civil damage suits arising from the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

Sindell, who represents parents of students who were killed or wounded at Kent State, filed a motion in U.S. District Court Wednesday opposing Rhodes' request that his deposition be kept secret until after the Nov. 5 election.

Rhodes, a Republican, is seeking his third term as governor, running against incumbent Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Rhodes gave his deposition in Cleveland last week. Judge Don J. Young of Toledo temporarily sealed the deposition at the request of Rhodes' attorneys.

Attorney Burt J. Fulton said disclosure of the deposition could "distort the public's perception of candidates for office and...prejudice and color the mandate of the electorate."

Sindell argued in his motion that Rhodes failed to show good cause why his deposition should be sealed. He said the public is entitled to know what goes on in the courts.

Sindell also challenged Rhodes' contention that the testimony should be sealed until criminal cases have been completed against eight former Ohio national guardsmen who were indicted for violating the civil rights of the slain and wounded students.

Sindell said this would hold up proceedings in the civil damage suit. He said if lawyers for the guardsmen fear that the depositions will be used against them, they can ask the federal court in Cleveland to take protective measures.

Sindell represents parents of four students killed and nine who were wounded when guardsmen opened fire on antiwar demonstrators May 4, 1970. Rhodes is one of the defendants in the suits, which ask damages totaling $20 million.

Lavelle wins Gilligan nod

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Gov. John J. Gilligan says as far as he's concerned State Democratic Chairman William A. Lavelle is "doing a fine job" and he wants to keep Lavelle as state chairman.

John H. Glenn Jr., the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, has said he wants Lavelle replaced.

Gilligan said in an interview Wednesday he is "more than satisfied with his (Lavelle's) conduct."

The governor said other party leaders share his opinion.

The Plain Dealer said it had learned that Gilligan and his key aides made the decision to keep Lavelle at a recent meeting in Columbus.

The Plain Dealer report said Gilligan wants to strengthen his hold on the party leadership and keep Lavelle even if it means getting into a fight with Glenn.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Light years apart

WASHINGTON — President Ford's economic summit and the annual meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund might have occurred on different planets instead of in the same city. The appeal that each uttered was irrelevant one to the other.

President Ford summing up the summit called for holding down government spending to keep the federal budget at or below $300 million. He asked Americans to devote 10 days of the month to conserving energy, listing ways to do this and exchanging the lists with neighbors.

With this voluntarism the American standard of living, the highest in the world, will not be seriously impaired.

President Robert S. McNamara called on the industrialized members of the World Bank to provide immediately billions of aid for the developing nations. Unless this comes about, the end will be death and disaster for those living at the bottom of the heap.

Their already appallingly low standard has been gravely worsened in the past year by the quadrupling of oil prices and a resulting scarcity of food and fertilzer.

For each President, the verdict may be too little and too late. Split down the middle between Democrats and Republicans, labor and management, the summit chose to ignore what has happened to the economy during the past 12 months.

Steel prices have increased by 40 per cent, almost the biggest increase ever. This was ture even though in July less steel was produced, despite a greater capacity, than in July a year ago. Industrial chemicals jumped 50 per cent, nonferrous metals 46 per cent, oil 82 per cent. These basic increases are quickly reflected in consumer prices.

With an attempt to roll back these price levels, sternly ruled out along with any form of wage and price controls, much of the rhetoric indulged in at the summit was just rhetoric. As a latecomer Ford, gets good marks for an exercise in education. But as for practical results in the war on inflation, they are not yet in sight.

McNamara cannot be faulted for failing to try. He has repeatedly inveighed against the complacency of the wealthy, industrialized members of his bank. This has hit hard at the United States with 6 per cent of the world's population uses more than 30 per cent of all resources.

He waged an uncreasing struggled, which was finally successful, to get the Congress to provide funds for the American share of a consortium to replenish the International Development Agency IDA, the Bank's low-interest subsidiary.

But for all the intensity and concentration of his efforts, the plight of the sub-Saharan nations has steadily grown worse. The structure of a relief system has not been built into what is largely an underdeveloped and primitive area even when relief supplies are available, it has often been difficult if not impossible to get food and medicines to the starving.

The real gap, however, is in the attitude of Congress and the public toward aid. It has come almost to a dead stop. Repeatedly aid programs are cut and they have become even more unpopular as they are involved, on the arms side, in big power politics.

McNamara is a man of conscience. In his opening address to the World Bank meeting he called the situation of one billion human beings in the poorest of the member countries desperate. Then he went on with an appeal that may or may not be heard on capitol hill:

"Aid is not a luxury - something affordable when times are easy, superfluous when times become temporarily troublesome. It is precisely the opposite. Aid is a continuing social and moral responsibility and its need now is greater than ever.

"It is true that the affluent nations in the face of shortages and inflation, and in order to continue to expend aid, many have to accept for the time being some selective reduction in their already immensely high standard of living. If they have to they can absorb such inconveniences."

Presidents Ford and McNamara were each calling for belt tightening. But their aims are light years apart. McNamara was in effect calling on the Congress to add a billion or two billion dollars a year to the aid budget. Ford was asking for budget balancing to hold down inflation.

A distant goal now seems to be within reach. Press on, and don't let others discourage you.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

A new surge of energy should carry you far along the road to success and recognition. But keep an eye on the main objective. Don't go off on tangents.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Do not let a personal disappointment mar your overall perspective. Continue to aim for high goals. Your adeptness, know-how and intuition should be potent now.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

By investigating background information you receive, you may find a good way to improve your financial set-up. But DO investigate.

LIBRA

Some difficulty in communication likely. Be especially careful in what you tell another "confidentially." It could boomerang.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a great variety of talents and, properly educated, of course, can succeed in many fields. However, you differ from most Librans in several ways: You are not as practical as most. You rebel at routine and established principles, and you are far more emotional than the average Libra-born. A profession would suit your talents far more than a business career, and you could make a truly eminent name for yourself as a playwright, author, architect, lecturer or teacher. The mysteries of science — especially in the electronic field — would also appeal to you. Try not to scatter energies. Complete one project before beginning another. Having too many irons in the fire at one time will only make you nervous and irritable.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Saturday night at Creekfront Stadium there was a football game; but in addition there were some other things that happened.

There were a number of people involved in planning, arranging, conducting, and broadcasting this event. Together, the group exhibited a community spirit that isn't often seen these days — enthusiasm and creativity necessary for an evening of good home town humor; an attitude of friendliness and good sportsmanship that welcomed a new honorary citizen; and perhaps even more important, a commitment to support a worthwhile community project.

Certainly a "round of applause" and a "pat on the back" is in order for all those who gave so freely to make this activity the success that it was.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

We want to take this opportunity to thank, not only the marchers and captains who made the Breath of Life Cystic Fibrosis campaign a real success, but especially we want to thank you, the citizens of the Washington C.H. community for opening your hearts generously to this worthwhile venture. We assure you the contributions will be used wisely to stamp out this disease that is terminal to so many of our children.

If there are any who were not at home Sunday, October 6, when the marchers called, who would like to contribute, an envelope was left at your door for that purpose or if you will call either 335-6977 or 335-4207 we will be glad to call back.

Again, thank you so much for being so kind and generous.

"WE HAVE NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT. WE CAN ALWAYS COUNT ON DETROIT AND THE AMERICAN PUBLIC."

Kid vs. professor in California race

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The 1974 contest for governor of California has been portrayed in prize fight terms: "The Kid vs. The Professor."

The Kid is Edmund G. Brown Jr., 36, Democrat, secretary of state, bachelor son of former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, lean, intense, quick with the political jab.

The Professor is Houston I. Flournoy, 45, Republican, Ivy League Ph.D., family man. He spent 10 years in a college classroom teaching government and 14 years in Sacramento practicing it. More experience, but less zing to his political punch.

Theirs is a tough act to follow, that of polished pro Ronald Reagan, retiring after eight years as chief executive.

The frustration is particularly acute for Flournoy as he battles the residue of Watergate, the pervading issue of inflation, apathy at the GOP grass roots and fund-raising problems common to both parties—but worse for Republicans.

And Democrats are hungry after eight years of California politics dominated by the Republican Reagan, hungry enough to suppress the open bickering that often plagues the party.

Even Republicans acknowledge that all the traditional political signs make Brown the front-runner and the likely winner on Nov. 5 barring a surprise issue or other unexpected development.

The last independent California Poll put Brown ahead 50-36 per cent. It was taken the week former President Richard Nixon resigned.

California also has a U.S. Senate race this year with Democrat Alan Cranston seeking a second term. His foe is 46-year-old H.L. Richardson, one of the most conservative members of the California State Senate and a one-time John Birch Society employe.

Cranston, 59, once one of California's most ardent liberals, has skillfully broadened his political base to include even some of Reagan's wealthy supporters. Political observers say he should win.

But the governor's race is always the big one in California, with the winner collecting national political recognition and prestige.

The campaign is different this year, even aside from Watergate and the economic problems. It is the first time since 1958 that neither man is an incumbent, the first since 1962 (Brown Sr. vs. Nixon) with debates, and the first in which campaign advertising is limited by mutual agreement: $900,000 each.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

He needs his father for a friend

DEAR ABBY: I needed some Scotch tape so I looked in my son's desk for some, and noticed the beginning of a letter my son had written to his girl friend. It read, "I am only interested in being stoned, spending money and sex."

I read no further.

My first impulse was to confront him with this, but then he would say I had no right to go snooping through his desk.

I don't think I should go on ignoring this. I would appreciate some advice. He is 18½.

BEWILDERED FATHER

DEAR FATHER: You could be about 17 years too late. It won't help you now to be reminded that you failed to build the kind of father-son relationship that inspires trust, confidence and total honesty. It's possible that what you read did not reflect your son's thoughts accurately, however

Don't tell him what you saw, but try to get a dialogue going so you can get inside his head. Encourage honesty, and no matter what he says, be cool, and don't put him down or make him feel guilty. If you can develop candid two-way communication you'll be able to influence and eventually help your son. He doesn't need punishment Father, he needs a mature understanding friend.

DEAR ABBY: About a week before our daughter and her steady graduated from high school, they told us that she was pregnant and they wanted to get married..

There was long silence, then my husband said: "We've all made mistakes in our lives, but some of us never got caught. Now you two kids will have to excuse us for five minutes while we plan our daughter's wedding."

Then Dad led me into the bedroom, handed me $25 and said: "Let's see if you're as smart about money now as you were 25 years ago."

Needless to say, time was short, so I went downtown the next morning and bought six yards of yellow cotton, two simple formal patterns, two yards of pink lace, two yards of ivory lace, and some pink and ivory ribbon, all for less than $10. (I had $15 left over for the flowers and reception. Boy, I had money to burn!)

My younger daughter (age 15) and I made the dresses. I baked the wedding cake and made punch. Only the very immediate families were invited to the wedding.

Out minister performed the ceremony in front of our fireplace, which was decorated with greenery from our garden and two white candles. The girls were beautiful in their simple dresses with their long black hair tied back with ribbons to match their dresses. The bride carried a single ivory carnation, and her sister, a pink carnation.

We made sure the fridge was well stocked, and Dad, Sister and I spent the weekend in a neighboring town with Dad's brother.

Dad says I'm still as smart about money as I was 25 years ago.

NO NAMES PLEASE

DEAR NO: You're not only smart about money, you are wise about other things, too. And so is your husband.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BLISSFUL IN EVANSVILLE, INDIANA": You are mistaken. No one said "ignorance is bliss."

The quote is, "Where ignorance is bliss, tis folly to be wise."

Pan Am employes seeking justice

By RALPH IZARD
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The fight for federal help to save economically troubled Pan American World Airways is not restricted to executive suites. It also involves people behind reservation desks, in maintenance hangars and on the runways.

Like the executives, the employes are reacting to the Ford administration's refusal to grant an emergency subsidy that Pan Am has said is crucial to its survival.

The employes have organized in such Pan Am bases as Miami, Berlin, New York, Karachi, San Francisco and San Juan in an effort to keep the company from going under.

They have outlined their complaints in full-page newspaper advertisements — paid for with $10,000 raised among themselves.

Committees have been sent to Washington to talk to congressmen; a group of pilots' wives is distributing copies of an article which outlines alleged unfair treatment; "Support Your U.S. Airline" bumper stickers were printed by employes in a company printing facility; retired stewardesses are donating proceeds from a cookbook they're selling in Miami.

An employes group in Karachi has even offered to return all the overtime pay received last month. Some international crewmen have offered 10 per cent of their salaries as loans.

"It's going beyond the job," said Sandra Del Conte, who has worked at the Miami reservations desk since 1965. "It's a cause. This is the American way. Everybody is pulling together."

They say they're not campaigning for a federal subsidy, but for an end to what they consider unfair treatment.

"It's probably best that we didn't get the subsidy," said Miami cargo department employe Edison Coulter. "Most of the people here don't want subsidy. But we have to get the inequities changed."

Pan Am has about 32,500 workers worldwide. About 3,400 are in Miami.

The inequities, workers explained, are such things as the United States paying foreign carriers more to carry U.S. mail than Pan Am is paid; Pan Am being forced to pay higher landing fees at overseas airports than foreign airlines are charged in this country, and the fact that Pan Am has to pay higher interest rates on loans than the U.S. Export-Import bank charges the foreigners.

"The more the regular Pan Am employe knows about the way this airline has been treated, the madder he gets," said Joseph Hunt, a flight engineer who has been with the company for 32 years. "Why in hell does our State Department sit back and watch one of its own children being chewed up by the people across the street.'

Easy victory for Wilson predicted

LONDON (AP) — An estimated 30 million Britons are voting today to choose who will impose rigid austerity on them and how, and whether Britain's future is with the Common Market or with Washington.

Polls predicted an easy victory for Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson over Edward Heath's Conservatives, but the polls have been dead wrong in Britain's last two elections.

The domestic choice is between Labor's assertion that the way out of Britain's economic crisis is through socialism and the Tories' stress on orthodox conservatism.

Neither choice may prove sufficiently appealing to give either party a majority in Parliament, and there have been indications of an upsurge in the strength of the Liberal party and nationalist parties in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

If neither the Laborites nor the Tories win a majority, Britain may have to settle for a minority government, as it did last February.

To form a majority government, a party has to win at least 318 of the 635 seats in the House of Commons. At dissolution, Labor held 298, the Tories 296, the Liberals 15, the Ulster Unionists 10, Scottish nationalists 7, two seats were vacant and the rest were divided among splinter groups.

Much of the campaign has mired in battles over statistics and in exchanges of invective. But the parties agreed on one point: Britain is living far beyond its means.

Venezuela studies oil management

By NIGEL CUMBERBATCH
Associated Press Writer

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela already is considering the possibility of seeking outside cooperation to meet any problems arising after it takes over the foreign-run petroleum industry next year.

President Carlos Andres Perez and his six-month-old centerleft government currently are preparing for state takeover of the industry, which has been mostly under American oil company management for more than 55 years.

But nothing has been said thus far as to what specific role the foreign companies would play after the nearly three-million-barrels-a-day petroleum industry is nationalized.

"It is too early to give a definite answer regarding the role, if any, that the foreign companies will assume after nationalization," said Valent Hernandez Acosta, Minister of Mines and Hydrocarbons, in an interview with The Associated Press.

"However, careful consideration is being given to this question," said the minister. "We are studying the possible problem areas which may occur after nationalization and, wherever deemed necessary, we will look for outside cooperation and would be willing to negotiate with the companies for providing us with the required services."

Hernandez Acosta heads a special 36-man broad-based commission appointed by Andres Perez shortly after his March 12 inauguration to study and draft recommendations for the takeover next year.

In a separate move, the Ministry of Mines and Hydrocarbons placed 16 nongovernmental experts as observers in the foreign oil companies. The observers will sit in on executive board meetings and their objective is to facilitate nationalization studies.

Government spokesmen say that some of these "observers" are likely candidates to head the state concerns which will take over from the foreign oil companies.

Under Andres Perez post-nationalization suggestion a type of national holding company would be formed and would be the central policy-setting entity controling a group of four operating affiliates.

Some 19 foreign-owned oil companies, including Exxon's Creole Petroleum Corp.; Shell de Venezuela, subsidiary of Royal Dutch Shell; Gulf Oil, Mobil, Sun Oil and Texaco, currently operate the industry which generates more than 90 per cent of the country's foreign income.

Revival scheduled

The Hickory Lane Church of Christ will begin a four-day revival service Thursday through Sunday at 7:30 p.m. nightly.

Rev. Chambers serves as a part-time faculty member of the Cincinnati Bible College.

Mrs. Victor Slutz, of New Holland, the Pioneer Quartet of Peebles, Mrs. Ronald Carr, of Hamilton, and the Hickory Lane congregation will provide music during the program.

An "after church fellowship" will be held Friday evening of the revival.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC-TV is bumping its low-rated "Sierra" series tonight for an excellent documentary about Xenia, Ohio, the small town devastated by a killer tornado last April and still rebuilding today.

The program isn't one of those quickies in which a network team checks right in after the event, returns six months later for progress footage, then pastes it all together and calls it a documentary.

It instead covers the Xenia story in stages, from the actual tragedy, to the town's effort to assess its losses and dig itself out, and finally to the long summer of still-continuing reconstruction.

Entitled "Tornado! 4:40 p.m., Xenia, Ohio," the opening segment includes not only close-up footage of the twister, filmed with a home movie camera by a Xenia resident, but also the actual sound of the tornado, recorded by another local resident.

It's chilling, spectacular material, to be sure, but the real meat of NBC's show lies in the quiet, low-key way it goes about reporting the reactions of the townsfolk to what had happened and what they hope will happen.

It makes particularly good use of photographs of the city's "old north end," taken the summer before the tornado by Xenia's former mayor, to illustrate what the storm had done to streets of stately old wood homes once surrounded by rows of elderly maple trees.

The verbal contrasts are equally good. A 14-year-old boy, recalling the moments after the twister passed on, said he heard no birds singing, and saw no neighborhood pets, "just people and trash."

His father, whose home and camera shop were destroyed, says he and his family aren't leaving, that "this tornado, dammit, is not going to have the last word."

The show primarily is about spirit and the spirit it conveys, is a good, hopeful one that should be seen by those of us who are convinced the nation has long since departed for hell in a handbasket.

Producer George Murray obviously put in a lot of time, care and thought on this show, as did writer Patrick Trese, who also skillfully handled most of the interviews in the one-hour program.

Blue Cross chief urges public help

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The president of Blue Cross of Northeast Ohio BCNO today challenged the public to join the fight against rising health care costs.

"We can tinker with the fiscal and mechanical details of the health care system forever, but until we can achieve an understanding and mastery of health care needs and demands, we will never gain effective control over costs," said Vernon R. Burt in remarks prepared for a public hearing sponsored by the Ohio Insurance Department.

He urged both the public and government to support BCND's efforts to seek solutions to the major problems that affect the health of Americans, including housing, malnutrition, pollution, inaccessibility to health services, alcoholism and drug addiction.

Burt was the opening speaker at the hearing, which was the last of a series conducted around the state on health care costs and needs. The hearings were called by Kenneth DeShetler, Ohio insurance commissioner.

Burt said BCNO would like to join the Department of Insurance in the development of legislation that:

—Would give the plan authority to underwrite all forms of institutional health care furnished by any organization which has demonstrated the giving of quality care at a reasonable cost;

—Would give the plan discretionary authority to contract with an individual hospital or other institutional provider;

—Would eliminate any restrictions requiring an earned surplus to remain as a surplus only for a particular line of business;

—Would strengthen the present authority of Blue Cross Plan to control costs through its provider contract; to further contract for quality assurance and utilization review; the authority to experiment with and develop alternative forms of reimbursement and health care delivery.

Burt said BCNO would favor such legislation as long as it was "not so specific as to be restrictive or prohibit flexibility."

Farm leaders see no drop in price

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Two Midwest Farm Bureau executives indicated farmers grudgingly will go along with President Ford's income tax surcharge but warned housewives not to expect food prices to drop during the battle against inflation.

"The surtax was a practical statement," said C. William Swank, executive vice president, Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. "When you send young men to fight a war, some people might think that's unfair, but it's practical."

Swank and George Doup, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau, held a joint news conference Wednesday to discuss farm prices.

Swank asserted that higher food prices were a "frustration but not a cause of inflation."

He attacked organized labor for insisting unions are not causing inflation.

"Asking for more money and not producing more product is inflationary by definition," said Swank.

"In agriculture, we have increased production per acre, per man hour and by any other measure."

Swank said food prices will go down only when all other prices drop because the prices are determined by the cost of production.

Doup said full production sought by President Ford will only come if farmers can expect good prices. Otherwise farmers will leave the land and "go to town to work.

"If we have the prospect of satisfactory prices, farmers will produce," said Doup. "The farmer loves to produce. He doesn't to cut back. He gets better profit by producing, but he has to have a good price to give him encouragement."

Swank insisted that food costs remain a smaller portion of the family consumer budget than five or 10 years ago.

"We've lost our benchmark and the housewife doesn't know what things ought to cost," said Swank.

Both said the cancellation of the contract to sell wheat to the Soviet Union will hurt farm exports.

"This will cause other countries to wonder when they place food orders if they will be filled," Doup said.

Both defended U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

Doup said Butz is not responsible for this year's poor weather. "We've had a triple whammy this year—a real wet spring, a dry summer and early frost."

Swank said Butz spoke with "candor" during the economic summit that farmers are entitled to the higher prices.

Night meets mark Kissinger trip

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is spending the day sightseeing before he and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat sit down tonight to talk over peace negotiations for the Middle East.

Sadat is precluded from daytime meetings because this is the lunar month of Ramadan, during which Moslems must observe a strict fast until sundown.

Kissinger's tour itinerary includes a visit to a fortress built by Saladin, the 12th century Ayyubite sultan of Egypt whose conquests included the Latin kingdom of Jerusalem.

But after sundown Kissinger and Sadat turn their attention to more contemporary Mideast strife in a session expected to last at least until 2 a.m.

On his sixth Mideast tour since the 1973 October war, Kissinger arrived in Cairo on Wednesday night and immediately met with Sadat and Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy.

"I had a very good talk with an old friend and a full review of the situation," Kissinger said.

But the statesmen revealed nothing about any progress toward resuming Arab-Israeli negotiations.

A senior U.S. official said earlier that Washington opposes early resumption of the Geneva peace talks, co-sponsored by the United States and the Soviet Union. He said the United States prefers negotiations outside the conference room.

Egyptian sources said Sadat wants a Geneva session before the end of the year. He was reported eager to avoid irritating the Russians at a time when Soviet-Egytian relations are improving.

Hours before Kissinger's arrival, the Egyptians pointedly issued a statement repeating that Fahmy is flying to Moscow on Monday to prepare for a visit to Cairo by Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and apparently to ask the Soviets to resume arms shipments.

Sources here said Sadat also needs another session of the Geneva talks to stave off criticism by militant Arab states that the peace process has foundered since Egypt, Syria and Israel separated their forces last winter and spring.

After tonight's talks, Kissinger flies to Damascus, Jordan and Israel. Then, after a call to Saudi Arabia, he may return for brief stops in Cairo and Damascus.

See Turkish turn to west Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Turkey probably would turn to Western European nations for arms if hit by a ban on U.S. military aid, U.S. officials say.

The Senate voted 62 to 19 Wednesday to prohibit further military aid to Turkey, but hours later, under threat of presidential veto, agreed to a resolution that would allow President Ford to suspend the ban until Dec. 15.

The resolution, offered by Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, was sent to the House, which already has approved the arms cutoff.

The Turkey arms prohibition is contained in a continuing money resolution that provides funds for foreign and other federal programs, for which regular annual appropriations have not been approved yet.

Ford had threatened to veto the money bill because of the amendment to halt military aid to Turkey, but Mansfield said the President had agreed to sign the bill if both branches passed the resolution to suspend the cutoff temporarily.

Under the resolution, Turkey could continue to receive U.S. arms until Dec. 15 if the President determines that continued military aid will help negotiations for a peaceful settlement in Cyprus.

Should the ban take effect, however, U.S. officials say several Western European countries likely would be prepared to step in and provide weapons to Turkey.

West Germany already gives and sells military hardware to Turkey, they say.

Italy has sold helicopters to the Turks and U.S. officials say the Italians are interested in selling them fighters.

"The French are always in the wings," said an American official, referring to France's extensive arms sales campaigns in many parts of the world.

Ohio Perspective

Battle obscurity for office

By CLINT SWIFT
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—At least four candidates for national and state office from northeastern Ohio are challenging one of the most formidable opponents a politician can face — relative obscurity.

Of the four — two from each end of the political spectrum — three seek the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum. One has joined the race for lieutenant governor.

Philip Lazar and Herman Kirsch are Socialist Workers Party candidates for senator and lieutenant governor, respectively. Richard Kay, state chairman of the American Independent Party, and Kathleen Harroff, state chairman of the Libertarian Party, also seek to succeed Metzenbaum.

Lazar, 25, making his first run for public office, is a veteran of antiwar and trade union movements. He was Ohio coordinator of the Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, which packed off 17 busloads of Clevelanders to the April, 1971, peace march in Washington, D.C.

He also was an officer of the Peace Committee of Local 46 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

Lazar considers his background good training for a senator.

"I'd scream bloody murder at any new Watergate-type revelations," he said. "I'm appalled to learn that congressmen knew since April what President Ford admitted last week—that the CIA has continually intervened in places like Chile."

One good way to fight inflation would be to cut back on government spending for its 2,000 military bases around the world, or use the money to build schools, hospitals and low-income housing, he suggested.

Kirsch, bespectacled 53-year-old tool grinder from Shaker Heights, cleaves to his party's line in opposing the two major political parties on grounds they merely support a capitalistic system which needs changing.

He said he would spread the SWP doctrine of a 30-hour work week for 40 hours pay to reduce unemployment and for an independent labor party to represent workers.

The U.S. is one of only two or three major nations in the Western World without such a party, Kirsch said.

"Government estimates 100,000 workers are killed in job-related accidents every year, and over a million are injured," he said. "Under any humanitarian system you'd expect to find a cash program to stop such carnage.

"But little appears being done and I don't think you'll find the Republicans or Democrats biting the big business or big labor hands that feed them."

Kay, a Cleveland attorney and conservative activist, noted for his defense of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., said he is running for the Senate as an independent to give voters a candidate they know is not involved in Watergate-type political operations.

"Ralph Perk's endorsement of the Nixon pardon and John Glenn's willingness to toe the Democratic party line in return for support shows my opponents are more concerned with party loyalty than with loyalty to principle," said Kay.

Kay advocates repeal of the federal law authorizing Americans to give $1 from income tax returns to one of the major political parties. He would replace it with a bill allocating money to educate people in their responsibility to support their favorite candidates with a small contribution.

"Ultimately the American people is responsible for Watergate," Kay said. "They have abdicated their responsibility to support candidates to big-money interests.

"With a good public relations campaign we could raise the number of persons contributing to political campaigns in this country from 500,000 to 10 million. And, it would dilute the influence of big labor and big business."

Miss Harroff, a manufacturer's representative from Bedford, has opposed government economic controls, federal aid to schools and prosecution of "victimless" crimes such as obscenity, prostitution and drug use.

Ohio Bell asks rate increase immediately

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Bell Telephone Co. says it wants to implement a 33 per cent rate hike immediately, without waiting for formal approval by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

Charles Day, an Ohio Bell spokesman, said the company will ask the PUCO to approve the immediate hike before full consideration of the new rates. He said refunds would be made if the increases ultimately are disapproved.

The telephone company announced the rate increase Wednesday. A company spokesman said the average $8 per month charge for a residential telephone will increase by about one-third, to $10.65, under the proposal.

The 33 per cent rate increase for both residential and business customers would affect some two million customers in one-third of the state served by the company.

The exact rate hike proposal will be submitted with tariff requests to the PUCO next month.

Ohio Bell is trying to find methods to cope with inflation with fair cost distribution, said William R. Gustaferro, assistant Ohio Bell vice president in charge of rates.

"We're seeking alternatives to place the increases where we incur our costs and on those who make greater use of our services than others," he said.

Alternatives suggested included:

—Charge for directory assistance after three calls a month.

—Increase the cost for telephone installation and disconnection.

—Measured business service exclusively throughout the state.

—Opportunity for residential customers to use measured service, outside of Cleveland where it now exists.

—Raising the present rate on public pay telephones from 10 cents a call to 15 or 20 cents a basic call.

Under the plan for measured service for residential customers payments would be standard for a maximum number of telephone calls. Above that number customers would be charged.

But the FDIC still is paying to salvage the remains of the U.S. National Bank of San Diego, which was responsible for $934 million in deposits when it went under and was sold to Crocker National Bank of San Francisco. The latest estimate pegged the cost to the FDIC at $48.3 million.

And now the insuring agency faces the prospect of picking up after the Franklin National Bank, which held deposits of $1.7 billion when it was sold to European-American Bank and Trust Co. Tuesday. The FDIC hasn't estimated its costs for Franklin.

Federal officials consider both cases to be caused by problems unique to the two banks rather than any other underlying defect in the banking system.

In the San Diego instance, officials point to dealings between the various corporations controlled by C. Arnholt Smith, the bank's controlling shareholder. The Franklin situation was tied to the bank's speculation in foreign currency transactions, they say.

The fund amounts to only 1.21 per cent of all insured deposits, but assurances of repayment go deeper. When a bank fails, the FDIC steps in to take over a bank's property and assets to make sure depositors get their money first.

"WE'RE ON THE ENERGY TEAM!"

"Our whole company is saving energy. The Government has asked corporations to reduce energy consumption 15%, and is providing guidance and incentive awards. We're saving on heating and air conditioning with better insulation and more efficient systems. And that giant sign on the roof that used to burn all-night—we turn it off at 10:30 now."

"I'm helping increase the capacity of an oil refinery so we can help meet the increased demands for gasoline and other usable forms of energy."

There's a big gap between domestic refining capacity and domestic energy needs, a gap that must be closed. To do it, we have to expand existing refineries or build new ones, so that our refining capacity can handle the growing demand for energy.

It will take everyone's understanding and cooperation to get this expansion and new construction going.

Jim Smith to head SCOL student council

Jim Smith, a senior at Washington Senior High School, has been elected president of the South Central Ohio League student council.

Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith, 623 S. Main St., was elected on the first ballot. He was opposed by Kirk Riff, of Miami Trace, and Geoff Phillips, of Wilmington.

He will preside over the SCOL student council meetings and plan the annual olympics and talent show.

"I feel that this is a great honor, and I hope I can do my very best for the league council," Smith said.

Schools in the SCOL are Washington C.H., Miami Trace, Wilmington, Hillsboro, Greenfield, Circleville and Unioto.

Fair weather favors nation

By The Associated Press

Clear skies were the rule across the nation today, although scattered showers remained over the Rockies.

Clouds also blanked the sun in parts of the Great Lakes region, New England and Washington.

New England claimed the coldest weather, with most of the nation having temperatures overnight from the 40s to the 60s.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 25 at Houlton, Maine, to 78 at Key West, Fla.

Vicki Lindsay and Brian Galloway

Seniors of the Week

Vicki Lindsay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lindsay, 549 Warren Ave., is the first featured senior.

Vicki enjoys reading, biking, listening to classical and modern music, collecting coins and "just being with people." She is an active member of AFS, Senior Y-Teens, the National Honor Society, marching band and concert band. She is also on the In-the-Know team and writes for the Blue Lines.

Following graduation, she plans to attend either Miami University or Bowling Green University where she will major in history.

Her advice to the underclassmen was, "Enjoy your years at WSHS and utilize all of the available opportunities to better prepare for the world after graduation."

BRIAN GALLOWAY, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Galloway, 510 Damon Drive, is a very active senior at WSHS.

He is enrolled in the college preparatory program for a major in engineering at Ohio State University. Academically, he proves himself through his election to Who's Who in American High School students and also serving for the second year on the In-the-Know team.

In 1972, he was a member of the general science team representing Washington C.H. in the Ohio Scholastic Test. The team achieved first place in the state with Galloway receiving third place in Ohio Division I and eighth overall. In 1973, he received 17th place in the district geometry and sixth place in the district American History in 1974. He was also an active participant in last year's school play.

When asked about his feelings of WSHS Brian said, "I have found my years at WSHS to be very rewarding. I have seen both disheartment and jubilation, but as long as I live, my memories of WSHS will be fond ones."

County loses construction regulation

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP) — Clermont County, a fast-developing area east of Cincinnati, has 15 days to appeal a state order which stripped its building department of power to regulate major construction.

The Ohio Board of Building Standards (OBBS) in Columbus took the action Wednesday saying the county department had failed to improve its inspection program during a probationary year.

Harold Bisantz, the lone Republican on the three-man board of county commissioners said he "was not the least bit surprised.

The state action, however, allows the building department to inspect construction of dwellings for three families or less.

All other projects, beginning Dec. 1, must be submitted to the Ohio Division of Factories and Building Inspectors in Columbus. Building permits will be issued in Columbus.

Violations of the state building code which posed threats of serious injury or deaths to occupants were discovered by an inspection team a year ago, according to OBBS Executive Director Hershel Davidson.

Davidson said the state took action after the Clermont department failed to improve.

"They have been making money off the people and haven't been giving them any service," said Davidson. "The people are being shortchanged."

The revocation also applies to municipalities served by the Clermont inspection office: Amelia, Batavia, Bethel, New Richmond, Newtonsville, Neville, Moscow, Owensville and Williamsburg.

An invasion

By SUE MOORE

Yes folks, that's right!

The plastic people are without a doubt invading the high school. And with them, they brought a monster called conformity. These plastic people are rampaging the halls every single day. A plastic person, by definition, is one who refuses to show his true idenity. He tends to put on an act, just so he can be like everyone else. This is where that monster, comformity, comes in. Of course, that's only a natural reaction.

No one wants to be labeled a "wierdo" by his friends, so he puts on a flase face just to keep them happy. But, in doing so, he loses his true idenity, and thus becomes a plastic person. I'd like to challenge all of the plastic people at Washington Senior High to rip off their false faces and help stop the monster that's stalking the halls.

Are you 18?

Ohio Selective Service Director Paul A. Corey reminds all 18-year-old men that the law requires them to register for the "draft" during the period 30 days before or 30 days after their 18th birthday.

Although there are no longer any inductions into the armed forces, registration is part of the law. Do not forget to register — the responsibility lies with you! It takes only a few minutes. You may register at WSHS by seeing Mr. Don Gibbs personally in the counselor's office between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Atomic plant expands force

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Employment at the Portsmouth area atomic energy plant will increase by more than 20 per cent by 1979 under the plant's current expansion program, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Vincent J. DeVito, superintendent of nuclear material control for Goodyear Atomic Corp., said the present fuel and energy situation is increasing the demand for enriched uranium and nuclear plants.

The Portsmouth plant is steadily improving its facilities, he said.

The plant now has more than 1,800 employes, and about 2,200 will be working there by 1979, DeVito said.

By JULIA FOSTER

"We are starting out small and part of the reason is because people have the misconception that GAA is only for the girl athlete." This is the thought of GAA advisor Mrs. Nikki Eyre. She stresses that GAA is an organization for all girls interested in any type of sport. It is to incorporate even the least skilled person who just wants to have fun with sports, not just the super girl athlete.

This organization is open to any girl in grades 9-12. The primary function of the club is to encourage girls who are interested in sports and to plan and help organize girls intermurials. There are conferences and meetings (Play Day at Miami University and Leadership Convention) where the girls can go and learn about activities available in girls sports. Camp outs and bike-hikes are a couple of the special activities being planned for the GAA club. GAA is an organization that hopefully will help present girls athletics prove that there is a place for girls in sports and that it will be more accepted."

Lower speed limit largely ignored

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

Despite ticket blitzes and radar traps, the 55 mile-per-hour national speed limit is being largely ignored by American drivers, according to state highway patrols.

People are driving slower than in years past, but speeds have crept upward as gasoline shortages disappeared, an Associated Press survey shows.

Cars on Interstate 90 in South Dakota now average 61.9 m.p.h., up from 54.5 m.p.h. in June. The average speed on Oregon roads was just over 61 m.p.h. in September. Texas officials reported that 85 per cent of all motorists are driving at between 62 and 65 m.p.h.

Drivers on interstate highways in Illinois now average 68 m.p.h.

"We don't have the manpower to enforce it, but we are doing the best we can," a state police spokesman said of the 55 m.p.h. limit.

Nationwide, few people are traveling at the 70 and 80 m.p.h. speeds formerly common on major highways. Despite widespread driving at 5 to 10 m.p.h. above the new speed limit, experts say significant gasoline savings are still being realized by the greater efficiency of automobile engines at the generally lower speeds on American roads.

Police in some states will give drivers a few miles more than the 55 m.p.h. limit, but the number of speeding tickets has soared as drivers pressed down on the accelerator again.

State police in Indiana, Missouri, Wisconsin and Texas have handed out twice as many speeding citations as in 1973. The Colorado State Patrol issued 13,251 speeding tickets in August, up from 6,277 a year ago. Oregon State Police ticketed 100,485 speeders in the first eight months of this year, up from 46,271 in the same period last year.

The 55 m.p.h. speed limit was adopted by many states as a gasoline saving measure after the Arab oil boycott last October. It was made nationwide by the federal government in March when gasless Sundays and service station lines were a national fixture.

Rhodes proposes federal help for fuel bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Former Gov. James A. Rhodes called Wednesday for the federal government to begin paying part of the utility bills of retired persons on fixed income.

In a statement released by his campaign headquarters, the Republican gubernatorial nominee said rates for gas and electricity and other utilities should be frozen, with the government picking up the tab for future increases.

Rhodes indicated the program in Ohio would cost about $200 million a year in two or three years, at a rate of $200 to $250 per year for about one million retired Ohioans.

Rhodes compared the proposal with Medicare and Medicaid programs.

Music director in own class

Charlene Archibeque is a woman in a class of her own.

To look at her slim, graceful features, her demeanor relaxed and informal, one would scarcely believe she is world reknown for her precision and expertise in music technique.

However, her enthusiasm, intelligence and sensitivity have combined to form the prestigious music director respected by her San Jose State University students and international music educators alike.

THE DAUGHTER of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Paullin of 15 Colonial Court, she is not only choir director and music professor at the California college, but is also director of the San Jose Symphony and auxiliary chorus director of the San Francisco Opera Chorus.

Charlene returned to Washington C.H. for a short, Labor Day weekend with her parents after returning from a trip to Nova Scotia. The visit was the first in four years but as Mrs. Paullin said, "It's hard to see her when she is so busy."

A 1953 graduate of Mount Sterling High School, Charlene began teaching at San Jose in 1970, having received her master's degree from San Diego State University and her doctorate from the University of Colorado.

In 1973, her California Bay Area College Chorale traveled to the Fifth International Choir Festival at The Hague, Netherlands, and returned with first place honors. That same year, Dr. Archibeque was named Outstanding Educator of America.

Dr. Archibeque has also conducted choirs in Sweden, Denmark, West and East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria and Switzerland to extend a long list of performances around the globe. She traveled 75,000 miles in 10 months during the past year.

Several other international invitations had to be declined due to a huge work schedule already employed by Dr. Archibeque.

In December, Dr. Archibeque and the San Jose State University Chorale will join the San Jose Symphony in the rarely performed Ralph Vaughan Williams' "A Sea Symphony."

Dr. Archibeque said recently she believed her mid-western background provided her with a sound musical base. She started in music at the age of six receiving lessons in piano, violin and percussion.

Dr. Archibeque believes very strongly in the importance of music education at the elementary level.

"EVERY CHILD born deserves to be taught music, and they should get it in the early grades along with reading, writing and arithmetic. Nor should it be difficult. I can teach anyone to read music in three hours time," she said. She founded the San Diego Youth Chorale.

Dr. Archibeque is now president of the California Music Educators Association and the Northwest Music Educators Association, while also acting as choir director of a Presbyterian Church near San Francisco.

Teaching music is more than just a career — or inspiration — to Dr. Archibeque. "This, in essence, is my religion: to share what I have — my knowledge, my vitality and my enthusiasm."

Ford wants solid summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford would like to recharge the drive toward improved U.S.-Soviet relations by meeting this year with Russian Communist party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, but only if there is prior progress in major negotiating areas.

Ford said in his news conference Wednesday, "If there is reason for us to meet before that (the U.S.-Soviet summit meeting scheduled for 1975), I will certainly consider it."

Ford said he had promised when he took office to continue the detente policy of former President Richard M. Nixon and took up the subject with various Soviet officials, including foreign minister Andrei Gromyko about two weeks ago.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will discuss a possible 1974 Brezhnev-Ford meeting when he spends four days in Moscow later this month, the President said.

After the news conference, other U.S. officials said Ford is not interested in a mere get-acquainted meeting, strongly preferring serious discussions.

They said that in line with this thinking, Ford has made substantive progress a prerequisite in such areas as nuclear arms talks and balanced troop reductions in Central Europe.

What Ford wants as a precondition progress in the second round of strategic arms limitation talks, or SALT II, is an indication that a previous split in the U.S. administration on a negotiating position may be over.

The pace of detente has slowed considerably since Kissinger failed to achieve the expected progress on SALT II when he last visited Moscow last summer.

When Kissinger leaves for Russia, "We will have some guidelines for him to discuss in a preliminary way with the Soviet Union," Ford said.

There had been disagreement between Kissinger and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger over the scope of any pact limiting offensive nuclear arms as well as over the numbers involved.

Discharging firearm case dismissed here by judge

A case charging a city man with discharging a firearm within the city limits was dismissed in Municipal Court Wednesday.

The case against Lester P. LeMaster, 24, Rt. 4, was dismissed by acting Judge John P. Case after he found the defense motion to dismiss well made. LeMaster, who was defended by Otis R. Hess Jr., pleaded innocent to the charge. Gary Smith served as attorney for the prosecution.

John C. Sullivan, 59, of 914 E. Market St., was fined $50 Wednesday by Judge Case on a charge of disorderly conduct by intoxication. Sullivan, who was under $100 bond, had pleaded guilty to the charge.

Only three traffic cases were filed in Municipal Court Wednesday with all forfeiting bonds.

Robert W. Fox, 19, Mt. Sterling, forfeited $25 for failure to drive upon the right half of the roadway, and Lester P. LeMaster, 24, Rt. 4, forfeited a total of $175 bond on charges of speeding and operating a vehicle while his license was under suspension.

Consulate hostages freed as terrorists leave country

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — American diplomat Barbara Hutchison was in good spirits and joking after seven leftist terrorists released her and six other hostages in return for safe conduct out of the country.

"Suddenly I became a tremendous bargain. I went from a million to nothing," the 47-year-old American quipped to newsmen Wednesday night after the 13-day episode ended.

The gunmen originally demanded $1 million ransom and the release of 37 leftist prisoners. They got nothing except a safe getaway.

The terrorists, who had held the hostages since Sept. 27 in a second-floor room of the Venezuelan consulate, were flown aboard a special Dominican jet to Panama, where they proclaimed victory and said they were exhausted.

As they left the Boeing 727 at Tocumen International Airport near Panama City, the gunmen, led by leftist Radhames Mendez Vargas, were met by Lt. Col. Manuel Antonio Noriega, chief intelligence officer of the Panamanian National Guard.

Miss Hutchison, director of the U.S. Information Service in the Dominican Republic, said she and the other hostages were treated well during the siege and even developed "something of a friendship" with their captors.

But she said there were many tense moments, the most difficult being "the waiting and then the various crises as they occur. There was a package of dynamite, and we were living with that."

She said that gunmen and hostages alike often were short of water. The government intermittently allowed food and drink to be taken to those inside the consulate.

Miss Hutchison told newsmen that despite her ordeal she intends to continue her tour in the Dominican Republic that began in 1972 after a long USIS career in other parts of Latin America.

"Mendez bet me $5 that I would have to leave the Dominican Republic because (he said) all diplomatic kidnap victims have to leave the country once they are freed," she said.

Bad crops hurt stock producers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reduced 1974 grain harvests continue to bear heavily on livestock producers and there is a good chance the situation may worsen after today's crop report by the Agriculture Department.

Officials prepared to issue updated production estimates for corn, soybeans, wheat, and many other crops at 3 p.m. EDT today. Private forecasters already have indicated further declines as the result of frost damage to corn and soybeans last month.

The figures will be based on USDA surveys made Oct. 1. A month earlier, when similar surveys were made, the fall harvest situation looked like this:

Corn — 4.99 billion bushels, down 11 per cent from 1973 output.

Soybeans — 1.32 billion bushels, down 16 per cent from last year.

Wheat — 1.79 billion bushels, up 5 per cent from 1973.

Cotton — 13.2 million bales, up 2 per cent from last year.

Meantime, on the eve of today's crop report, the department said "feed supplies and prices are the critical concerns" facing livestock producers in the coming year.

"Prospects for reduced feed grain and soybean output have resulted in rising prices and cutbacks in livestock feeding," the department's Outlook and Situation Board said.

"Hog producers are planning to farrow the fewest number of sows this fall since 1965," the board reported. "Numbers of cattle on feed are the fewest in over six years, and poultry production is being cut a tenth."

The board, in a preliminary report on the livestock and meat situation, noted that it takes time for producers to adjust to grain price developments and that hog slaughter will continue to be up this fall from a year ago.

"But look for smaller supplies and higher prices next year," the report said.

Cattle slaughter is up from a year ago and last summer, with all of the increase coming from cows and steers and heifers which have had little grain fed to them.

"Grain-fed cattle slaughter is trailing last fall but probably will total a little larger than in the (past) summer," the report said. "Average cattle slaughter weights are now lighter than in the summer or a year ago."

Officials said market prices of grain-fed cattle probably will average $42 to $44 per 100 pounds at Omaha during the fourth quarter and may rise to the $43 to $45 range in the first quarter or 1975. In the fourth quarter of last year, they averaged slightly over $40.

Hogs were estimated at $33 to $35 per hundredweight on the average at Midwest markets in the fourth quarter, down from nearly $41 in October-December last year. The outlook for the first quarter of 1975 is in the $38 to $40 range.

Hunter-safety course scheduled for Sunday

A special hunter-safety course will be held at the Fayette County Fish and Game Association lodge on Stafford Road from 1:30 until 4:30 p.m. Sunday. The annual event provides an opportunity for professional instruction in safe gun handling and "firearms etiquette" in the home and in the field.

Fayette County game protector Jerry Cremeans will conduct the course and he will be assisted by experienced members of the local sportsmen's organization. Cremeans will actually demonstrate the safe handling techniques, show movies on the subject from the National Rifle Association, and give an informal quiz at the conclusion of the program to measure the students' understanding. Attractive shoulder patches will be awarded to participants. Adults as well as younger hunters are urged to participate in the course.

Some actual practice shooting under carefully controlled conditions will be conducted and students may bring their own rifles or shotguns and ammunition.

Market poor for old newspapers

By JACK LEFLER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bottom has dropped out of the market for old newspapers.

"The market is very soft," said Harold Cowan, owner of AAA Industrial Paper Supply of Los Angeles, a firm that buys old newspapers for recycling into newsprint and industrial products.

The price has slumped from $32 a ton six months ago to $10 for domestic use and $5 for export.

Early this year there was a scramble for old newspapers, with Japanese and Korean interests grabbing a big percentage of the market and driving the price up. Now there is a surplus.

Japanese sources, commenting on the slowdown in paper imports, noted that their country's economy, which has been growing at a rate of 10 per cent a year for the last two decades, has slowed down and this has affected imports of all types.

In 1972, Japan and Korea shipped about 2,200 tons of old newspapers a month from Southern California ports.

As the demand rose, a monthly shipment of 12,000 tons was projected for 1974, but it should fall far short.

Cowan said he has a surplus of newspapers on hand, hasn't bought any in eight weeks and probably won't for another two weeks. This has put a crimp in collection drives by schools and churches, but their efforts are still going on to a limited extent.

Probably the biggest user of old newspaper for recycling into newsprint is Garden State Paper Co. with plants in Pomona, Calif., Garfield, N.J., and Alsip, Ill.

Sixty-five newspapers in California and about 200 throughout the country are using recycled newsprint.

"Although prices for waste newspapers have dropped in recent weeks, the general paper industry, particularly on the West Coast, is stronger today than at any time since World War II," said Richard B. Scudder, chairman of Garden State.

"Today's waste newspaper prices are higher than any paid since January 1973, when an unexpected export demand resulted in unprecedented high prices.

"The so-called current drop in prices occurred as the export market closed off its purchases and the domestic market adjusted to the situation."

Lifer gets chance for prison parole

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

FOLSOM, Calif. (AP) — "I sure would like to go home. I haven't seen the moon or the stars in 44 years."

Ernest Dias has lived in a prison cell since 1930, when at the age of 24 he was convicted of killing a young couple in an attempted holdup.

Now, thanks to a recent court decision, he faces the prospect of parole next month.

"It's just one of those things. You've got to take the bitter with the sweet," Dias said in an interview with a fellow inmate at Folsom State Prison, where Dias has spent the last 33 years. The interview appeared in the September issue of the Folsom Observer.

Dias, who grew up in the Oakland area, originally received the death sentence, but it was commuted to life imprisonment with no chance of parole. He spent the first 11 years in San Quentin Prison before being transferred to Folsom.

After capital punishment was abolished, the courts held the no-parole sentence unconstitutional. Last month an Alameda County Superior Court judge reviewed Dias' case and ordered he be given a hearing before the Adult Authority, now set for November.

"I have hope now after all these years," Dias said. "I've had enough of this place. I've seen the light. I want to keep working, possibly on a farm, when I'm paroled. The outside world will be strange, but I'll get used to it. I'll have to adjust."

Dias' prison counselor, William French, isn't so sure.

"It's as if he's been in a time capsule. He hasn't really thought about parole plans in the past, because of the sentence," French said. "Unless he has somewhere to go, it's cruel and unusual punishment to take someone after 44 years and say, 'Here's the street, goodby.'"

Prison records show Dias has a brother in San Jose and a sister-in-law somewhere in California, but he has received only three or four visits during the past 15 years.

Metzenbaum wants oil chief out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard Metzenbaum said Wednesday he hopes President Ford will withdraw the nomination of a former Exxon oil executive to a federal energy post.

The Ohio Democrat said the nominee, Melvin A. Conant, received a $90,000 gift from the company when he quit to work for the government.

Metzenbaum said Conant, who has been acting director of international economic affairs of the Federal Energy Administration, is "oil company oriented, but I want to emphasize I do not question the man's integrity."

Metzenbaum said he told Conant that he, Metzenbaum, feels the oil company "has him" because of the bonus the company gave him.

All Nixon appointments requiring Senate confirmation are going to be withdrawn by the White House and resubmitted following the congressional recess, Metzenbaum explained.

"I would hope that the new President would recognize the American public would have difficulty in understanding this kind of person being put in a position of this kind of responsibility," he said.

Metzenbaum said he would vote against confirmation if Conant's name in resubmitted for the post.

Joan Kennedy faces DWI charges

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Joan Kennedy, the wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has been charged with driving under the influence of alcohol after her convertible crashed into the back of an auto stopped for a street light.

Fairfax County police said the charge on conviction carries maximum penalties of a year in jail and a $1,000 fine, and suspension of driver's license for six months. Police said, however, that such penalties are reserved for very grave cases that usually involve injuries or fleeing the scene of the accident, circumstances that don't exist in Mrs. Kennedy's case.

Police said Mrs. Kennedy was administered a breathalyzer test, but they would not disclose the results. The charge of driving under the influence is the only charge in the state of Virginia if alcohol or drugs are found above a certain level.

Mrs. Kennedy was alone in her car driving southbound on Route 123 at about 1:45 p.m. EDT Wednesday when her auto struck another southbound vehicle at an intersection. The other vehicle, driven by Edward F. McGrath, 49, of nearby Vienna, Va., was pushed into the car ahead driven by Mrs. Carol A. Pinder, 25, also of Vienna.

All three cars sustained damages that police said totaled around $1,400.

McGrath said Mrs. Kennedy was very apologetic after the chain-reaction collision and that she said she was "pleased there were no children in the cars at the time."

McGrath, a civilian employe in the Pentagon's telecommunications center, said he detected no sign that Mrs. Kennedy had been drinking.

"If she had been drinking, it didn't appear to be in any great degree," McGrath said.

Mrs. Kennedy recently has spent time in rest homes in Connecticut and California.

Rural mishaps are checked

Two accidents were investigated Wednesday by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

A car driven by Michael A. Dillon, 19, Hillsboro, incurred slight damage when it ran over an article which fell off a truck driven by John E. King, 58, Lynchburg, that the Dillon car was following on Ohio 41. Sheriff's deputies stated the mishap occurred at the New Martinsburg Road intersection at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. No one was injured.

Moderate damage was incurred by vehicles driven by Ralph Banks, 45, U.S. 62 and James E. Nilan, 47, of 608 E. Paint St., at 4:55 p.m. Wednesday, sheriff's deputies reported.

Nilan had been following a car in his van on U.S. 62-S, one-tenth mile south of the Rowe-Ging Road intersection, when he attempted to pass it. The Banks auto was engaging in a left turn into a private driveway ahead of the unidentified vehicle and the van and Bank's auto collided. There were no injuries.

The Olympic games became a national Greek festival in 776 B.C.

Industry, restaurant get building permits

Building permits for a new plant to be located in the Washington C.H. Industrial Park and a family steak house have been issued in the City Office Building.

City inspector Glenn Tatman said the building permits for the new industry and the restaurant top a total of 13 permits issued recently. Estimated value on the 13 building permits is $398,804.

RAVEN INDUSTRIES, Inc., headquartered in Sioux Falls, S.D., has been issued a building permit to construct a 17,000 square foot steel structure on Kenskill Avenue in the city's Industrial Park.

Modern Sales and Construction Co., of Wilmington, will erect the $100,000 steel building, which was manufactured at the Armco Steel Corp. Metal Products Division plant in Washington C.H.

The Washington C.H. plant, which will employ nearly 20 workers when full production commences, will produce fiberglass and polyethylene tanks for agricultural, industrial and water-conditioning use.

Tatman said Woodrow Deskins, a Washington C.H. area developer, has been issued a building permit to erect a Blue Drummer family steak house at the corner of Columbus Avenue and Blackstone Street.

The brick and frame structure, estimated at $250,000, will be owned by CB Enterprises, a Washington C.H. partnership comprised of Chester Brown and Ted, Jack and Gary Cartwright. The land and building will be leased to Van-Orr Foods, Inc., of Zanesville.

The 51,300 cubic foot family steak house will be situated on a lot, just east of the present Food World, Inc., grocery store on property formerly occupied by a Sun Oil Co. service station.

OTHER BUILDING permits issued recently include:

Allen Willoughby, 805 Lincoln Drive, room addition at residence, $4,400;

Charles Bowers, 221 W. Elm St., new garage at residence, $2,100;

Raymond Caulley, 1005 Willard St., new garage at residence, $125;

Richard Downard, 625 Harrison St., new garage at residence, $3,000;

David Whiteside, 731 E. Paint St., room addition at residence, $800;

Lester Stephenson, Anderson Road, new residence at 617 Damon Drive, $32,000;

Burgess Rose, 1217 S. Hinde St., room addition at residence, $500;

William Pentzer, 1025 Columbus Ave., utility building, $500;

Jack Balahtsis, 238 Kathryn Court, new garage at 426 N. Fayette St., behind present harness shop, $5,000;

Ralph Forsythe, 614 S. Main St., utility building, $200; and Samson Prysiagnivh, 1315 Nelson Place, utility building, $179.

5 school districts ready to close

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Five Ohio school districts have taken the first formal step toward closing their doors, citing increasing costs and voter rejection of tax levies.

The school districts say they don't have enough money to operate for the rest of the school year.

The state auditor's office said Wednesday the five districts have applied for a "financial cash analysis." The special audit is required before the districts can ask Martin W. Essex, state superintendent of public instruction, to formally approve the shutdowns.

One of the districts, Chippewa Local in Wayne County, received audit certification last month to close on Nov. 15. However, Essex said he was informing the district he would not act on their application until after the Nov. 5 election.

Essex said all five districts had school levy issues on the ballot, and that the Chippewa schools would stay open if a 5.9 mill levy passed. The Chippewa district has 1,800 pupils.

The other districts are Bellefontaine City School District Logan County; Twinsburg City School District, Summit County; Warren City School District, Trumbull County, and Wellington Exempted Village School District, Wayne County. Almost 22,000 pupils are enrolled in the districts.

The findings of audits in those districts will not be announced until after the election, Deputy State Auditor Thomas Ferguson said, because of a long-standing policy against the release of any audit in the 30 days before an election.

A sixth district, Danbury Local in Ottawa County, applied, but was declared ineligible because it did not meet the requirement that two tax levies be defeated in the district within the calendar year, a spokesman said.

Four WSHS students express feelings about drug program

By MARK THELLMANN

"When you leave here, you're gonna break down and cry, because you're not going to want to go," four Washington Senior High School students were told the first day of the Teenage Institute Program on Alcohol and Other Drugs, held at Ohio Wesleyan University this summer.

Brian Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cook, 1229 High St., chuckled at the comment. The three girls who attended the program with him Barbara Oswald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Oswald, 805 Briar Ave.; Cindy Van Meter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frelan Van Meter, 525 Alvbin Ave., and Cynthia Vaughn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S.E. Vaughn, 1336 Nelson Place, shrugged their shoulders and wondered what could possibly make them cry when they got ready to go home four days later.

When it came time to leave, the tears came and they knew.

The "why" is difficult to explain, because it's sometimes impossible to put emotions into words on paper. The four Washington Senior High School students experienced more than just a seminar on alcohol and drugs; they experienced people on all levels of understanding. They cared about their fellowman and realized his needs more than ever before. They realized "we" are all the same person.

IT'S TRUE they viewed films and heard lectures about drugs and alcohol, along with confessions and discussions by ex-drug addicts and alcoholics (there is no such thing as an "ex-alcoholic," because once one is, one is. One quits and the disease is put in dormancy, but one can never have another drink again, because one is never cured.)

The four were made aware of the problems in life shared by those all around them and "those around them" were students of the same age group from all socio-economic walks of life. Some of the problems Brian, Barbara, Cynthia and Cinda discussed with others made their own personal problems so diminutive, they disappeared; leaving them free to stretch out a helping hand.

For four days 320 students from all over Ohio formed new friendships. Maybe that's why everyone cried - the friendships were too short. For many, it was the first time they looked into themselves and others on such a deep level of understanding and honestly with their emotions. It was too beautiful and too short a stay.

Brian, Barbara, Cinda and Cynthia admitted they were trying to retain the feeling of "togetherness' they felt during the seminar and carry it with them throughout their lives - feeling it with everyone they meet; realizing everyone needs help, everyone needs love and everyone needs everyone else.

The four will be scheduled to speak at various meetings throughout the school year about the seminar. They have spoken to Kiwanis Club and will be the featured speakers at Mother's Circle on Oct. 21 and at the Fayette Memorial Hospital School of Practical Nursing on Nov. 19.

Barbara Oswald was one of 10 chosen from the 320 students attending the conference, who will have the opportunity of planning next year's conference.

The trip for the four students was funded by the Washington C.H. Lions Club, the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club, Alcoholics Anonymous and the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Cancer unit here honored

The Fayette County unit of the American Cancer Society was honored for outstanding programming achievements at the 29th annual meeting of the American Cancer Society's Ohio division.

The Ohio division award of merit was presented to the Fayette County unit for its colon and rectal cancer detection project conducted last April. It was accepted on behalf of the unit by Dr. Byers W. Shaw, a Washington C.H. surgeon, who organized the project.

THE DAY-LONG meeting was highlighted by citing the more than 180,000 volunteers who participated in this year's record-setting statewide crusade of $4 million plus. Fayette County's contribution to the record was $17,578 compared to $12,049 the previous year. Fayette County's per capita contribution was 69 cents, eighth highest in the state.

Volunteers heard Dr. Myron Moskowitz, director of the breast cancer detection center at the University of Cincinnati, report on the activities of the jointly-funded American Cancer Society-National Cancer Institute project.

Those attending the annual meeting from Fayette County were Mrs. Charline Cunningham, unit president; Mrs. Charlene Barber, executive director; Dr. Shaw and Mrs. Mabel Rolfe, delegates; Mrs. Donna Jean Johnson, treasurer; Robert E. Minshall and Mrs. Wanda Taylor, public information committee, and Mrs. Sally Antoine and Mrs. Eleanor Henry, members of the board of directors.

Threat brings jail term in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— James Hardy, 33, convicted of sending a threatening letter to Police Chief Carl Goodin and sentenced to three to 10 years in jail, was free on $1,000 appeal bond today.

Hardy, leader of a local group called "Solving Black Problems Now," insisted he did not send the letter. He claimed it was a forgery.

Hardy, upon release, said his conviction was a conspiracy by city officials to remove him as an embarrassment to them.

The letter, which referred to a regional chapter of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army, threatened Goodin, politicians and federal program workers, according to William Whalen, assistant prosecutor.

Hardy testified that he did not write the letter. Two postal handwriting experts said he did.

Goodin said he was forced to alter police plans because of the letter.

The letter, introduced as evidence, said politicians "can prepare to make their bed in hell;" policemen can expect "retaliatory violence three times greater than any violence demonstrated in Vietnam and World Wars I and II," drug pushers "will automatically be seriously beaten, killed or both;" and federal employees can "make funeral arrangements now."

Washington to visit Wilmington

Explosive offense awaits Lions

BY LARRY WATTS
RECORD-HERALD SPORTS EDITOR

Washington's defense will really have to be on its toes when the Lions visit Wilmington this week. In its offensive attack, the Hurricane probably possess the most versatile backfield in the South Central Ohio League.

Halfbacks Jackie Watson and Bob Scott pose the biggest threats for the Lions' defense. The two speedsters lead the league in rushing average. Watson, who is also the league's top scorer with 70 points, has carried the ball 73 times for 504 yards and averaged 6.9 yards per carry. Scott, who holds a 6.65 rushing average, has picked up 226 yards in 34 carries.

"Wilmington is the most frightening offensive team in the SCOL because of their double breakaway threat in Watson and Scott," remarked Washington coach Maurice Pfeifer. "The Hurricane are not a ball control team. The key to their success is the breakaway threat and the ability to keep a defense guessing with a powerful runner and a good passer."

Fullback Russ Crosthwaite, who is 6-foot 1 and weighs 205 pounds, and quarterback Duane Earley have been playing in the shadows of Watson and Scott all year. Although Watson and Scott carry the ball 20-30 times per game, Crosthwaite keeps the defenses from spreading out with his plunges up the middle. Earley, who has scored 30 points this season, has also proven himself to be a good runner and an adequate passer, as he has hit on 10 of 24 passes for 151 yards.

"I would much rather be playing against a team with a powerful running attack than against a team like Wilmington with their breakaway threats," Pfeifer noted "We have to make too many defensive adjustments in preparing for them. Every time Watson or Scott carry the ball, you have to hold your breath because they score two or three touchdowns per game between them."

While Wilmington offers an explosive offense the Lions' defense has been equally stingy. The Hurricane are averaging slightly over 25 points per game, while Washington has held its opponents to seven points per game. Wilmington's offense will carry a 19-pound per player advantage over the Lions' defense into the contest.

Last week, Washington's defensive unit recorded its first shutout of the year in defeating Greenfield 18-0. Greenfield was only permitted to run 42 offensive plays, while the Lions had 59 plays in the game.

"Last week, we were able to establish a better balanced offensive attack than any other time this year," Pfeifer said. "However, any team with Greenfield still on their schedule should not take them as lightly as Circleville did two weeks ago when Greenfield won 6-0."

This week, Washington's offense will be yielding an average of 10 pounds per player to the Hurricane's defense. The two units appear to be equal as the Lions offense has produced an average of 15 points per game and Wilmington's defense has yielded an average of 15 points per contest.

"This is a typical Wilmington defense. The two units appear to be equal as the Lions offense has produced an average of 15 points per contest.

"This is a typical Wilmington defense," pointed out Pfeifer. "Their line has average speed and the secondary is very quick. The defense is very tough to block against since the line likes to slant a lot and the linebackers like to run a lot of stunts and games.

Pfeifer said he is very impressed by defensive guard Fred Watson, linebacker Norm Van Pelt and safety Jackie Watson. Both Fred Watson and Van Pelt are very quick and Jackie Watson proved himself last year by being selected to the All-SCOL squad as a safety.

Washington quarterback Jeff Brown is expected to be 100 per cent ready this Friday. Brown suffered a back injury in the Unioto game. He missed the entire second half against the Shermans and he also sat out part of the final half in the Greenfield game. He has completed 51.2 per cent of his passes, as he has connected on 21 of 41 aerials for 381 yards.

Washington's offensive lineman of the week is center Jim Runnels. With a blocking efficiency of 83 per cent, most of the inside running game was run with the help of his blocking.

Offensive back of the week is fullback Larry Dumford. In being graded at 96 per cent, Dumford opened the off tackle play with his blocking and he also carried the ball 12 times for 61 yards.

Defensively, Gilbert Sparkman was chosen as the back of the week for the second time this season. Sparkman was credited with 42 defensive points. He was involved in 10 tackles, recovered a fumble and intercepted a pass.

Greg Huysman was named the defensive lineman of the week. Huysman accumulated 20 points, recovered a fumble and was instrumental in stopping the Tigers' fullback play.

Washington is now 4-1 overall and rest atop the SCOL with a 2-0 mark. A loss to the Lions could very well eliminate the Hurricane as Wilmington is 3-2 for the year and 1-1 in the league.

New leaders in ratings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Upper Arlington and Warren Harding, two perennial state schoolboy football powers, are new Class AAA regional leaders this week in the Ohio High School Athletic Association computerized ratings.

Upper Arlington replaced Columbus Whitehall as the Region 2 pacesetter. Warren Harding beat Warren Western Reserve last week, replacing the losers as the top team in Region 1.

New Philadelphia in Region 3 and Cincinnati Elder in Region 4 retained their Class AAA leads.

The OHSAA uses the ratings to determine its state playoff teams after the regular season is completed. Each region leader qualifies for the Ohio semifinals in November.

The ratings are based on the strength of a team's schedule and those of its opponents. Margins of victory do not figure in the ratings.

Norwalk and Ironton were new regional frontrunners in Class AA while Bellaire St. John was the lone newcomer atop the Class A regions.

Retaining their Class AA leads were Wellington and Cincinnati Wyoming. Defending champion Middletown Fenwick, Windham and Montpelier again paced their Class A regions.

Washington Court House and Miami Trace each jumped in their respective regions. With their 18-0 win over Greenfield, the Lions moved from 23rd to 13th in Region 8. The Panthers, fresh off a 50-6 blasting of Hillsboro, moved from 23rd to 17th in Region 4.

Ratings for other South Central Ohio League teams find Wilmington dropping from 27th to a tie for 37th in Class AAA Region 4, Greenfield falling from ninth to 12th in Region 8, Circleville rising from 29th to 19th in Region 8, Hillsboro dropping from 35th to 37th in Region 8 and Unioto dropping from 16th to 17th in Class A's Region 12.

St. Louis picked to defeat Dallas

Is it in the Cards for St. Louis to be a contender in the National Football League this season?

The Cardinals, one of the surprises so far in 1974, seek their fifth straight victory Sunday when the collide with the Dallas Cowboys. St. Louis is also after victory No. 3 over a rival from the National Conference East.

The Cowboys, on the other hand, have lost three straight, something that hasn't happened to a Tom Landry-coached team in a long time.

The oddsmakers don't believe St. Louis can make it 5-0.

This Pro Pigskin Picker doesn't agree, but first let's report that last weekend produced 11 correct calls and two incorrect. That leaves the season's effort at 34-17-1 for .667.

Now, lets get down to business:

Dallas (1-3) at St. Louis (40): The Cardinals have the stingiest scoring defense in the entire league but Dallas may give Coach Don Coryell's club its biggest test so far. It's hard to imagine the Cowboys losing four straight but ... CARDINALS 21, COWBOYS 20.

New England (4-0) at New York Jets (1-3): The Patriots have put more points on the scoreboard to date than any other NFL team ... PATRIOTS 24, JETS 17.

Houston (1-3) at Minnesota (4-0): The Vikings should join the Cards and Pats in the pack as the only 5-0 clubs after this one... VIKINGS 21, OILERS 7.

New York Giants (1-3) at Philadelphia: The Eagles, favored by five, have given up the second fewest points in the league and it might be first after Sunday's game ... EAGLES 31, GIANTS 10.

Cincinati (3-1) at Cleveland (1-3): Cincinnati is a nine-point favorite and only the Baltimore Colts have yielded more points (122) than the Browns (109) ... BENGALS 35, BROWNS 14.

Chicago (2-2) at Atlanta (13): The Falcons favored by four? It must be a misprint. But then maybe the oddsmaker was thinking about last season's Bears ... BEARS 24, FALCONS 17.

Pittsburgh (2-1-1) at Kansas City (2-2): The oddsmakers think the Steelers will win by eight points ... STEELERS 23, CHIEFS 14.

Buffalo (3-1) at Baltimore (0-4): The spread says Buffalo by 15. It could be ... BILLS 35, COLTS 10.

Los Angeles (3-1) vs Green Bay (2-2) at Milwaukee: The betting slips say Los Angeles minus 12. The scoreboard should say ... RAMS 24, PACKERS 13.

San Diego (1-3) at Oakland (3-1): On any given day, etc., but IT won't be today for San Diego, 14-point underdogs ... RAIDERS 37, CHARGERS 17.

New Orleans (1-3) at Denver (1-2-1): As 14-point favorites the Brocos will find out what it's like to win two in a row this week ... BRONCOS 30, SAINTS 17.

Miami (3-1) at Washington (2-2): The odds favor the Dolphins by five which could be right on the button ... DOLPHINS 24, REDSKINS 19.

Southmen, Americans notch WFL victories

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The Memphis Southmen and the Birmingham Americans continue to roll while the World Football League continues to rock.

Memphis and Birmingham, the struggling league's two best teams, ignored the latest round of WFL woes and posted victories Wednesday night, the Southmen edging the Charlotte Hornets 27-23 and the Americans thumping the Portland Storm 30-8.

The Hawaiians beat the Philadelphia Bell 25-22 and the Florida Blazers downed the Chicago Fire 45-17 in other games.

Meanwhile, WFL officials continued the struggle to keep the league afloat despite Commissioner Gary Davidson's declaration that, "I think the factor for success today is better than it was two months ago."

The Detroit Wheels and the Jacksonville Sharks both went under due to financial inadequacies earlier in the week and WFL vice president Don Andersen said Wednesday night that the players will be divided up among the remaining teams at a draft Friday, unless some new owners turn up before then. Player limits on each team would be expanded by at least five and perhaps eight players per team.

Memphis 27, Charlotte 23

Danny White threw touchdown passes of 13 and 19 yards to Ed Marshall in the fourth quarter as the Southmen, 13-2, posted their 10th straight victory and spoiled the Hornets' Charlotte debut. Willie Spencer and J.J. Jennings ran for 100 yards apiece for Memphis.

A sellout crowd of 25,133 turned out for the game.

Birmingham 30, Portland 8

George Mira tossed a pair of scoring passes for the Americans, a seven-yarder to Dennis Homan and a 13-yarder to Jim Bishop, and Charley Harraway and Joe Profit scored on short runs. Birmingham is 12-3 on the year.

Attendance in Birmingham was 25,621 — the lowest in eight home games for the Americans, who had been averaging 47,605 per game.

Hawaiians 25, Bell 22

Al Davis scored three touchdowns for the Hawiians, the third coming on an eight-yard pass from Norris Weese with 2:45 to play. Willie Williams intercepted three Philadelphia passes, returning them for a total 56 yards.

The game was played before an estimated crowd of only 4,500 in only the Baltimore Colts have yielded

Florida 45, Chicago 17

Tommy Reamon set up two scores with his running and then threw a 60-yard scoring pass to Matt Maslowski for the Blazers, 11-4. Maslowski also scored on a 40-yard pass from Bob Davis as Florida rolled up 30 points in the final period.

The game was played before 25,621 fans in Chicago.

Oakland 'walks' into series

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Oakland A's go after their third straight World Series championship with ailing Reggie Jackson and the team's other erstwhile sluggers in a slump.

But the resourceful A's manage somehow to score, and they still have magnificent pitching to use against the Los Angeles Dodgers. Both were apparent Wednesday in the 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles which gave Oakland the American League pennant, three games to one.

The A's scored their first run on four consecutive walks in the fifth inning and another in the seventh on their lone hit, a double by Jackson following another of the 11 walks off Mike Cuellar and Ross Grimsley.

Winning pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter and reliever Rollie Fingers held the Orioles to five hits, with Baltimore finally ending a 30-inning scoring drought on Boog Powell's ninth inning hit.

The A's pitching is what impressed Earl Weaver, the Baltimore manager. He predicted it would enable Oakland to join the 1936-39 and the 1949-53 New York Yankees as the only teams ever to win three World Series in a row.

"Pitching dominated the playoffs," Weaver said. "But that's the way we got into it, the way they got into it, and the way they're going to win the World Series."

After banging three home runs to beat Hunter 6-3 in the series opener, the Orioles scored only one more run. Through the fifth inning of the final game, they had gone 15 innings without advancing a runner beyond first base.

The A's weren't much better at the plate as they battled a Baltimore pitching staff which Oakland owner Charles O. Finley had feared would be tough to beat.

Jackson, playing the final three games as a designated hitter while hobbled with a pulled hamstring muscle in his right leg, had two hits in the four games.

Oakland's other three top run-producers, all of whom knocked in 73 runs or more during the regular season, didn't fare much better.

Sal Bando did have two homers among his three hits, and his first homer won the third game 1-0. Joe Rudi was limited to two hits and Gene Tenace went 0-for-11.

Ironically, it was the hitless Tenace who drew the fifth-inning walk off Cuellar which forced home the first run Wednesday.

Just before the game, Manager Alvin Dark had observed: "The thing about our ball club, is that some way, some how, we're going to find a way to score."

The A's, who return home today, held a victory dinner in Baltimore Wednesday night after a relatively mild clubhouse celebration.

"You don't have the hoopla you had before," Jackson said of the post-game scene. "Maybe it's because we were expected to win. If we don't, we're bums."

But he added: "If we win the World Series again, then we'll howl an hour or so."

Dodgers crunch Pittsburgh

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's an All-California World Series for the first time, and Steve Garvey said the Los Angeles Dodgers wanted it that way.

"We said collectively that we want to play the best team," said Garvey, hitting star of the Dodgers' 12-1 victory over Pittsburgh Wednesday that gave Los Angeles its first National League pennant in eight years.

"Oakland is the World Series champion and the American League champion again, so we have to beat them if we want to prove we are the best team in baseball."

The Dodgers — behind Garvey's two home runs and two singles, and Don Sutton's masterful pitching — whipped the Pirates Wednesday, winning the series three games to one. The two-time defending World Series champion A's eliminated Baltimore by the same margin in games for the American League crown.

The A's are expected to pitch Ken Holtzman, who blanked Baltimore last Sunday, and Los Angeles will open the series with Andy Messersmith, who beat Pittsburgh Sunday, in Saturday afternoon's game at Dodger Stadium.

Dodger Manager Walt Alston refused to draw a comparison between the Dodgers and A's because he hadn't studied scouting reports. "I don't know much about Oakland," he said.

Alston, whose first pennant came in 1955 when the Brooklyn Dodgers won their first World Series, didn't even want to compare his youthful 1974 team with those of even a decade ago, when Sandy Koufax pitched the Dodgers to a World Series triumph over Minnesota, the last time Los Angeles won it all.

"I'm so proud of this team with so many youngsters going so far as they have. This fella right here (Don Sutton) pitched outstanding ball for us."

Sutton, however, said the Dodgers, with young players in their second or third seasons — Garvey, Ron Cey, Dave Lopes and others — "are starting a dynasty." The 29-year-old pitcher, a rookie in 1966 when LA won its last pennant, said flatly that 1974's is the better team.

The Pirates, who won the NL East title for the fourth time in the last five year, had no qualms about picking the Dodgers to win the World Series.

"I pick the Dodgers," said Manager Danny Murtaugh. "I don't predict the number of games the series will go. I'll root just as hard as any Dodger fan for them in the series. It was a battle for the pennant up to now, and this is now a league vendetta."

"They outhit us, outpitched us and just outplayed us, all the way around," said Pirate center fielder Al Oliver. "They deserve to go to the World Series."

Browns' owner discouraged

CLEVELAND (AP) — Art Modell is obviously discouraged with the performance of his Cleveland Browns this year, but he realizes he has a lot of company.

"I felt very unhappy," Modell said, of his feelings while watching the Browns lose a 10-point lead and then go on to destruction at the hands of the Oakland Raiders 40-24 on Sunday.

"But I wasn't alone. There were 65,000 fans in that stadium who were also unhappy."

If Modell has any specific plans about turning the Browns around this season, he is not saying very much about them for public consumption.

After the loss two weeks ago to the St. Louis Cardinals Modell called a meeting of his coaches, prompting speculation that some axing might be in store.

Modell, who is one of the more active owners in the National Football League, hasn't had a meeting with his coaching staff in several years.

"We haven't had them because there wasn't a need for them," Modell said.

"I had a meeting last Monday and it is by no means a weekly addition," he said, "I just thought that it was time Bob Nussbaumer (vice-president-player personnel) and I sat down and talked with the coaching staff to see where we were going."

Lions' junior high drops 8-6 contest

Both Wilmington's and Washington's junior high teams scored on their first offensive series of the game. However, the Hurricane capitalized on their conversion attempt and the Lions failed as Wilmington squeezed out a 8-6 win.

The Hurricane's touchdown came on a 60-yard drive, while the Lions drove 65 yards for their touchdown. Washington's score came on a 14-yard pass from Jim McDonald to halfback Larry Brickles.

"We played decent defense, but we did not execute well on offense," reflected coach Rodger Mickle. "Wilmington is a very big ball club and they are very well coached.

The loss marked the second in two days for a Washington Junior high team. The seventh graders closed their season at 2-1 with a 24-8 defeat at the hands of Chillicothe Smith seventh graders, Tuesday evening.

President takes . to dance floor

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP) — President Ford took to the dance floor night at a crowded Republican fund-raising dinner.

His partners Wednesday night were Mary Scranton, wife of former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, and Marilyn Lewis, wife of GOP gubernatorial candidate Drew Lewis.

The President danced the polka with Mrs. Scranton, then shifted to the jitterbug for his dance with Mrs. Lewis as the band played "Sentimental Journey."

Candidates shun Ford surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — A number of Republican candidates in next month's elections have disassociated themselves from the anti-inflation surtax that President Ford contends would cost taxpayers only a few cents a day.

Criticism from GOP Senate and gubernatorial candidates came as the senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Herman T. Schneebeli, R-Pa., said he believes the fate of Ford's 5 per cent surtax proposal "rests on the American public and what they tell us when we go home."

Ford, who has conceded that many thought the tax proposal "politically unwise" just four weeks before the Nov. 5 elections, tried a new approach in defending it Wednesday at his outdoor news conference in the White House Rose Garden.

A family of four with $20,000 gross income would pay $42, or 12 cents a day, while a family with $16,000 income would pay only $3 — or less than one penny per day, Ford said.

And he said that only 28 per cent of the nation's taxpayers would pay any additional tax. He said enactment of the surtax and the rest of his anti-inflation package could produce "a meaningful reduction in the rate of inflation" by early 1975.

Ford went to Philadelphia to boost Republican candidates Wednesday night. He told a fund-raising dinner the surtax is fair and equitable.

The American people "want to step up and do what's right. Politicians ought to do the same thing," Ford said.

But just before the President arrived, the Republican gubernatorial candidate in Pennsylvania, Drew Lewis, told reporters he opposed the surtax and suggested closing tax loopholes instead.

And Republican Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania, also up for re-election, denounced the surtax.

In Kansas, GOP Sen. Robert Dole declared that many people in the state who made $15,000 were suffering economically and "the last thing they need is an additional surtax to pay."

Ford also said at his news conference:

—He believes a one-year surtax will be sufficient, instead of a two-year tax suggested by Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the acting head of the House Ways and Means Committee.

—There has been "nothing to change" his inclination to run for the presidency in 1976.

—He will meet Oct. 21 with Mexican President Luis Echeverria in Nogales, Mexico, his first trip outside the continental United States since becoming President.

—He doesn't think there was anything improper in gifts by Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller to several individuals, including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger before Kissinger joined the government.

—He would meet with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev prior to a scheduled summit meeting next year if there is need for an earlier conference.

—He declined any new comment on his pardon for former President Richard M. Nixon prior to Ford's appearance before a House Judiciary subcommittee on Oct. 17.

Wholesale price increases slowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose only onetenth of a per cent last month as falling farm prices offset increases in the cost of industrial goods, the government reported today.

The modest September price rise followed near-record increases in July and August. The September increase was the smallest price advance since wholesale prices declined a tenth of a per cent last October.

Consumers still face sharp retail price hikes in the coming months, because of big wholesale price boosts during the summer.

Also, the drop in farm prices last month is likely to be only temporary, with adverse weather expected to drive prices higher once again.

Earlier this week, the White House predicted that food prices would continue to increase at an annual rate of 10 per cent or more over the next 18 months.

The September increase, adjusted to discount seasonal influences, works out to an annual rate of 1.2 per cent, a sharp contrast to the 46.8 per cent annual rate in August.

In absolute terms, without seasonal adjustment, wholesale prices actually declined a tenths of a per cent from August to September.

Wholesale prices remained 19.7 per cent higher than a year ago with the government's Wholesale Price Index at 167.2.

Translated into dollars, that means it cost $167.20 to buy the same volume of wholesale goods that $100 purchased in 1967.

The Labor Department reported that farm products, processed foods and feeds fell a seasonally adjusted 1.9 per cent in September, following increases of 6.4 and 7.6 per cent in July and August, respectively.

Check charge filed

An 18-year-old Bloomingburg woman has been arrested and charged with passing a bad check by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

Debra K. Oyer, of Bloomingburg, allegedly passed a check valued at $10.38 at Seaway, CCC-Highway-W, on Sept. 3, which was returned marked "insufficient funds."

City Council

parking be approved by City Council.

COUNCIL MEMBERS unanimously endorsed the .65-mill tax levy which will be appearing on the November 5 general election ballot for the operation of the Fayette County Progressive School.

Mrs. Frank Weade, a member of the Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation, solicited Council's support of the tax issue which will run for a 10-year period.

The Fayette County Progressive School relocated this fall to the former Sunnyside Elementary School building, S. Fayette Street.

Mrs. Weade told Council members that since the board's last tax levy was approved two years ago enrollment has increased from 23 to 41 students. The school has a 14-member staff, is now paying rent and hopes to add more transportation and an adult program.

The school is presently operating on a $61,000 annual budget, which is derived from a .35-mill tax levy; $450 per pupil per year from the state and tuition the school receives from the Washington C.H. and Miami Trace school districts.

CITY MANAGER Dan Wolford was authorized to prepare specifications and advertise for bids for three new 1975 model cruisers to be used in the Washington C.H. Police Department.

The police department is presently operating with five vehicles, including three patrol cars and autos for Police Chief Rodman Scott and the department's investigator.

It was pointed out that the basic specifications have not changed from last year. The new vehicles will be purchased in March.

SPEAKING ON behalf of Millwood area residents, Councilman Donald E. Wood said residents in that area have been complaining about a considerable amount of sediment in their water. Wood said he contacted the Ohio Water Service Co. and was informed the company had flushed pipes in the vicinity of Dyna Corp. Wednesday and the problem should be corrected today.

CHESTER HAMULAK, 1028 Center St., asked Council's permission to block Court Street from Fayette Street to Main Street in front of the Courthouse during the dedication ceremonies Nov. 11 for the new war memorial. Hamulak said a large crowd is anticipated.

BOB McEWEN, of Hillsboro, Republican candidate for the Ohio House of Representatives from the 77th district, spoke briefly to Council members at the beginning of the meeting. Among other things, McEwen promised Council he would protect Local Government Fund money that Ohio's municipalities receive and rapped the recommendations of the Local Government Services Commission.

Courts

JUVENILE COURT

A 15-year-old Jeffersonville youth has been placed on probation by Probate-Juvenile Judge Rollo M. Marchant.

Robert Slutz of Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, was placed on probation as a delinquent child under probation officer Marshall Boggs after he reportedly altered a check.

Three Jeff boys charged with store burglary

Three Jeffersonville youths and a Madison County youth, formerly of Jeffersonville, have been arrested and charged with breaking and entering in connection with the burglary of Sagar's Dairy Store in Jeffersonville, June 30.

The store was said to have been entered sometime after 10 p.m. Saturday by the boys, who made a hole in the screen and unlatched the front door. Forty dollars worth of cigarettes and $56 in cash were taken.

Charges against the youths were filed by Sheriff's Deputy Charles Wise, following his investigation of the incident.

Burglary at cemetery checked by deputies

A larceny and an incident of vandalism are currently under investigation by the Washington C.H. Police Department, while the Fayette County Sheriff's Department are attempting to solve a burglary. Sheriff's deputies also reported a farm accident in which a Mount Sterling man was injured.

A 12-horsepower tractor was stolen from a storage building at Bloomingburg Cemetery by thieves who cut through the hasp lock on the building sometime between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The tractor valued at $1,395, was described by sheriff's deputies as red and white with its model number, "K301S", on the sides.

A purse owned by Barbara Hilt, 827 Conley Court, was removed from her car while it was parked at Kenneth's Salon of Beauty, Gibbs Avenue, sometime around 3:30 a.m. Thursday, Washington C.H. police reported.

The purse contained $5, a Fayette County Bank checkbook and personal papers.

A 40-by-12 inch window was broken on the north side of Cherry Hill School, Oakland Ave., sometime Wednesday afternoon. The window valued at $20, was thought by police to have been broken by a thrown hickory nut.

William Dick, 54, Mount Sterling, was injured by a corn picker on his farm on Lester Mill-Whiteside Road in Pickaway County, at 8:15 a.m. Wednesday, sheriff's deputies reported.

Dick caught his thumb in the corn picker while it was running and the tip was severed. He was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital by his brother, Art, treated and released.
